

PRIVATE COPYING GLOBAL STUDY

— Law & Practice —

de Thuis kopie

FOREWORD

de Thuiskopie

Private copying is a subject of perennial importance for authors and creators. While creative professions may undergo periods of instability, remunerations from private copying can provide a modest but sustained income. With the evolution of new technologies, copying has taken on new forms, and rightsholders and their representative groups have continuously needed to justify the enforcement of their rights across new copying practices and new contexts of consumption. Within these discussions – for all parties involved – it is essential to be aware of current global practice and international norms when determining the scope and level of private copying remunerations.

Now in this third Edition, we provide a comprehensive look into international private copying systems, gathering and consolidating key data points and legislative insights into an accessible format. We aimed to “refresh” the Study’s reporting with several new features simplifying the content and improving searchability (see Methodology). Additionally, along with updated figures on tariff setting and total collections by country, we have included an Economic Analysis which brings much-needed context to how the private copying system functions for everyday consumers.

In this Edition, we also add the International Federation of Reproduction Rights Organisations (IFRRO) to our institutional partnership, who was crucial in bringing together the international expertise of its membership regarding reprography and the administration of text and image levies. With their partnership, we aim to provide a more complete picture of the role of private copying and its influential impact on creators across different artistic repertoires.

Finally, future publications and updates on private copying will be digitalised, in order to provide the most up-to-date information with greater ease and accessibility. Updates on this initiative will be published following the launch of this Study Edition (2026).

1. INTRODUCTION

Private copying is addressed in copyright law through compensation systems designed to ensure that creators are fairly remunerated when their works are copied for personal use. In many countries, individuals are permitted to make private copies of music, films, and other protected content, such as copying a song to a smartphone, storing a film on a tablet, or backing up purchased content on an external hard drive for personal use. To balance this exception, compensation is collected on devices and storage media that can be used for private copying, including smartphones, computers, USB sticks, memory cards, and external hard drives, and/or on reprographic devices such as scanners and printers. The amounts collected are distributed to authors, artists, musicians, and other rightsholders for the private use of their works.

Private copying legislation was first introduced in the 1960s in Germany, when lawmakers began to address the growing practice of copying for personal use. Since then, many countries have introduced private copying schemes, although their legal and administrative implementation varies across jurisdictions. Over time, and particularly with the spread of digital technologies, private copying practices have shifted from physical media to digital devices and online content, leading to ongoing adaptations in how compensation systems are structured and applied.

The 2020 Global Private Copying Study, carried out by BIEM, CISAC, and Stichting de ThuisKopie, provided a broad international overview of private copying. As with the prior study conducted in 2017, the 2020 study also examined how private copying is regulated and compensated in different countries, reviewed practical approaches and relevant court decisions, and analysed trends in private copying revenues from an economic perspective, including how revenues have evolved alongside changes in consumer devices and copying habits. For this Edition, the questionnaire was further refined in view of collecting key information on certain complex aspects of levy administration and introduces a new dedicated section on reprography levies, where present.

This Study adopts a standardised, cross-national survey methodology to examine the legal, economic, and administrative frameworks governing private copying. The Study updates and extends the 2020 Global Private Copying Study by analysing developments over the period 2019–2024. The harmonised questionnaire enables cross-country comparability while accommodating national legal and market specificities.

I. Geographical Scope and Regional Classification

This Study covers 196 countries across five geographical regions: Africa, Asia, North and South America, Europe, and Oceania. For the classification of the various countries within each region, the UN geographical regional classification was used in most cases. In some instances, territories are also analysed, in which case their classification is also based on geographical location.

II. Questionnaire

This Edition's questionnaire was developed with the inputs of a committee of representatives of each partnering institution, along with select experts from Copie France and the Electronic Licensing Forum (ELF). The questionnaire covers several main themes and topics, as briefly described below. To facilitate the rate of response, the questionnaire was translated for the first time into multiple languages (Spanish, French) and also made available in an online format (SurveyMonkey). Additional follow-up inquiries were also launched on occasion to clarify and complement the quantitative data received.

In the Overview, the questionnaire first gathers contextual information on the respondent country, local currency, collecting society or organisation, represented rightsholder groups, and appointing authority. Respondents were asked to identify the products, devices, and services subject to private copying remuneration, including equipment, storage media, cloud-based services, NPVR systems, and reprographic devices used exclusively or primarily for text and image copying (such as printers, scanners, copiers, and multifunctional devices).

Detailed reporting, including tariff data, were collected using standardised tables covering a defined set of devices and storage capacities (smartphones, tablets, external hard drives, NPVR subscriptions, memory cards, USB sticks, set-top boxes, reprographic devices, refurbished goods, and additional reporting lines to list other relevant products).

Revenue data were reported for the period 2019–2024, enabling longitudinal analysis. Revenues were reported year-by-year, and disaggregated to show the following:

- revenues derived from reprography levies on text and image copying devices;
- revenues derived from digital devices and storage media;
- percentage allocations between text & image and musical & audiovisual categories.

Revenues are attributed to the year in which the products subject to remuneration were placed on the market and exclude levies unrelated to private copying. Further qualitative explanations of revenue developments are included where present to complement the quantitative data.

Specific questions address whether refurbished or remanufactured devices are subject to private copying or reprography levies, how such devices are defined in national law or practice, and whether differentiated tariffs apply. This section captures regulatory approaches to secondary markets.

The questionnaire further examines collection and distribution mechanisms, including reporting obligations for liable parties, payment intervals, and the role of industry organisations, collecting societies, and public authorities (including tax or customs authorities). This section enables comparative assessment of administrative models governing the collection and distribution of both reprography and digital private copying levies.

Additionally, data on the existence, legal basis, percentage, and governance of social and cultural deductions applied to private copying revenues are examined. This provides some insights into the use of private copying remunerations to enhance local cultural policy objectives.

Finally, respondents provide references to relevant legislation, pending reforms, and judicial decisions affecting private copying and reprography levies. These inputs contextualise quantitative findings within evolving legal frameworks and support a more future-oriented analysis.

III. Sources of Information

Data were collected from national collecting societies or other competent organisations responsible for administering or overseeing private copying remuneration. For each country, representative members of BIEM, CISAC and IFRRO, including other organisations relevant to private copying and reprography, were contacted via email to complete the questionnaire.

To the extent possible, authoritative sources of law have been used, including reference to provisions in WIPO-Lex, where available. Desk research was also used to complement any missing information in each country's reporting.

GDP and population figures are derived from the IMF (World Economic Outlook, April 2025); except for North Korea (estimates from the Bank of Korea) and Liechtenstein (World Bank). All are 2024 figures except for Eritrea (2019) and Syria (2010).

IV. Study Notation

There are several visual and organisational features included in this Study to facilitate its readability.

First, each geographical region is color-coded, allowing for a quick visual cue when moving between countries and regions.

- 1 Additionally, each country is categorised by number, indicating the level of private copying implementation, with "1" representing no implementation and "4" representing "full" implementation:
  1. Countries without a private copying exception;
  2. Countries with a private copying exception but without a compensation levy;
  3. Countries with a private copying levy but without collection and distribution mechanisms;
  4. Countries with a private copying levy and collection and distribution mechanisms.
- 2 This category number can be found at the top right corner of each country report, allowing readers to quickly flip through the Study to find the level of private copying implementation most relevant to their inquiry.
- 3 Another measure adopted to improve the readability of the Study includes a puzzle-piece icon representing the application of private copying to digital devices and media ("D") and reprography ("R"), with a complete system indicated by both interlocking pieces.

Finally, total revenues are reported in hundred-thousands (,000), where applicable (e.g., "11,326" in the Report tables means "Eleven-million, three-hundred twenty-six thousand").

3. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

3.1 OVERALL FINDINGS

Private copying has expanded worldwide in part due to the rapid evolution of digital technologies and the widespread availability of devices and digital services capable of reproducing protected works. From smartphones and tablets to cloud storage and connected devices, consumers today can lawfully access, store, and reproduce content in ways that were unimaginable only a few decades ago. Legislators and administrative bodies across jurisdictions have responded to this reality by continuously updating private copying systems to maintain the balance between everyday consumer practices, evolving technologies, and creators' exclusive rights.

"Success factors" of a well-functioning private copying system involve a measure of flexibility and broad institutional cooperation to ensure that the resulting policies are agile enough to keep up with changing copying contexts and the needs of creators as well as users. A Study conducted by ARIPO in 2025 identifies the greatest indicators of a successful implementation of a private copying system as the following: clear legal frameworks with adaptable device lists; strong cooperation between governments, CMOs, customs, and revenue authorities; transparent collection and distribution rules; and the use of private copying revenues to support cultural, social, and economic development.<sup>1</sup> Across many countries analysed, those which enable periodic reviews of levies (every 2-4 years) and rely on empirical data for rate-setting practices, seem to provide the benchmark for a stable system.

Europe hosts many examples of countries which have taken proactive steps in revising their private copying laws in light of changes to consumer copying habits and the emergence of new technologies. While some countries have revised their laws to exclude older copying mediums such as CDs and DVDs from the scope of private copying, others have acknowledged the functionality of "cloud" copying and Non-Personal Video Recorders (NPVRs) and have addressed these technologies (directly or indirectly) through updates to their private copying practices (see Europe, 3.2.3).

There are also several key economic and cultural aspects of private copying systems worth highlighting:

First, that it is a modest, limited payment on consumer goods, having a minimal impact on the livelihoods of consumers, while delivering significant value for creators. The median household spend which results in the payment of levies is estimated at EUR 3.19 per person for a tech-savvy household of four, and EUR 1.14 per person for an elderly couple employing only a few digital devices (Economic Analysis, Table 6 and Figure 1).

Second, that private copying remuneration trends as a whole have plateaued or declined within the last few years. Between 2017 to present-day, private copying revenues have remained stable, and total revenues in 2023-2024 are similar to those in 2007-2010 in real terms (Economic Analysis, Figure 2). This can be pronounced when considering that global inflation rates have increased significantly over time, whereas private copying remunerations have not been proportionately raised. Apart from a peak in 2016 due to settlements, revenues from private copying increased only slightly between 2007 and 2024 when adjusted for inflation.

Third, that private copying and reprography levies deliver significant and reliable benefits to creators, and particularly in the allocations for social and cultural funds. Over 20 countries include specific legislation to use private copying remunerations for social and cultural purposes, and these remunerations can be applied for a wide range of creators' support including educational programmes, artists' pensions, and to fund a wide array of cultural projects such as music festivals or films (see Social and Cultural Funds, 4.3).

Still, provided these benefits, the modern age means that traditional interpretations of core concepts of private copying must be revisited often. The "private" nature of such copying, the copying mediums used to store private copies, and the scope and permissibility of different private copying activities, have all required reinterpretation in digital contexts. For example, copies stored in the cloud or made through a cloud service was determined by courts to be considered private copies, without the precondition of users “owning” the copying medium or service in question to apply (i.e., cloud storage servers).<sup>2</sup> The applicability of the private copying exception to offline streaming copies (also known as “tethered downloads”) saved by users on their devices in the context of a subscription to a streaming service is currently being debated by the highest courts (See Annex 3, Relevant Case Law from the European Court of Justice, Case C-496/24).

Additionally, arguments have been raised that private copying levies can be detrimental for everyday consumers, and continue to grow without justification. However, these arguments are largely unfounded. According to figures derived from the Economic Analysis (Section 5), the cost of private copying for the average household is minimal (between 2-5 euros per family member per year on average) (Economic Analysis, Table 6). Additionally, as mentioned above, when examining the trend of private copying remunerations over time, total revenues have either plateaued or decreased in the last few years, even provided rapidly rising rates of inflation. In aggregate, this means that despite increases in device and copying media costs, private copying remuneration rates have generally remained stable.

Despite persistent challenges, the legal framework supporting private copying remains steadfast, founded on the principles that creators should be remunerated for copies made of their works; that the administration of private copying should be transparent; and that such payment ought to be reasonable, proportionate, and in line with consumer expectations.

3.2 KEY REGIONAL DEVELOPMENTS

3.2.1 North and South America

Private copying systems in North and South America are less developed compared to many European and some Asian jurisdictions, though there has been some notable progress and renewed efforts to fully implement such systems among Latin American and Caribbean countries.

In North America, Canada has maintained a limited exemption with regard to blank audio media, whereas the U.S. has kept a narrow scheme based on dated legislation, with no broad levy covering modern copying contexts (i.e., confined to certain audio recording technologies, and without a general levy on devices or media). In Canada, while the Copyright Board still sets tariffs on blank audio media, judicial interpretation of private copying limits extending private copying to cover modern devices with embedded storage.<sup>3</sup>

An example of a well-functioning and fully implemented system is Paraguay, which has successfully preserved the level of rightsholder income after a legislative measure previously halved it. In 2024, Decree N.º 2063/24 (Shopping/Tourism Regime) applied a significantly reduced calculation for remuneration on imported devices representing 50% less private copying revenues. This was successfully opposed through Decreto N.º 4145/2025 which restored remuneration levels and reinforced protections for creators.

Mexico will be a key jurisdiction to follow, as it actively campaigns towards the introduction of implementing legislation to clarify remaining ambiguities in its already-established private copying exception (i.e., parties responsible for payment). It is one of the countries identified to benefit from the introduction of a functioning private copying system (see Economic Analysis, Section 5).

Finally, the Association of Caribbean Copyright Societies (ACCS) started a project in 2025 to assess the potential introduction of private copying levies in multiple countries in the region (Barbados, Jamaica, St. Lucia, and Trinidad and Tobago). The goal is to establish “a reliable income stream that is not dependent on tourism or live events”<sup>4</sup> and to thereby ensure a more sustainable future for its creative sector.

3. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

3.2.2 Africa

Across Africa, private copying remuneration has transitioned from isolated national policies to a regional harmonisation momentum that reflects both domestic legal progress and coordinated policy responses. Many countries have now laid the statutory foundation for remuneration, but are still establishing collection and distribution mechanisms, illustrating a broad continental shift toward recognising private copying as a meaningful source of revenues for creatives. At the same time, initiatives promoted through continental bodies like ARIPO have helped to add strategic guidance on legislative design and collaborative enforcement.<sup>5</sup>

A major milestone in West Africa has been the adoption of Directive No. 07/2023/CM/UEMOA on the harmonisation of remuneration for private copying by the West African Economic and Monetary Union (UEMOA) on 22 September 2023. This regional directive obliges the eight UEMOA Member States — Benin, Burkina Faso, Côte d'Ivoire, Guinea-Bissau, Mali, Niger, Senegal, and Togo — to transpose harmonised private copying provisions into national law by 2025, binding them to shared rules on levy bases, eligible devices, and collective management frameworks, with the aim of increasing creators' revenues and reducing legal disparities across the sub-region. Though only a few UEMOA states, such as Burkina Faso and Côte d'Ivoire, currently have operational private copying regimes, the directive's implementation — supported by CISAC, WIPO, IFRRO and regional workshops — is expected to accelerate private copying adoption and strengthen cultural economies.

Nigeria will also be a key country to follow regarding private copying reform. While some collections have been reported<sup>6</sup>, it will be crucial to evaluate these figures and ensure that they represent a fair amount of remuneration for creators. If private copying remuneration is duly collected across three types of digital devices (smartphones (excluding function phones); computers and tablets), given current market conditions, it has the potential to generate over 12.7 million euros for Nigeria's creatives (See Economic Analysis, Table 4).

Taken together, national and regional developments demonstrate that African policymakers are responding proactively to the challenges of digitalisation: by modernising copyright exceptions into more structured remuneration systems, harmonising rules across borders, and integrating private copying into broader cultural and economic strategies, they ensure that private copying collectively benefits society.

3.2.3 Europe

Private copying is firmly embedded in the European copyright framework. Article 5(2)(b) of the Information Society Directive (2001/29/EC) permits Member States to introduce a private copying exception, subject to fair compensation for rightsholders. As reflected in the Study, 42 out of 44 European countries examined provide for a private copying exception, and the vast majority of EU Member States operate functional remuneration systems. For several countries in this region in particular, social and cultural deductions are embedded in the distribution framework, reinforcing the broader cultural policy dimension of private copying remuneration.

Recent legal developments at EU level have also clarified the scope of the exception in the digital environment. In Austro-Mechana (C-433/20), the CJEU confirmed that private copying may extend to copies made in the cloud, but Member States are not obliged to impose levies directly on cloud service providers. Instead, they retain discretion as to how "fair compensation" is ensured. This has led to differentiated national approaches. Some Member States have explicitly included certain digital storage uses within their levy frameworks, while others, such as the Netherlands, address cloud-related copying indirectly by factoring cloud usage into a surcharge on commonly used devices (e.g. PCs, smartphones, tablets).

Overall, the European landscape demonstrates strong and continued recognition of private copying as a lawful and socially valuable part of cultural engagement, which merits some form of compensation due to rightsholders. While private copying exceptions and remuneration mechanisms remain the dominant model, there is variation in scope, tariff-setting methods and effectiveness of collection. Key developments centre on adapting systems to digital consumption patterns (cloud storage, streaming, multifunctional devices) and ensuring compliance with EU law, particularly the requirement that compensation be effective, proportionate and linked to the harm caused to the rightsholder by the restriction of their exclusive rights.

3.2.4 Asia

Private copying in Asia is characterised by a significant gap between the existence of copyright frameworks and the effective implementation of private copying remuneration systems. Of the 48 countries and territories examined, 10 have no private copying exception at all, while 30 provide for an exception but without any accompanying remuneration mechanism. In numerous countries in this region, collection and distribution systems are either not fully operational or face structural obstacles.

In five countries of this region, the collection and distribution systems are either not fully operational or face structural obstacles involving governance disputes, enforcement issues and/or limited effective collections in recent years.

Japan, while being one of the few examples in this region of a fully operational system, still faces challenges when updating the private copying model domestically. The scope of devices subject to levy, for example, has not kept pace with technological developments, resulting in sharply declining revenues. If updated to include smartphones, tablets and PCs, private copying remunerations for Japan could reach up to 212.7 million euros for the benefit of creators (Economic Analysis, Table 4).

Overall, the Asian landscape shows that while private copying for personal use is widely tolerated in law, effective remuneration systems remain the exception rather than the rule. Most large markets—including China, India, Indonesia and South Korea—provide only uncompensated exceptions. Where levy systems exist, they are often limited in scope (primarily audiovisual and phonogram reproduction), administratively fragile, or not technologically updated. As a result, rightsholders across much of Asia do not benefit from private copying income domestically and may also be disadvantaged internationally where reciprocity conditions apply.

3.2.5 Oceania

Private copying remuneration systems are effectively absent across Oceania, with none of the sixteen studied countries and territories operating a fully functional private copying remuneration scheme.

Five countries do not provide for a private copying exception at all. The remaining jurisdictions generally include limited private copying or related exceptions in their copyright laws, but without any mechanism for compensating rightsholders.

Australia and New Zealand, the region's largest markets, allow certain forms of private copying but without compensation. The only notable development in the region is New Caledonia's 2023 legislation introducing a right to private copying remuneration; however, as noted in the Study, its implementation is currently suspended due to a moratorium.

Overall, Oceania stands out globally for the near-total absence of private copying remuneration systems. As a result, rightsholders in the region do not receive remuneration for private copying, and potential revenues—particularly in technologically advanced markets such as Australia and New Zealand—remain untapped.

3. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

3.3 FUTURE-LOOKING PERSPECTIVES

Many countries around the world now seek to make private copying regimes technologically neutral (i.e., not tied to specific media types), a shift that some countries may continue to struggle with. For example, some early implementing laws may have specified then-popular copying media, thus requiring legislative act to fully update (e.g., At Home Recording Act of 1992 (U.S.), limited in scope to certain audio recording technologies, and similar legislative provisions under Japanese law).

Private copying can also serve as an inspirational model for revitalising the ways in which user activities can still compensate creators, even provided informational challenges. Tools such as empirical analysis of copying practices and consumer surveys help to bridge gaps in reporting and reframe private copying activities in accordance with daily life. While not a perfect estimate, private copying remuneration represents a minimal impact on our day-to-day enjoyment of creative works while delivering a consistent source of support for creators.

Overall, this Third Edition of the Private Copying Global Study brings to light the many changes – and challenges – that have been brought on by digitalisation. Traditional interpretations of core concepts of private copying have been tested over time, such as the “private” nature of such copying, the copying mediums to store private copies, and the scope and permissibility of private copying activity in light of new forms of digital consumption. Yet, even considering these questions, this Study demonstrates that the private copying framework remains strongly founded on the notion that legal systems can be designed to promote and safeguard the interests of creators as well as consumers.

When implemented effectively, private copying remunerations can compensate creators for widespread copying of their works by consumers on a daily basis, support creative industries and cultural policy goals, and provide a reliable source of income for creators at a time where creative practices seem more threatened than ever. It is in these respects that the ethos of private copying continues to be as relevant and important to society as it was when it first emerged.

4.1 LEGAL FRAMEWORK AND PRACTICAL IMPLEMENTATION

The legal concept of private copying exists in many jurisdictions around the world, reflecting a shared international understanding that non-commercial copying of protected works for personal uses is an inevitable and legitimate aspect of modern cultural participation. Because private copying occurs in the private, individual sphere, the creators whose works are copied, likewise, may not otherwise be able to effectively fair remuneration for these widespread uses of their works. The transaction costs would simply be prohibitive. To receive the integrity of the private sphere and practical difficulties to establish the value of each single copy made, private copying activities are often estimation-based, where some jurisdictions may mandate empirical study as a basis for deciding the amount of remuneration to collect on a particular device or technology capable of storing copies.

The private copying exception was first introduced in the German Copyright Law in 1966, based on two previous Supreme Court decisions of 1955 and 1964, respectively, applying initially to sound and video recording equipment sales. Most continental European countries followed the German model and have granted rightsholders with a remuneration right in order to compensate for the private use of their works, and this system became a model for legislators elsewhere around the world.

One touchstone legal provision pertaining to the implementation of private copying is its formulation under EU Directive 2001/29 (“Information Society” Directive). Article 5(2) of Directive 2001/29 which provides that:

‘Member States may provide for exceptions or limitations to the reproduction right provided for in Article 2 in the following cases:

[...]

(b) in respect of reproductions on any medium made by a natural person for private use and for ends that are neither directly nor indirectly commercial, on condition that the rightsholders receive fair compensation which takes account of the application or non-application of technological measures referred to in Article 6 to the work or subject-matter concerned.’

Many key principles have also been defined by the courts in relation to the administration of private copying levies among EU Member States. Foremost, that the scope of protection of the acts covered by the reproduction right must ensure a high level of protection for authors, and that this recognition implies a broad construction of the reproduction right.<sup>7</sup> Following this, exceptions and limitations to rights included in the InfoSoc Directive would be undermined if they “were interpreted in such a way as to have the effect of excluding [...] technological developments and of the emergence in particular of digital media and cloud computing services.”<sup>8</sup> This has implied that the private copying exception under EU law must be interpreted as technology neutral, applying in cases of new exploitations of works made possible through new technologies.

Other key principles clarified by the CJEU include the following: private copies must be made by a natural person for non-commercial uses; private copies<sup>9</sup> must be made from a legal source, and under EU law fair compensation is mandatory<sup>10</sup>. Regarding the latter, while in some jurisdictions around the world (outside of Europe) a private copying exception exists, there is often no accompanying remuneration system. This runs against the notion that, as an exception to copyright, private copying deprives rightsholders of their right to authorise such copies. In this sense, private copying can best be referenced as a compensatory mechanism.

4. LEGAL BACKGROUND

4.2 REPROGRAPHY

Reprography is addressed in this Edition of the Study because of its complementary relationship with private copying. Like private copying systems, reprography levies emerged as a pragmatic response to widespread photocopying, with remuneration typically derived from levies on relevant devices and/or from blanket licensing schemes. While private copying levies generally compensate for personal, non-commercial reproductions — most often involving consumer media — reprography schemes extend this logic to copying carried out within educational, professional, or other institutional environments.

As copying technology spread in the 1960s, legislators and courts confronted the gap between strict exclusive rights and ubiquitous copying. Germany is often cited as pioneering levy-based systems, later extending its laws to reprographic contexts. Nordic countries also led the way in developing collective solutions in education: Sweden's school copying arrangements led to the formation of BONUS in 1973 to manage licensing revenues for educational copying.

Operator fees are another form of reprography remuneration in which the obligation to pay compensation is placed on the user or operator of copying equipment, rather than on the manufacturer, importer, or seller of the device. The liable party is typically an institution or organisation that operates copying equipment (e.g. schools, universities, libraries, public administrations, businesses, copy shops). Payment is often calculated by reference to actual or estimated use (number of copies, volumes, staff/student numbers, or sector-based tariffs), rather than by reference to the technical capacity or sale of a device.

Reprography levies – and reprography remuneration schemes more broadly – are designed to compensate the rightsholders in text-and-image works for copying that happens without individual permission (or under a statutory exception). Publishers and other rights-acquiring producers may also be beneficiaries of reprography levies, in addition to traditional book authors, journalists, illustrators, photographers, and visual artists.

4.3 COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION

The underlying principle of private copying remuneration is that the end user—the person who benefits from the private copying exception—should ultimately bear the cost of compensation. In practice, however, collection is organised upstream for efficiency and enforceability: compensation is most commonly collected from manufacturers and, more frequently, importers of copy-enabling devices and blank media, who are legally liable for payment to the collecting society. This approach reflects both market realities and (in the case of the EU) established CJEU case law confirming that indirect collection is compatible with EU law, provided the payment can effectively be passed on to users.

This model also protects users from the administrative and privacy risks of direct licensing. The private copying exception exists precisely because monitoring private acts of copying would be both technically unworkable and invasive of the private sphere and would lead to prohibitive transaction costs for right owners as well as users. Private copying systems therefore operate as a practical compromise: they recognise private copying as lawful, while ensuring that rightsholders receive fair compensation for harm caused by those uses. When payments are set in relation to device type and storage capacity, compensation is automatically aligned with copying potential—so households contribute in proportion to the capacity of the tools they use. The Study further provides many examples of centralised collection through one (or several) designated collecting societies based on repertoire, with importers/manufacturers reporting sales and paying the applicable remuneration.

Distribution is often more complex: collected amounts are typically allocated across categories of works (audio, audiovisual, written works, images), and then divided among rightsholder groups (authors, performers, producers, publishers) according to rules set by law, regulation, or negotiated agreements. The spread of multifunctional digital devices has also expanded the distribution logic beyond music and film, making it increasingly important to include writers, visual artists, photographers and other sectors in the distribution (or allocation) “keys”.

4. LEGAL BACKGROUND

Finally, state-funded compensation models for collecting and distributing private copying remunerations may be structurally problematic given well-established private copying principles. In EGEDA (C-470/14), the CJEU held that Spain's system of funding private copying compensation via the state budget was incompatible with EU law because it could not ensure that the cost was borne by the final users of private copies, as required by Article 5(2)(b) of the InfoSoc Directive. Beyond legal incompatibility, this approach may also be economically unstable for rightsholders: as illustrated by Finland's decision to reduce state payments for budgetary reasons in 2024, it exposes rightsholders' compensation to political trade-offs unrelated to actual copying behaviour.

4.4 SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

A distinctive feature of many private copying remuneration systems is the allocation of a defined share of collections to social and cultural funds. As demonstrated in the Study, in the majority of countries, a percentage ranging from 2-50% is deducted from the amounts collected from private copying and put towards activities that directly (or indirectly) support creators.

These funds typically finance cultural initiatives such as large-scale projects (including music festivals and film production), but also play an important role in supporting niche content, emerging talent and innovative projects that may be commercially risky. In addition, private copying-funded schemes often include professional training and development programmes for young artists, strengthening the long-term sustainability of global creative ecosystems.

Beyond their value to rightsholders, these funds also generate wider public benefits. They support cultural events and institutions that expand access to culture—often enabling cheaper or free entry to events—while promoting cultural diversity and ensuring that new voices can reach audiences. These collective allocations are widely viewed as a valuable part of private copying systems, particularly given their impact on cultural vitality and social conditions for creators.

Percentages of social and cultural deductions vary widely across Europe and globally, and are often set by law; in some cases, dedicated governance structures ensure that rightsholders participate in decisions on how funds are used. The legitimacy of such deductions has also been upheld by the CJEU, provided the funds genuinely benefit those entitled to compensation and are administered in a non-discriminatory way.

4.5 ADMINISTRATIVE OVERSIGHT AND ROLE OF COURTS

Private copying remuneration systems operate within a legal and administrative framework that requires ongoing oversight, particularly because tariff-setting, scope decisions and exemptions often involve balancing the interests of rightsholders, industry and users. As the Study shows, the way tariffs are set differs between countries: some rely on direct state intervention; others use negotiated systems between rightsholders and importers/manufacturers; and many apply models combining both approaches. Administratively, state authorities, collecting societies and courts form an interconnected structure of governance, each playing a specific role in promoting well-functioning private copying systems.

Some jurisdictions entrust specialised bodies appointed by government with identifying which devices and media should be subject to levies and with advisory capabilities or even decision powers regarding the levels of remuneration set.

Courts also play a decisive role in shaping private copying systems, both in defining their scope and in ensuring compliance with legal standards. Courts can also help determine whether devices fall within the scope of the compensation system, often through litigation initiated by industry players.

To use the EU as an example, CJEU caselaw has been especially influential in clarifying core principles such as a high level of protection for creators, "harm" as the basis for fair compensation, and the need for a link between levied devices and their presumed use for private copying. This jurisprudence has effectively set boundaries for national systems, requiring that they be justified by actual copying practices, applied in a technology neutral manner, and designed in a way that ensures fair compensation. Any resulting legislation, therefore, must represent a balance between the interests of creators, industry and consumers.

4. LEGAL BACKGROUND

Judicial oversight has also been crucial in addressing practical implementation issues, particularly around subjects such as professional use, payment obligations, refunds and cross-border transactions. Following the landmark Padawan ruling (C-467/08), the CJEU held that applying levies indiscriminately to devices acquired for clearly professional purposes is incompatible with EU law, forcing many countries to introduce exemption and refund mechanisms. The recent bluechip decision (C-822/24) further refines the concepts of payment obligation and (conditions for) refund.

Padawan triggered extensive follow-on litigation and legislative reforms, including in Spain where the levy system was temporarily replaced by a state-funded model before being struck down in EGEDA (C-470/14) for failing to ensure that the cost of compensation was borne by private copying users.

In parallel, cross-border enforcement has been shaped by rulings such as Thuiskopie v Opus (C-462/09), which confirmed that Member States have an obligation of result to ensure effective recovery of levies where the harm occurs—namely, in the consumer’s country of residence.

These decisions demonstrate that, in developing private copying jurisprudence, courts can be viewed as active drivers of the legal design and functioning of private copying remuneration systems, as well as legislators, collecting societies, or administrative authorities.

ROLES OF ADMINISTRATIVE AUTHORITIES, COLLECTING SOCIETIES AND COURTS IN PRIVATE COPYING (“PC”)

ROLE	ADMINISTRATIVE AUTHORITIES AND/OR COLLECTING SOCIETIES	COURTS
Tariff-Setting	Review the fairness of scope of PC and rates based on usage studies, stakeholder input, and the emergence of new technologies.	Review legality and proportionality of the private copying system; interpret private copying against fundamental rights considerations of involved stakeholders and copyright principles.
Monitoring Technology	Track new devices, storage media, and practices to adapt to new forms of private copying in a technology neutral manner.	Ensure that legal interpretations (e.g., exemptions, scope of PC) keep pace with technological developments.
Maintaining &amp; Reinforcing Private Copying Principles	Ensure that remuneration from PC balances rightsholder interests, private user freedoms, and business interests.	Interpret and enforce fair compensation obligations against new forms of copying; Further clarify scope of exceptions and levy mechanisms in caselaw, particularly in the digital context.

5.1 PRIVATE COPYING LEVIES ON DEVICES

In the questionnaire, representative organisations were asked to provide detailed information on private copying levies and reprography levies per device in 2025. In order to achieve maximum comparability across countries, they were asked to provide the levy applicable to a set of specific devices and storage capacities<sup>1</sup>. In addition, they were asked to provide the tariffs for other capacities, reprographic devices, refurbished devices and other devices, if applicable.

This yielded consistent information on private copying levies for a set of thirty-four countries in total, mostly in Europe. These private copying levies are presented and compared in this section. Some countries also provided detailed information on reprography levies. The latter information can be found in the individual country reports in this volume. It is not further analysed here because the number of countries providing such information is limited, while there is considerable diversity in the reprography devices levied and the capacity definitions and thresholds countries use.

Representative organisations were also asked to indicate whether there are levies on refurbished devices (and if so, whether special tariffs apply) and to indicate if there are levies on cloud storage services. While many countries have levies on refurbished devices, up until now, none of the countries responding to the questionnaire have introduced a levy on cloud storage.

5.1.1 Percentage and fixed private copying levies

Fifteen countries in the dataset, in particular countries in Eastern Europe and outside Europe, have structured private copying levies strictly as a percentage of the import price or sales price. This ensures a fixed ratio between the levy and the value of a device for the end user and makes sure that levies respond to price developments for devices. By doing so, negative effects of relatively high levies on consumer demand can be avoided. At the same time, incentives are reduced for importers, retailers and consumers to circumvent the levy system. Countries that use percentage levies typically do not differentiate this percentage based on the storage capacity of devices. Through the price of a device, the levy will naturally increase with storage capacity.

Seventeen other countries, particularly in Western and Southern Europe have a system of exclusively fixed levies per type of device. Such fixed levies often increase with the storage capacity. Fixed levies can be more transparent and predictable by not being dependent on discounts, and by not differing between retailers and brands of devices.

Only one country in the dataset, namely Slovenia, has fixed levies that depend on the price bracket in which the wholesale price of a device falls. Two countries, namely Czech Republic and Latvia, use a combination of percentage and fixed levies.

<sup>1</sup> Namely smartphones (128 and 256 GB), tablets (64, 128 and 256 GB), external hard drives (1 and 4 TB), SD/micro SD memory cards (32 and 128 GB), USB-sticks (64 and 256 GB), set top boxes with internal hard drive ( $\leq$  256 GB and  $>$ 256 GB) and NPVR subscriptions (8 hours/8 GB and 100 hours/100 GB).

5. ECONOMIC ANALYSIS

Table 1 provides an overview for all sixteen countries in this study that wholly or partially rely on percentage levies in 2025. Overall, percentage levies range from 0.35% on various devices in Kazakhstan, to 15% in Ghana.

Notes: For Czech Republic and Latvia, fixed levies are indicated with 'F'. Other symbols: *If imported, U = Unknown/not specific, I = import price/value, M = Manufacture price, S = Sales price.

Reading example: In Botswana, the levy on a smartphone with 256 GB storage capacity is 2%.

For a concise comparison, a specific capacity is chosen for each type of device, as is shown in the table. In addition, the table indicates whether countries also have reprography levies, and whether refurbished devices are subject to a levy. Note that countries may also have a levy on other devices or media which are not listed in the table, such as e-readers, smartwatches, MP3-players, blank CDs or DVDs, etc. Also note that respondents were not explicitly requested to provide information on the levy for laptops but could do so under 'All Other Devices'. As a result, this information may be missing for some countries, while in fact they do have a levy on laptops.

Another caveat when interpreting Table 1 is that while the percentage levies in the table look comparable, the price definition that they relate to may differ. Some countries charge a percentage of the sales price while others use a percentage of the import or manufacture price. The last column in the table mentions the available information for the basis for the levies. Also, the value added tax (VAT) treatment of levies may differ between countries: percentage levies may be due over the price with or without VAT.

Table 2 gives an overview for all nineteen countries in our study that report fixed private copying levies for 2025. Table 2 is limited to the same set of standardized devices in terms of storage capacity as Table 1. The table shows that most of these countries have levies on a wide range of digital devices, such as smartphones, tablets, USB-sticks and SD cards. As in Table 1, some of these countries may also have a levy on other devices or media

Slovenia has fixed levies on smartphones, tables and laptops that depend on the price bracket in which the wholesale price of a device falls. The mean of the indicated levies for Slovenia is used for calculating the median values. For Czech Republic and Latvia, percentage levies are indicated with '%'. VAT treatment of levies may differ between countries.

Reading example: In Austria, the levy on a smartphone with 256 GB internal storage capacity is EUR 5.50. The median levy on such smartphones is EUR 5.30.

The last two columns in Table 2 indicate whether countries have reprography levies, and whether levies also apply to refurbished devices. Several countries apply the same levies to refurbished devices as to new devices. These are indicated in the table as '100%'. The Netherlands and Belgium apply 60% of the tariffs for new devices, to account for the shorter lifespan of refurbished devices. France and Hungary also apply lower tariffs on refurbished devices.

The last two rows give two different calculations of the median levy for all countries. The median or 'middle' value is much less sensitive than the mean for outliers at the low or high end and is therefore a better indicator for the 'average' levy<sup>2</sup>. The first of the two medians in the table calculates the median for all countries which have a levy on that specific device. This implies that countries which do not have a levy on a specific device (or for which information is missing), are excluded in that calculation. The second calculates the median for all countries in the table, including those which have a zero levy for that specific device.

5.1.2 Correction for differences in purchasing power

The purchasing power that a levy of EUR 1 represents varies significantly between countries. In a wealthy country such as Switzerland, EUR 1 (exchanged into Swiss Francs) will buy you much less than in Kazakhstan (exchanged into Kazakhstani tenge). To shed light on the actual purchasing power that levies represent and to achieve a more adequate comparison of levy rates between countries, Table 3 gives the fixed levies from Table 2, after correction for differences in purchasing power between countries<sup>3</sup>. Correction for differences in purchasing power generally brings the levies of countries closer together.

Reading example: In Austria, the purchasing power corrected levy on a smartphone with 256 GB internal storage capacity is EUR 6.76 (EUR 5.50 without this correction, see Table 2). The purchasing power corrected median levy on such a smartphone is EUR 6.40 for all countries in the table, which implies that the Austrian levy is slightly higher than this median.

<sup>3</sup> Purchasing power parity (PPP) conversion rates for private consumption have been used. The last available year for the PPP conversion rates was 2024 (retrieved from the World Bank per January 2026). These rates are expressed as local currency units (LCU) per international dollar and have been recalculated to US dollar per international dollar using annual average exchange rates, to arrive at actual purchasing power correction factors for each year. Next, these factors have been applied to the levies and revenues expressed in EUR.

5.1.3 Revenue potential for selected countries

The median levies in Table 3 that have been corrected for differences in purchasing power, may be used to calculate the revenue potential per device type for countries that do not have such levies. This is what has been done in Table 4 for a set of five countries: Bulgaria, Japan, Mexico, Nigeria and Poland.

As a first step, the median levies from Table 3 are adjusted in line with national differences in purchasing power. For this calculation of revenue potential, the first of the two medians in the table (for all countries which have a levy on that specific device) is used. By doing so, the median levy of EUR 6.40 for a smartphone (see Table 3) translates to EUR 2.76 in Bulgaria, to EUR 4.28 in Japan etc. (see Table 4). The same has been done for computers and for tablets<sup>4</sup>.

Next, using country specific sales data for 2024 (obtained from IDC), the revenue potential based on these levies can be calculated. Thus, in Japan, for instance, the revenue potential from smartphones would be between around EUR 129 M, from computers around EUR 66 M and from tablets around EUR 25 M. For these three devices combined, the revenue potential lies around EUR 220 M. For reference purposes, the table also mentions the total population per country and the projected revenues per capita.

Note that the projected revenues for Nigeria are relatively low and may not represent the full picture of private copying potential in the country. This is due to a relatively low penetration of smartphones, tablets and laptops in the population (feature phones with less functionality are still popular in Nigeria) and relatively large secondary and grey markets for devices, which are not tracked by IDC.

Table 4: Benchmark levies and revenue potential for selected countries and devices

Country	Benchmark levy based on median values (EUR)			Revenue potential based on benchmark levy and sales (M EUR)				Population (M)	Per capita (EUR)
	Smartphone	Computer	Tablet	Smartphone	Computer	Tablet	Total
Bulgaria	2.76	3.13	2.76	3.9	0.9	0.4	5.1	6.4	0.80
Japan	4.28	4.86	4.28	129.3	66.1	25.1	212.7	124	1.78
Mexico	3.84	4.36	3.84	114.9	19.1	7.4	139.2	131	1.08
Nigeria	1.15	1.30	1.15	12.0	0.4	0.3	12.7	233	0.05
Poland	3.33	3.78	3.33	29.3	8.8	3.2	40.3	36.6	1.13

5. ECONOMIC ANALYSIS

5.1.4 Levies paid by two hypothetical households

How do the percentage levies in Table 1 and the fixed levies in Table 2 work out in practice for a typical household? And how do these outcomes compare between countries? This depends on the consumption pattern of a household<sup>5</sup>. To illustrate this, and to assess how different levy systems work out for the same household, two hypothetical households were constructed:

- A tech-savvy family, consisting of two adults and two teenagers. They all have their own state-of-the-art smartphone and laptop, which they replace every three and four years. Amongst them, they share two tablets, eight USB-sticks, two external hard drives, and two SD cards. For recording live television, they share one NPVR subscription.
- An elderly couple, that is much less keen on owning the newest devices and keeping up with technological trends. They both own a smartphone which they replace every five years, but no tablet. They share one laptop, two USB-sticks and one SD card for their digital photo camera. For recording live television, they share one NPVR subscription.

Table 5 summarizes the hypothesized device ownership per household, the number of years each device is assumed to be used before replacement, and the resulting annual number of purchases per device per person. To be able to evaluate the percentage levies, Table 5 also gives a hypothesized unit price per device for each household<sup>6</sup>.

Table 5: Device ownership, replacement rate and unit price for two hypothetical households

	Tech-savvy family				Elderly couple
	Devices in household	Years before replacement	Purchases per person per year	Unit price (EUR)	Devices in household	Years before replacement	Purchases per person per year	Unit price (EUR)
Smartphone 256 GB	4	3	0.33	600	2	5	0.20	400
Tablet 256 GB	2	5	0.10	800
External hard drive 1 TB	2	8	0.06	150
SD Memory card 128 GB	2	8	0.06	60	1	10	0.05	60
USB-stick 64 GB	8	5	0.40	15	2	8	0.13	15
Laptop 500 GB	4	4	0.25	1200	1	6	0.08	800
NPVR 100 GB	1				1

Notes: Levy for NPVR via monthly subscription does not depend on replacement rate or price.

<sup>5</sup> The high levies in Ghana (15%) must be nuanced in view of the relatively large secondary and grey markets, where levies are not paid, and relatively low penetration of digital devices compared to most European countries. For that reason, Ghana is excluded from the analysis in this section.

<sup>6</sup> As was mentioned in the context of Table 1, the price definition (basis) of percentage levies differs between countries. For the calculations in this section, it is assumed that the relevant import price or manufacture price is 50% of the unit price as indicated in Table 5. For countries where the basis is 'unknown' in Table 1, it is assumed to be the import price. For Slovenia, the levy on smartphones, tablets and laptops depends on the wholesale price. For the calculations, this wholesale price is also assumed to be 50% of the unit price in Table 5.

For the tech-savvy family, levies per person per year range from 0.05 EUR in Poland, to 9.03 EUR in France. For the elderly couple, annual levies per person are highest in Switzerland at 6.91 EUR, followed by France at 5.84 EUR. The median values are 3.19 and 1.14 EUR respectively<sup>7</sup>.

<sup>7</sup> Note that Switzerland is the only country in Table 4 and Figure 1 where the elderly couple pay more per person than the tech-savvy family. The reason for this is that in these hypothetical households, the monthly levies on the NPVR are shared between two instead of four persons.

5.2 REVENUE TRENDS

5.2.1 Total revenues

Revenue data for the years 2019 – 2024 was collected for a set of 32 countries in total. This set of countries is largely identical to the countries discussed in the previous section. Table 8 provides the total levy revenues for in each of the countries for which data are available in this time span (in 1000 current EUR). The second column indicates for each country whether also reprography levies apply.

For all countries combined, total revenues reported increased slightly from EUR 1,044 M in 2019 to EUR 1,061 M in 2024. Total revenues were highest in 2022 at EUR 1,175 M. In nominal terms, Germany and France have by far the largest revenues from private copying levies. Over the years 2019 – 2024 combined, these two countries collected 50% of total revenues reported. The last line in Table 8 shows that all EU-countries together are responsible for between 85 and 90% of revenues.

Reading example: In Austria, the total revenues from private copying and reprography levies were 26.1 M EUR in 2019.

5. ECONOMIC ANALYSIS

Figure 2 shows the development of total revenues for these 32 countries between 2007 and 2024 graphically. The red line gives total revenues for all countries in the survey combined. It shows that total revenues have plateaued since 2017 and have slightly declined since 2022. The earlier peak in 2016 is related to lawsuits and settlements<sup>8</sup>.

The chart shows two more developments:

- The blue line gives total revenues in EU countries. It illustrates that each year the EU is responsible for most revenues collected, but that the revenues in countries outside the EU (the distance between the two lines) has gradually increased.
- The green line expresses total revenues in 2025 euros. It shows that while total revenues have remained stable since 2017 in current euros, they have declined in real terms (adjusted for inflation). In real terms, total revenues in 2023-2024 are close to those in 2007-2010.

<sup>8</sup> Beginning from the current Study, reporting on reprography levies has been explicitly included in the questionnaire. Not all countries report these revenues separately from private copying levies. From the data, it appears that some countries that have such levies already reported them in their total revenues for the years 2007-2018, while some others report them only from 2019 onwards. This induces a slight upward shift in total revenues from 2019 onwards, relative to the preceding years, estimated to be around €20 million. In addition to this, there are missing values for some countries in some years due to incomplete reporting. Both issues do not significantly affect the trend shown in Figure 2.

5.2.2 Revenues per capita

Table 9 shows the total revenues per capita for the years 2019 – 2024, calculated using annual population data retrieved from the World Bank. Revenues per capita in 2024 range from 0.01 EUR or less in Canada, Ghana and Japan, to 8.89 EUR in Switzerland.

The last four rows in Table 9 give average revenues in the participating countries:

- The first of these gives the population-weighted average (mean) for each specific year. This ranges from 1.26 EUR in 2019 to 1.27 EUR in 2024, with a peak of 1.42 EUR in 2021-2022.
- The second gives the population-weighted average for the EU-countries in the dataset for each specific year. This declines slightly from 2.14 EUR in 2019 to 2.07 EUR in 2024.
- The third and fourth rows give the median revenues per capita per year, for the entire data set and for the EU countries in the set.

5. ECONOMIC ANALYSIS

Figure 3 illustrates the revenues per capita for the countries in this survey graphically. The red bars in the graph (without numbers in EUR) depict for each country the average revenues for the period 2019-2024, sorted by value. The blue bars and the numbers in EUR present the revenues per capita for each country in the study for the year 2024. These values correspond to the rightmost column in Table 9. Dashed lines give the (population-weighted) sample average (1.27 EUR) and the EU average (2.07 EUR) for 2024.

In Figure 4, the revenues per capita have been corrected for differences in purchasing power, analogous to the PPP-correction in Table 3. In this graph, the blue bars represent the 2024 revenues per capita (identical to the blue bars in Figure 3), while the red bars represent the PPP-corrected values. The countries have been sorted based on the latter. It shows that corrected for purchasing power, Switzerland has the highest revenues per capita, followed by Portugal, Hungary and France. The dashed vertical lines indicate the PPP-corrected sample average and EU-average and can be interpreted in comparison to the red bars.

INTRODUCTION AFRICA

Since the 2020 edition of the Global Study, the private copying remuneration landscape in Africa has continued to evolve, with the past five years marked by notable progress, increased political awareness, and clearer momentum toward more harmonised implementation. Several countries have strengthened existing frameworks and advanced long-delayed reforms, reflecting a maturing understanding of the role of private copying in the advancement of African authors and creators.

In 2025, the countries operating fully functional systems include Algeria, Botswana, Burkina Faso, Cabo Verde, Cameroon, Côte d'Ivoire, Ghana, Kenya, Malawi, Morocco, Nigeria, Tanzania and Tunisia. This grouping has expanded since 2020, reflecting gradual consolidation and the impact of recent legislative reforms. Notably, Nigeria and Tanzania joined this category following statutory changes that strengthened and activated their private copying remuneration frameworks. Legislative and regulatory amendments in Morocco and Ghana are also expected to further reinforce implementation in the coming years.

A substantial number of countries - largely consistent with the 2020 mapping - continue to provide for remuneration in their legislation without operational systems in place. This group comprises Angola, Benin, Burundi, Chad, Djibouti, Gabon, Guinea, Madagascar, Mali, Mauritius, Mauritania, Mozambique, Niger, the Democratic Republic of the Congo and Senegal. Within this category, Guinea and Mauritania have entered following legislative upgrades, and Senegal has advanced implementing decrees aimed at activating its existing framework.

The largest group continues to consist of countries that recognise a private copying exception but do not provide for remuneration. This category includes the Central African Republic, Comoros, Congo, Egypt, Eritrea, Ethiopia, The Gambia, Lesotho, Libya, Namibia, Rwanda, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, South Africa, South Sudan, Uganda and Zimbabwe, as well as São Tomé and Príncipe, which has regressed from a previously remunerated framework. Several countries—Equatorial Guinea, Guinea-Bissau and Liberia—have moved into this group after introducing private copying exceptions without establishing remuneration mechanisms. A small number of countries—Somalia, Zambia and Sudan—still lack an explicit private copying exception, with Sudan representing a clear legal regression; however, Zambia has recently tabled a bill that would introduce a private copying remuneration system, signalling potential progress.

At the regional level, two major policy developments have shaped the African private copying environment since 2020. The adoption of the ARIPO Regional Strategy on Private Copying (2025) represents a significant milestone, providing a series of recommendations for Member States to consider when reviewing or establishing their national frameworks, including guidance on legislative design, enforcement practices and cooperation with customs authorities.

In parallel, the UEMOA regional directive (Directive No. 07/2023/CM/UEMOA) has now entered its implementation period, marking a positive and concrete step toward greater harmonisation across West Africa. To support this directive, The UEMOA Guide and Toolkit on private copying remuneration was also published by WIPO in 2025, providing a practical roadmap for implementation, including national task forces, stakeholder consultations, concordance tables, and drafting techniques, while emphasizing the technical complexity of private copying mechanisms and the need for coordinated governance.

More recently, at its 39th Ordinary Session held in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia (February 2026), the Assembly of the African Union adopted the Annexes to the Protocol on Intellectual Property Rights, including the Copyright Annex, which under Article 26 introduces a regional obligation for State Parties to provide for private copying levies in the context of private reproduction for personal use.

Taken together, these regional and international initiatives signal a strengthening policy commitment to private copying remuneration in Africa in the years ahead, and create favourable conditions for broader and more coherent adoption of private copying systems across the continent.

While private copying systems in Africa continue to face structural and operational challenges, the past five years have demonstrated clear and measurable progress. Given recent initiatives, such systems are now better positioned than ever to continue to harmonise and improve.

(11) The provisions of subsections (1) to (4) inclusive and (6), (7) and (10) shall be construed as embracing the right to use the work in question either in its original language or in a different language, and the right of translation of the author shall, in the latter event, be deemed not to have been infringed.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

The Copyright Amendment Bill (CAB) in South Africa remains pending, having been referred to the Constitutional Court for review due to constitutional concerns, delaying its enactment despite being one of 20 bills awaiting presidential assent. Originating from a legislative process initiated in 2015 to update the Copyright Act of 1978, the CAB introduces major reforms including fair use, enhanced regulation of collecting societies, and provisions aligned with the Marrakesh Treaty. The Constitutional Court's review will focus on its compatibility with Section 25 (property rights), Section 16 (freedom of expression), and South Africa's obligations under TRIPS and the Berne Convention, which must be resolved before presidential assent and promulgation can occur.

LEGAL BASIS

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Law No. 005/PR/2003 of May 2nd, 2003 on the Protection of Copyright, Neighboring rights and Expressions of Folklore

Article 113: The authors and performers of works fixed in phonograms or videograms and the producers of such phonograms or videograms shall be entitled to remuneration for the reproduction of such works intended for strictly personal and private use, not for collective use, and produced pursuant to Article 34 of the present Law.

Article 114: Remuneration for private copying shall be paid by the manufacturer or importer of recording media that can be used for the reproduction for private use of works fixed in phonograms or videograms, when such media are put into circulation in the Republic of Chad. The amount of the remuneration shall be based on the type of medium and the length of recording that it allows. It shall be assessed according to the lump-sum method.

Article 115: The types of medium, the remuneration rates and the procedures for payment of the remuneration shall be laid down in regulations; such remuneration may not be less than 10 per cent of the price of the medium.

Article 116: Remuneration for private copying shall be collected on behalf of the successors in title by the Chadian Copyright Office. Remuneration for the private copying of phonograms shall be shared out as follows: half to the authors, one quarter to the performers and one quarter to the producers. Remuneration for the private copying of videograms shall be shared out equally among the authors, performers and producers.

Article 117: Remuneration for private copying shall be reimbursable where the recording medium is acquired for their own use or production by:

- 1 - audiovisual communication companies;
- 2 - producers of phonograms and videograms and persons who or which reproduce phonograms or videograms on behalf of the producers thereof;
- 3 - legal persons or organizations, a list of which shall be drawn up by the Ministry responsible for culture, that use recording media for the purpose of assisting visually or aurally impaired persons.

Article 118: The manufacture, assembly, sale, exchange, hire or making available to the public in any way of any digital audio recording apparatus that does not have a digital audio anti-copying device shall be subject to prior authorization by the Ministry responsible for culture. The same authorization shall be required for any apparatus, process, device or service, the purpose of which is to remove, bypass, deactivate and more generally make inoperative a digital audio anti-copying device or a device for limiting the possibility of copying or recopying. A regulatory text shall lay down the rules exempting certain digital audio recording apparatuses from the preceding provisions, where such apparatuses are intended exclusively for lawful professional purposes. The present Article and any provisions that may be enacted under the foregoing paragraphs shall not impede the implementation of the provisions of Chapter 1 of this part of the Law concerning recording media that can be used by means of digital processes.

Chapter 2: Copyright Office

Article 119: A public administrative institution known as the Chadian Copyright Office, abbreviated as BUTDRA, is hereby created under the Ministry responsible for culture.

Pursuant to the present Law, BUTDRA shall be responsible for the collective management of copyright and neighboring rights.

In that capacity it shall be responsible for:

- 1 – the organization and representation of authors of literary and artistic works and their successors in title;
- 2 – the promotion and defense of the professional, material and moral interests of such authors and their successors in title;
- 3 – the promotion of national creativity in the literary, artistic and scientific fields;
- 4 – exclusive administration on the territory of the Republic of Chad of all the economic rights of its members that it may have determined;
- 5 – the safeguarding and promotion of Chad's folk heritage.

A decree adopted by the Council of Ministers on the advice of the National Coordinating Body of Chadian Artists or of any other appropriate body shall determine its functions, organization and operating procedures.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

General Scheme:

Art. 85 of the Law on the Protection of Literary and Artistic Property, Law L/2019/0028/AN

Article 87:

Authors and performers of works recorded on phonograms, videograms or audiovisual recordings, as well as the producers of such phonograms or videograms, are entitled to remuneration for the reproduction of said works for strictly personal and private use and not for collective use. Remuneration for private copying is collected on behalf of the rights holders by the professional collective management organisation, which must, after deducting management costs, allocate 35% of the sums collected to a cultural promotion fund managed by the collective management organisation.

It is set at a minimum of 10% of the sale price of the said media.

The remainder is redistributed as follows:

- with regard to private copies of phonograms, the remuneration is divided equally between authors, performers and producers;
- with regard to private copies of videograms or audiovisual fixations, the remuneration is divided equally between authors, performers and producers.

General Scheme:

Article 88:

Remuneration for private copying shall be paid by the manufacturer or importer of recording media that can be used for the private reproduction of works fixed on phonograms or videograms or audiovisual fixations, when such media are put into circulation in the Republic of Guinea.

However, persons or institutions listed in a decree issued by the Minister of Culture may, under certain conditions, be exempted from paying remuneration for private copying in the following cases:

- when the recording media are acquired for professional use by the production and publishing industries;
- when the recording media are acquired for the purpose of assisting the visually or hearing impaired.

Article 89:

The amount of remuneration shall depend on the type of media and the recording time or storage capacity it allows. It shall be assessed on a flat-rate basis.

The types of media, the rates of remuneration and the terms of payment thereof shall be determined by regulation, without such remuneration being less than 10% of the price of the media.

Reprographic Devices:

Article 90:

Authors of printed works and publishers of such works are entitled to remuneration for reproduction for strictly personal and private use. The remuneration provided for in this article shall be paid by the manufacturer or importer of devices that can be used for the private reproduction of a printed work, when such devices are placed on the market in the Republic of Guinea. The types of devices subject to remuneration and the rate of such remuneration, as well as the terms of payment, shall be determined by regulation.

The remuneration provided for in this article shall be collected on behalf of the rights holders or their successors in title by the collective management organisation. It shall be distributed in equal shares to authors, publishers and the cultural promotion fund provided for in Article 87 above.

LEVY ONLY

Art. 116

The authors and performers of works fixed on phonograms or videograms, and the producers of these phonograms or videograms, are entitled to remuneration for the reproduction of the said works carried out under the conditions specified in Article 43(4) and Article 115(2). Authors are entitled to remuneration for the reprographic reproduction of their works carried out under the conditions specified in Article 43(4).

Art. 117

Subject to international agreements, the right to remuneration referred to in Articles 108 and 116 is shared between the authors, performers and producers of phonograms or videograms for phonograms and videograms fixed for the first time in Madagascar.

Art. 118

Remuneration for private copying and reprography, under the conditions specified below, shall be assessed in accordance with the lump-sum method provided for in Article 63(2).

Art. 120

The types of medium, the remuneration rates and the procedures for paying the remuneration shall be determined by a commission presided over by the Minister for Culture and Communication and composed in addition as follows: – half shall consist of persons appointed by organizations representing the beneficiaries of the remuneration right, – one-sixth shall consist of persons representing the body administering copyright and related rights, – one-sixth shall consist of persons appointed by the organizations representing the manufacturers or importers of the machines and media referred to in the first paragraph of the preceding article, – one-sixth shall consist of persons appointed by organizations representing consumers.

Art. 121

The remuneration provided for in Article 116 shall be paid for and on behalf of the author's successors in title by the body referred to in Title II of this book. It shall be shared among the successors in title by the body referred to in the preceding paragraph, on the basis of the private reproductions made of each work.

Art. 122

Remuneration for the private copying of phonograms shall be shared out as follows: – half to the authors, – one quarter to the performers, and – one quarter to the producers as reimbursement under the conditions set out in Article 123 below. Remuneration for the private copying of videograms shall be distributed in equal shares to the authors, performers and producers as reimbursement under the conditions set out in Article 123. Remuneration for reprography shall be shared out as follows: – three-quarters to the authors, and – one quarter for the subsidy fund for the publication of literary works. The aforementioned remuneration and the administration of the reimbursement fund shall be allocated to the body referred to in Article 124 which shall establish the operating rules.

Art. 123

Remuneration for private copying shall give rise to a reimbursement where the recording medium is acquired for their own use or production by:

- 1) legally constituted audiovisual communication companies;
- 2) legally constituted producers of phonograms or videograms and the persons who reproduce these phonograms or videograms for or on behalf of their producers;
- 3) legal entities or bodies, a list of which shall be drawn up by the Minister for Culture and Communication, that use the recording media for the purpose of assisting visually or aurally impaired persons.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Law No. 2017-012/ of June 1, 2017 Establishing the Regime of Literary and Artistic Property

Article 133

Authors and performers of works recorded on phonograms or videograms, as well as the producers of such phonograms or videograms, shall be entitled to remuneration for the reproduction of such works for strictly personal and private use and not for collective use.

Article 134

Remuneration for private copying shall be based on blank analogue or digital recording media, whether removable or not, and on recording and reprographic devices.

The manufacturer and importer of these media and devices are required to pay, on the quantities they make available to the public, remuneration known as 'private copying remuneration' in return for the facility they offer to users of their media and devices to reproduce, in the form of phonograms and videograms, for personal use, works lawfully communicated to the public.

Article 135

The remuneration for private copying is set at 10% of the CIF value of the aforementioned media and devices when they are imported and at 5% of their market value if they are manufactured in Mali.

The following are subject to the private copying levy:

- a. sound, image and text recorders;
- b. telephone devices equipped with systems for recording, storing and/or sharing files of literary and artistic works;
- c. USB keys, hard drives, memory cards and similar devices;
- d. photocopiers;
- e. scanners for non-biomedical use;
- f. printing machines and, in general, any device, apparatus or system used to reproduce works;
- g. all blank media and devices used to record, store or reproduce sound, text or images.

Article 136

However, remuneration for private copying does not apply when the media and devices specified above are intended for professional use by press organisations or for the recording of works for the needs of specialised public institutions for disabled persons.

Article 137

Remuneration for private copying shall be collected with the assistance of the customs, trade and competition authorities, which shall be required to inform the professional collective management organisation in good time of any intention to import or any importation of the items referred to in Article 135 of this Law of which they are aware.

Article 138

Remuneration for private copying shall be collected on behalf of the rightholders by the professional collective management organisation, which shall, after deducting management costs, allocate 50% of the sums collected to a cultural promotion fund. The remainder shall be redistributed as follows:

- a) With regard to private copies of phonograms, 50% of the remuneration shall go to authors, 25% to performers and 25% to producers;
- b) With regard to private copies of videograms, the remuneration shall be divided equally between authors, performers and producers.

Title IV

Private Copying

Article 124. Private reproduction, for personal use, of a work on blank magnetic media gives rise to remuneration for the author, the performing artist, and the producer of the phonograms or videograms of the work thus reproduced, under the conditions set forth in Articles 126 to 129 of this law.

Article 125. The manufacturer and the importer of magnetic tapes or other blank media, as well as of recording devices, are required to pay, on the quantities of media and devices they make available to the public, a levy hereinafter referred to as the “private copying levy,” in consideration of the possibility they provide to users of their media and devices to reproduce at home, in the form of phonograms and videograms, for personal use, works lawfully communicated to the public.

Article 126. Exempted from payment of the levy referred to in Article 125 above are media and devices intended for the professional recording of works, for recording not involving works, and for the recording of works for the needs of public institutions specialized in services for persons with disabilities and their associations.

However, the private copying levy is due for all quantities placed on the market when the liable party has not precisely determined the number of media and devices exempted from payment of the levy under the cases provided for in the first paragraph of this Article.

Article 128. The party liable for the private copying levy must regularly communicate to the institution in charge of copyright management the actual quantities of media and devices, produced locally or imported, together with their public sale price, intended for private use. The terms of application of this Article shall be set by regulation.

LEGAL BASIS

Ordinance No. 2010-95 of December 23, 2010 on Copyright, Neighbouring Rights, and Traditional Cultural Expressions

Article 10: Free Reproduction for Private Purposes

Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 9, and subject to paragraph 2 of this Article and to Articles 25, 26, and 27, it is permitted, without the author's authorisation and without payment of remuneration, to reproduce a lawfully published work exclusively for the private use of the user.

The above provisions do not apply to the reproduction of:

- (i) works of architecture in the form of buildings or other similar constructions;
- (ii) reprographic reproduction of works of fine art produced in limited editions, the graphic presentation of musical works (sheet music), and exercise manuals and other publications intended for single use;
- (iii) the whole or substantial parts of databases;
- (iv) computer programs, except in the cases provided for in Article 16;
- (v) a work where such reproduction would conflict with the normal exploitation of the work or cause unjustified prejudice to the legitimate interests of the author.

Article 27: Equitable Remuneration for Reproduction for Private Purposes

Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 9, it is permitted, without the author's authorisation but subject to the payment of equitable remuneration, to reproduce, exclusively for the private use of the user, a lawfully published audiovisual work or a sound recording of a work.

The equitable remuneration for reproduction for private purposes in the cases provided for in the first paragraph shall be paid by the producers and importers of devices and material supports used for such reproduction, and shall be collected and distributed by the Bureau Nigérien du Droit d'Auteur.

The distribution of the equitable remuneration payable to authors under this Article, and to performers and producers of phonograms under Article 64, shall be carried out among these three groups of right holders in accordance with the regulations in force.

However, the material supports referred to in the above paragraph are exempt from the payment of equitable remuneration:

- (i) where they are exported;
- (ii) where they cannot normally be used for the reproduction of works for private purposes (such as professional equipment and material supports, or dictaphones and the cassettes used for them).

LEVY ONLY

Article 65: Equitable Remuneration for Private Reproduction

Notwithstanding the provisions of Articles 59 and 60 above, it is permitted, without the authorisation of the performer whose performance is fixed on a phonogram and without the authorisation of the producer of the phonogram, but subject to the payment of equitable remuneration as provided for in Article 26, paragraph 2 above, in their favour, to reproduce a phonogram exclusively for the private use of the user.

Paragraphs 2 to 4 of Article 26 are also applicable with regard to the equitable remuneration referred to in the first paragraph of this Article.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Article 27: Equitable Remuneration for Reproduction for Private Purposes

(...) The equitable remuneration for reproduction for private purposes in the cases provided for in the first paragraph shall be paid by the producers and importers of devices and material supports used for such reproduction, and shall be collected and distributed by the Bureau Nigérien du Droit d'Auteur.

The distribution of the equitable remuneration payable to authors under this Article, and to performers and producers of phonograms under Article 64, shall be carried out among these three groups of right holders in accordance with the regulations in force. (...)

Article 100

In order to enable the implementation of the right of importation and the right to remuneration for private copying, as provided for respectively in Articles 9, 27, and 65 of this Ordinance, an import visa is hereby established for artistic and literary works, as well as for blank media and other devices used to fix or reproduce such works.

The import visa shall be issued by the Bureau Nigérien du Droit d'Auteur, in accordance with modalities to be specified by regulation.

EXEMPTION AND REFUND

There is an exemption in case of export.

With regard to ex-ante exemptions, the organizations or individual companies concerned are listed by law and must be statutorily qualified, for example by showing proof of lawful activity and payment of income tax. An ex-post refund is possible where the recording medium or device is acquired for own use or production by broadcasting organizations, by producers of phonograms or videograms, or by legal persons or organizations listed by the Minister of Culture. For the third category only, a refund applies if the media are used to assist the visually or hearing impaired. Only importers are qualified for refunds; third parties are not.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

In practise, customs are in charge of collecting in virtue of agreement between SODAV and Customs and importers and manufacturers have to declare their goods to customs.

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Payment is due on importation.

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Importers and manufacturers can be audited by customs during good receipts (airport, port, etc.). They fulfil customs reports, review of the importer's documentation and inspection in retail shops.

In case of reasonable doubts concerning the correctness of reports they can ask SODAV endorsement. Customs are in charge of collecting. Inspection of customs reports, review of the importers' documentation (declaration form) and inspections in retail shops.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

SODAV and Customs authorities will jointly sign a contract to collect private copy levies. As custom administration is membership of Private Copy Commission (1 representative) it augurs a good relationship based on fair and friendly relationship.

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

Both private copying and reprography remunerations in Burkina Faso include a social and cultural deduction paid to the Cultural Promotion Fund. For private copying, general scheme 35% of the total amount collected is allocated to this fund, and for reprography, the remuneration is divided equally between authors, publishers, and the Cultural Promotion Fund. The deduction supports cultural, educational, and social programmes benefiting the country's creative sector.

LEGAL BASIS

Law No. 048-2019/AN on the Protection of Literary and Artistic Property, Burkina Faso

General Scheme:

Article 85: Notwithstanding the provisions of Articles 77 to 82 of this Act, the following acts are permitted without the authorisation of the rightholders mentioned in those Articles:

reproductions strictly reserved for the private use of the person making them;

Article 87: Authors and performers of works fixed on phonograms or videograms or audiovisual fixations, as well as the producers of such phonograms or videograms, shall be entitled to remuneration for the reproduction of such works for strictly personal and private use and not for collective use.

Remuneration for private copying shall be collected on behalf of the rightholders by the professional collective management organisation, which shall, after deducting management costs, allocate thirty-five per cent of the sums collected to a cultural promotion fund managed by the collective management organisation. The remainder shall be redistributed as follows:

- in the case of private copies of phonograms, the remuneration shall be divided equally between the authors, performers and producers;
- in the case of private copies of videograms or audiovisual fixations, the remuneration shall be divided equally between the authors, performers and producers.

Article 88: Remuneration for private copying shall be paid by the manufacturer or importer of recording media that can be used for the private reproduction of works fixed on phonograms or videograms or audiovisual fixations, when such media are put into circulation in Burkina Faso.

However, persons or institutions listed in a decree issued by the Minister of Culture may, under certain conditions, be exempted from paying remuneration for private copying in the following cases:

- when the recording media are acquired for professional use by the production and publishing industries;
- when the recording media are acquired for the purpose of assisting the visually or hearing impaired.

Article 89: The amount of remuneration shall depend on the type of media and the recording time or storage capacity it allows. It shall be assessed on a flat-rate basis.

The types of media, the rates of remuneration and the terms of payment of this remuneration shall be determined by regulation, but shall not be less than ten per cent of the price of the media.

RATE SETTING

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

General Scheme: Fixed by decree at 3% of CIF value for imports or 3% of ex-factory price for local goods.

Reprographic Devices: Based on reprographic acts and on the manufacture/importation of reprographic tools and systems [Law 2016-555, Art. 106].

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

General Scheme: Type of medium/device and its declared customs (CIF) or ex-factory value.

Reprographic Devices: Type of reprographic system, its reproduction capacity, and declared value [Decree 2021-633, Arts. 3–5].

REFURBISHED DEVICES

Refurbished devices are not subject to PC Levy.

EXEMPTION AND REFUND

Are exempted from the levy payment obligation:

1—Professional use: Audiovisual, broadcasting, and production companies may claim reimbursement [Law 2016, Art. 104].

Professional press and audiovisual operators may obtain reimbursement after declaration.

2- institutions for people with disabilities [Law 2016, Art. 104].

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS THE COLLECTION ORGANISED?

BURIDA collects directly. Importers and manufacturers must file declarations on official forms provided by the CMO, and BURIDA may request additional supporting documents.

Payment is due at customs clearance for imports or before locally produced goods are marketed.

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Through mandatory declarations, quarterly reports and inspections by sworn officers of the CMO

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

In Côte d'Ivoire, collaboration with Customs is ensured through a clearance condition: imported goods subject to the private copying levy cannot be released by Customs unless the importer presents proof of declaration and payment to BURIDA.

RATE SETTING

Private copying: Levies are set by BMDAV, following proposals from the Commission de la Copie Privée, with the list of equipment and applicable rates adopted by decree. Tariffs are based on the type and technical capacity of the device/media and the quantities placed on the market.

Reprography: Reprographic remuneration applies to devices designated by joint ministerial decision. The levy is set at 10% of the production cost for locally manufactured devices and 10% of the customs value for imported devices, both calculated excluding taxes. Amending Decree No. 2-25-550 (30/09/2025) later refined the system by introducing three proportional brackets (10%, 6%, 4%) with an overall ceiling of 350,000 MAD.

EXEMPTION AND REFUND

Exports are exempt from levy payment, and professional-use exemptions apply only to the specific categories listed in Article 59 of Law 2-00—namely audiovisual communication operators, phonogram and videogram producers, public administrations, public bodies serving persons with disabilities, and Moroccan associations serving persons with disabilities. These entities are exempt when devices and recording media are intended for their own use, and the exemption operates under regulatory conditions and on the basis of a convention concluded with the BMDAV. No additional consumer exemptions exist beyond these categories. Ex-ante exemptions are administered jointly by BMDAV and Customs, while ex-post refunds may be granted for exported goods or verified exempt uses, typically upon request by the importer, who must provide the required supporting documentation.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

BMDAV collects directly and via Customs; Customs ensure levy payment at import.

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Levy payable before customs clearance; distribution at year-end

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

BMDAV inspectors verify compliance; may coordinate with authorities.

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

Under General and Reprographic Schemes: BMDAV

Law No. 2-00 on Copyright and Related Rights (promulgated by Dahir No. 1-00-20 of 9 Dhul- Qa'dah 1420 (February 15, 2000), and amended up to Law No. 79-12)

Article 12: - Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 10 above, and subject to the second paragraph of this Article, it is permitted, without the author's authorization and without payment of remuneration, to reproduce a lawfully published work exclusively for the private use of the user.

The preceding paragraph does not apply to:

- b. the reprographic reproduction of an entire book or of a musical work in graphic form (sheet music);

Article 59.1: In accordance with Articles 1 and 12 of Law No. 2-00, authors, performers of works recorded on phonograms or videograms, as well as producers of such phonograms or videograms, are entitled to remuneration for the private and legal reproduction of said works for personal use.

Article 59.3

The private-copying levy is calculated on a flat-rate basis by the Moroccan Copyright Office for recording devices and recording media, according to their nature and their technical characteristics.

Article 59.4

Any person liable for the private-copying levy must pay it to the Moroccan Copyright Office and must regularly provide the Office with the actual quantities of recording devices and media—whether locally produced or imported—intended for private use, together with an indication of their retail sale price.

Reprographic Devices:

Amending Decree No. 2-25-550 (2025)

Article 3

The remuneration rates imposed on reprographic devices under Article 2.24 of Law No. 2.00 are set as follows:

- 10% of the production cost for reprographic devices manufactured locally;
- 10% of the customs value for imported reprographic devices.

These amounts are calculated without including taxes.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Article 59.8

Persons liable for the private-copying levy, as well as the parties referred to in Article 59.5 of this Law, must declare to the Moroccan Copyright Office (BMDAV), within the deadlines set by regulation, all necessary information relating to recording devices and/or blank media, whether locally manufactured or imported, that are intended for the reproduction of works, and must simultaneously proceed with payment of the levy on said devices and media.

The declaration must include the following mandatory information:

- the identity of the liable party (name or corporate name);
- the address of the establishment;
- the type of device or medium subject to the private-copying levy;
- the quantity of devices or media;
- the retail sale price of the devices and media, all taxes included;
- the purchase price.

For this purpose, appropriate forms are made available to liable parties by the Moroccan Copyright Office. The Office may also require the submission of additional documents and information to complete the declarations mentioned above.

Article 59.9

The declaration and payment of the levy due must be carried out before the placing on the market of devices and media manufactured locally. With respect to imported goods, the declaration and payment of the levy must occur before customs clearance. Goods subject to the private-copying levy may not be cleared through customs unless the importer proves to the Customs and Indirect Tax Administration that he has completed the declarations and payments referred to in Article 59.8 above. Proof must be provided by submitting to the customs services a copy of the declaration duly validated by the Moroccan Copyright Office.

This measure applies to goods consisting of usable recording media as well as recording devices and any material intended for the manufacture or assembly of recording devices.

The parties referred to in Article 59.5 of this Law must provide the Customs and Indirect Tax Administration with the exemption certificate issued by the Moroccan Copyright Office.

Decree No. 2.15.646 Pursuant to Articles 59.5, 59.7 and 59.8 of Law 2.00 on Copyright and Related Rights

Article 2

Pursuant to Article 59.8 of the aforementioned Law No. 2-00, those subject to the private copying levy and the parties referred to in Article 59.5 of the aforementioned Law No. 2-00 shall make a declaration to this effect to the Moroccan Copyright Office within twenty (20) days before the release of the work on the national territory or before any customs clearance procedure;

Reprographic Devices:

Article 1

In application of Article 1.24 of Law No. 2.00 on copyright and neighbouring rights, the list of reprographic devices subject to reprography remuneration is determined by joint decision of the governmental authority responsible for communication and the competent governmental authority for copyright.

Article 2

To implement the first paragraph of Article 3.24 of Law No. 2.00, any party required to pay reprographic remuneration to the BMDAV must provide all information relating to reprographic devices at least twenty (20) days before placing such devices on the market, whether they are manufactured domestically or imported.

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

Levies are determined by ministerial regulations issued under Section 53 of the Copyright and Neighbouring Rights Act, 2023. The Copyright Levy Regulations (GN No. 378/2023, amended by GN No. 772/2023) specify the devices subject to the levy and provide that the levy is calculated on the taxable value of the device (import CIF value or factory price for locally produced goods), in accordance with the Excise (Management and Tariff) Act.

AFRICA: COUNTRIES WITH A PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATION SYSTEM AND COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION MECHANISMS

TANZANIA

RATE SETTING

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

The criteria used are the type of device or medium capable of copying works and its taxable value, assessed under the Excise Act.

EXEMPTION AND REFUND

No exemptions or refunds foreseen.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Collection is carried out by the Tanzania Revenue Authority (TRA) at the point of import or manufacture, using customs/excise procedures, and transferred to a designated account of the Copyright Office (Reg. 5, GN No. 378/2023).

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Payment is due upon customs clearance for imports or release from factory for locally produced devices (Reg. 4, GN No. 378/2023, as amended by GN No. 772/2023).

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

COSOTA receives the levy from TRA and then allocates it: 60% is transferred to licensed Collective Management Organisations (CMOs) for onward distribution to rightsholders.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

The Regulations fix a 20% share to COSOTA for administration of the levy

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

Rightsholders represented by licensed CMOs (e.g., authors, composers, performers, producers and other categories that CMOs cover under their mandates).

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

By the CMOs' distribution rules, which operate under the licensing/oversight framework of COSOTA

HOW DO RIGHTSHOLDER CLAIM THEIR DISTRIBUTION?

By being members or mandatories of an approved CMO, which receives the 60% share and pays out according to its distribution rules

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

The levy distribution allocates 10 % to the Culture and Arts Trust Fund. The purpose is to finance cultural development and the arts in Tanzania through the Culture and Arts Trust Fund. The beneficiaries are the wider cultural sector – cultural institutions, programs, and projects supported by the Fund – rather than individual rightsholders.

Copyright and Neighbouring Rights Act (Chapter 218), 2023

12.

Notwithstanding the provisions of section 9, the following uses of a protected work, either in the original or in translation, shall be permissible without the author's consent and the obligation to pay remuneration for the use of the work-

- (a) in case of any work except computer programs and architectural works, that has been lawfully published-
  - (i) the production, translation, adaptation, arrangement or other transformation of such work exclusively for the user's own personal and private use provided that, the reproduction does not conflict with normal exploitation of the work and does not unreasonably prejudice the legitimate interest of the author;

53.

(1) There is imposed a copyright levy at a rate of 1.5 percent to be charged on the value of radio/TV set enabling recording, analogue audio recorders, analogue video recorders, CD/DVD copier, digital jukebox Vinyl, Mini Disc, Compact Disc (CD), Digital Versatile Disk (DVD), SD Memory and MP 3 player.

(2) The Minister shall, upon consultation with the Minister responsible for finance, make regulations prescribing the manner and modality under which the levy shall be collected and accounted for.

Regulation 5, GN No. 378/2023

5.

(1) The copyright levy shall be collected by the Tanzania Revenue Authority in accordance with the ordinary customs and revenue collection procedures.

(2) The levy collected under this regulation shall be deposited into a bank account maintained by the Office for that purpose.

(3) For purposes of implementation of subregulation (2), the Office shall, in writing, notify the Tanzania Revenue Authority of the bank account into which the levy collected shall be deposited.

Regulation 6, GN No. 378/2023

6.

(1) The Office shall pay appropriate remuneration due to an author or an organisation out of the levy collected under these Regulations in accordance with the following distribution:

- (a) ten percent to the Culture and Arts Trust Fund;
- (b) twenty percent to the Office for administration purposes;
- (c) ten percent as dividend to the Government; and
- (d) sixty percent shall be distributed equally among all collective management organisations.

(2) The organisations shall further distribute the remuneration for musical, audiovisual and literary works in accordance with the Distribution Rules approved by the Office.

ORGANIZATIONS

Part VII – Collective Management of Rights, Copyright and Neighbouring Rights Act, 2023

Section 57

(1) A collective management organisation shall not operate in Tanzania without a licence issued by the Office.

(2) The Office shall not licence a collective management organisation in respect of the same bundle of rights and category of works if there exists another organisation that has already been licensed under this Act.

(3) A person who operates as a collecting organisation without a licence commits an offence and on conviction, shall be liable to a fine of not less than ten million shillings but not exceeding twenty million shillings.

Section 59(1)

The Office shall licence a collective management organisation where-

- (a) it is satisfied that the collective management organisation is capable of promoting its members' interests and of discharging its functions and objectives;
- (b) it consists of at least thirty members; and
- (c) the organisation is incorporated under the Companies Act.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

Distribution has not yet been carried out due to challenges in ensuring equitable allocation across all categories. We have since made amendments to the Copyright Levy Regulation, specifically concerning the 60% share allocated to artists under Regulation 6(1)(d), by introducing a new distribution model based on approved devices and actual usage of the works. The regulation is currently under review at the Ministry level, pending approval and signature by the Honorable Minister responsible.

The breakdown is as follows:

No.	Category	Percentage
1	Music	20%
2	Audiovisual works	15%
3	Literary works	10%
4	Visual Arts	7.5%
5	Performing Arts	7.5%

The same rules as those applicable to import customs duties or those provided for in the Code of Tax Rights and Procedures in the domestic regime shall apply to this tax for the purposes of collection, control, detection of infringements, penalties, disputes, limitation periods and refunds.

INTRODUCTION NORTH & SOUTH AMERICA

The picture of private copying in North and South America is an incomplete one, with many countries struggling to advance their efforts towards supporting the implementation of the exception with some form of remuneration. Unlike European countries, many countries in this region may recognise a statutory private copying exception (often limited to one copy, personal use, non-commercial), while not recognising an accompanying levy. In some countries such as Ecuador and Mexico, political battles have been fought to introduce (and maintain) a well-functioning, fully implemented private copying system.

In the United States and Canada, while the vestiges of the private copying system still exist, the scope of such levies has narrowed significantly over time. Only few recordable media are considered subject to the levy, and this list has not been expanded. Nevertheless, they are considered fully implemented systems.

In South America, only few other countries have a fully implemented private copying system: Paraguay and Peru. Most other countries have a limited exception with no remuneration scheme: Antigua & Barbuda, Bahamas, Barbados, Belize, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominica, El Salvador, Grenada, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Saint Kitts & Nevis, Saint Lucia, Saint Vincent & the Grenadines, Suriname, Trinidad & Tobago and Venezuela. Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Ecuador, Guyana, Jamaica and Uruguay currently have no private copying exception in place.

In the case of several of the Caribbean countries listed above, the Association of Caribbean Copyright Societies (ACCS) has started a project in 2025 to assess the potential introduction of private copying levies in multiple countries in the region. A Feasibility Study was completed for the countries Barbados, Jamaica, St. Lucia, and Trinidad and Tobago to examine the possible economic impact private copying would have on the cultural industry. The Study concluded that by 2030 even modest private copying income could “add up to a reliable income stream that is not dependent on tourism or live events,” and could provide regional creators with “newfound financial stability [allowing] them to invest in their craft, mentor younger artists, and confidently navigate an ever-changing digital landscape.”<sup>1</sup>

In Mexico, while a law is already in place (Federal Law on Copyright, 1996) recognising a right to compensation for private copying, it does not sufficiently specify parties liable for payment. Due to this, the private copying system is not functional. At the policy-level, numerous proposals for implementing legislation have been tabled several times without progress, while at the local level, a range of industry stakeholders (including collective management organisations), have organised numerous campaigns to introduce proper implementing legislation.<sup>2</sup>

Finally, in Ecuador, there is a unique situation where the private copying exception was introduced in the Intellectual Property Law of 1998 but was repealed in 2016 by the “Organic Code of the Social Economy of Knowledge, Creativity and Innovation” (COESCCI).<sup>3</sup> As such, a private copying exception no longer exists in Ecuador.

While a patchwork of well-functioning private copying systems currently exists in the Americas, there is nevertheless the recognition that this region still has significant potential for introducing well-functioning systems that can offer cultural sectors with the support and stability that a steady private copying income can provide.

<sup>2</sup> E.g., The efforts of “La Coalición por el Acceso Legal a la Cultura” (CALC), which drafted an implementation bill (2019) endorsed by local collective management organisations and industry associations alike. The bill was later reintroduced in 2022, but despite strong political support, was not discussed by the legislature by 2024.

Literary and artistic works that have already been disclosed may only be used in the following cases without the consent of the owner of the economic rights and without remuneration, provided that the normal exploitation of the work is not adversely affected thereby and provided also that the source is invariably mentioned and that no alteration is made to the work:

LEVY

Article 40 of the 'Ley Federal del Derecho de Autor' (as amended up to 2020)

The holders of copyright and related rights may demand compensation for any copy or reproduction made without their authorization and not covered by any of the limitations provided for in Articles 148 and 151 of this Law.

Notes

Though there is a right to compensation for private copying provided for in Mexico's law, there is no specification of the parties liable for payment. Due to this, the private copying system in Mexico is not functional, requiring a further regulation to complete implementation.

Since 2020, there has been no recent legislative progress, though there have been consistent efforts on behalf of copyright organisations to push for full implementation of the system.

1. The tapes, CDs or other material capable of embodying a sound, visual or audiovisual fixation.
2. material or digital media capable of embodying literary or graphic works.
3. The players or storage, no typographical equipment, works disclosed in the form of books or other publications, as well as phonograms, videograms or other sound, visual or audiovisual media indicated in the previous article.
4. units for the copying of sound and audiovisual media included in a personal computer or manufactured or imported for use in a peripheral manner, excluding the hard drives that are part of the equipment.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Article 3 of the regulation on the private copying levy of 2004 (Decree no. 548)

The remuneration is distributed as follows: 50% to authors and composers; 25% to performers and 25% to the respective producers, in the case of phonograms and audiovisual works included in videograms; and also equal to the authors and publishers in the case of the reproduction of works expressed graphically parties.

The collection and distribution of the remuneration will be effective by manufacturers and importers in the first sale, or in its absence, by the distributors, whose liability for payment will be in solidarity with those, only through collecting societies constituted depending on the category of works, performances and productions concerned, in accordance with the provisions of Title XII of Law No. 65-00 of August 21, 2000, Copyright.

Notes

In the case of the Dominican Republic, a law exists, but a further regulation is still needed to enforce the law. Decree No. 458 has been applied since 2004, but has many ambiguities that have prevented it from being put into practice.

Administratively, there is already a "one-stop shop" in place to collect levies, comprising of several organisations: the Dominican Society of Performing Artists the General Society of Dominican Authors, Composers, and Music Publishers, the Dominican Society of Phonographic Producers, the Society of Audiovisual Producers and the Dominican Society of Plastic Artists.

OVERVIEW

COLLECTING SOCIETY APPOINTED BY

Canadian Private Copying Collective (CPPCC).
The CPCC is a non-profit corporation that represents songwriters, recording artists, music publishers and record companies through its member collectives. It has been mandated by its member collectives to collect and distribute private copying levies. The CPCC has also been designated as the collecting body by the Copyright Board pursuant to subsection 83(8) of the Copyright Act. The CPCC is a non-profit corporation and only withholds those funds necessary to defray its costs of administration

TARIFFS

Levies are paid pursuant to Tariffs certified by the Copyright Board of Canada. Tariffs have been in place since 1999.

BENEFICIARIES

Are eligible: performers, makers, authors and publishers.

LIABLE

The levy is payable by manufacturers or importers of blank media upon first sale or disposition in Canada.

EXEMPTION

Companies may register in the CPCC's Zero-Rating program by entering into agreements with the CPCC. The Zero-Rating program is run voluntarily by the CPCC in recognition of the fact that companies and organizations use leviable blank media for their business purposes. The program allows companies registered in it to purchase and/or sell blank audio recording media at a 'zero-rate' from authorized sellers.

The levy is not payable on blank audio recording media sold to associations that represent persons with a perceptual disability.

No levy is payable on blank audio recording media that is exported.

RATE SETTING

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

By the CPCC and other parties at Tariff hearings

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

Levy applies to blank audio recording media that are ordinarily used for private copying.

ARE REFURBISHED DEVICES SUBJECT TO LEVY?

No

EXEMPTION IN CASE OF EXPORT?

Companies may register in the CPCC's Zero-Rating program by entering into agreements with the CPCC. The Zero-Rating program is run voluntarily by the CPCC in recognition of the fact that companies and organizations use leviable blank media for their business purposes. The program allows companies registered in it to purchase and/or sell blank audio recording media at a 'zero-rate' from authorized sellers.

ARE THERE ANY PRODUCTS EXEMPT FROM LEVIES?

On November 7, 2012, the Government of Canada published a regulation exempting microSD electronic memory cards from the private copying levy effective as of October 18, 2012.

The Copyright Board determines the media that are ordinarily used to copy music after considering evidence submitted by the CPCC and other parties at the tariff hearings.

EXEMPTION (EX-ANTE)?

Only upfront exemption is on the Copyright Act - sales to individuals with perceptual disabilities.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Manufacturers and importers are responsible for remitting private copying levies to the CPCC upon sale of the blank media in Canada. The manufacturer is responsible for paying the levy if the media is manufactured in Canada; otherwise the importer is responsible for paying the levy. For each reporting period, manufacturers and importers must report the type of media sold, quantity of units sold, brand information for each media and accurate contact information.

The scope and nature of the information reported is defined by the Copyright Board of Canada.

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Manufacturers and importers of blank audio recording media are required to submit reports and levy payments on a bi-monthly basis.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Pursuant to the Private Copying tariffs, the CPCC may audit the records of manufacturers and importers to verify the accuracy and completeness of the reports and payments submitted to the CPCC. Manufacturers and importers must keep records, from which the CPCC can readily ascertain the amounts payable and the information required under the Tariff, for a period of six years.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

No

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

Yes

DEFINITION OF IMPORT

82 (1) Every person who, for the purpose of trade, manufactures a blank audio recording medium in Canada or imports a blank audio recording medium into Canada:

- (a) is liable, subject to subsection (2) and section 86, to pay a levy to the collecting body on selling or otherwise disposing of those blank audio recording media in Canada; and
- (b) shall, in accordance with subsection 83(8), keep statements of account of the activities referred to in paragraph (a), as well as of exports of those blank audio recording media, and shall furnish those statements to the collecting body.

No levy for exports.

(2) No levy is payable where it is a term of the sale or other disposition of the blank audio recording medium that the medium is to be exported from Canada, and it is exported from Canada.

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

The Copyright Board of Canada sets the percentage allocated to each rights holder group after considering evidence submitted by the CPCC at Tariff hearings.

The CPCC's member collectives submit claims to the CPCC for the rights holders that they represent. The CPCC distributes the levies to its member collectives which then pass them on to the rightsholders.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

No

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

The CPCC distributes the levy to the CPCC's member collectives upon receipt of claims submitted by the member collectives.

The CPCC's member collectives represent eligible performers, makers, authors and publishers.

Section 80 (2) of the Copyright Act of 1985 as amended in 2023

Subsection (1) does not apply if the act described in that subsection is done for the purpose of doing any of the following in relation to any of the things referred to in paragraphs (1)(a) to (c):

- (a) selling or renting out, or by way of trade exposing or offering for sale or rental;
- (b) distributing, whether or not for the purpose of trade;
- (c) communicating to the public by telecommunication; or
- (d) performing, or causing to be performed, in public

LEVY

Since December 1999 Section 83 (1) of the Copyright Act of 1985 as amended in 2023

Subject to subsection (14), each collective society may file with the Board a proposed tariff for the benefit of those eligible authors, eligible performers and eligible makers who, by assignment, grant of licence, appointment of the society as their agent or otherwise, authorize it to act on their behalf for that purpose, but no person other than a collective society may file any such tariff.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Pursuant to section 82(8)(d) of the Copyright Act of 1985 as amended in 2023, the Copyright Board must designate the collecting body that will best fulfil the objects of the legislation. The Board has never varied from its designation of the CPCC as the collecting body.

Pursuant to section 84, the collecting body is to distribute levies to the collective societies representing eligible authors, eligible performers and eligible makers, in the proportions fixed by the Board.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

The federal government began a review of the Copyright Act in December 2017, and the responsible committees reported to government in 2019. CPCC and other industry organizations actively participated in the review process, and continue to lobby for the necessary changes to make the private copying regime 'technologically neutral'.

The Copyright Board of Canada issued decisions on Private Copying Tariffs for 2020 and 2021 on December 13, 2019 and for 2022-2024 on December 17, 2021, maintaining the levy on CD-R media at the existing rate of 29 cents per unit. The latter tariff will continue in effect until the Board issues a decision on the proposed Private Copying Tariff for 2025-2027.

The Copyright Board of Canada issued the 2018 and the 2019 Private Copying Tariffs on December 1, 2017, maintaining the levy on CD-R media at the existing rate of 29 cents.

On December 1, 2017, the Copyright Board published the Private Copying Tariffs for 2018 and 2019, maintaining the levy on CD-R media at the existing rate of 29 cents (Canadian) per unit.

On December 13, 2014, the Copyright Board published the Private Copying Tariffs for 2015 and 2016, maintaining the levy on CD-R media at the existing rate of 29 cents (Canadian) per unit.

On August 31, 2013, the Copyright Board published the Private Copying Tariffs for 2012, 2013 and 2014, maintaining the levy on CD-R media at the existing rate of 29 cents (Canadian) per unit.

On November 7, 2012, the government of Canada published a regulation exempting microSD electronic memory cards from the private copying levy effective as of October 18, 2012.

On August 30, 2013 the Copyright Board concluded that as a result of the circumstances arising from the regulation issued by the federal government in November 2012, it would not be possible to set a levy on microSD memory cards for the period of January 1, 2012 to October 17, 2012 that would be fair and equitable.

On June 29, 2012 the Copyright Modernization Act received royal assent and on November 7, 2012 a majority of the Act was brought into force. The Copyright Modernization Act amends the Copyright Act, such that it is not an infringement of copyright if individuals reproduce a musical work for private purposes if the work was legally obtained and if the individual, in order to make the reproduction, did not circumvent a technological protection measure. This exception does not apply to copies of musical works made onto an 'audio recording medium' as defined in section 79 of the Copyright Act. Section 79 defines 'audio recording medium as a recording medium, regardless of its material form, onto which a sound recording may be reproduced and that is of a kind ordinarily used by individual consumers for that purpose, excluding any prescribed kind of recording medium.' The Copyright Board has ruled that blank CD-R media meet the criteria of audio recording media stipulated in the Copyright Act.

In December 2003, the Copyright Board certified a levy on the memory permanently embedded in digital audio recorders. This decision was appealed by hardware and software manufacturers as well as a group representing retailers, and in December 2004, the Federal Court of Appeal ruled that the tariff approved by the Copyright Board was invalid. The CPCC sought leave to appeal this decision to the Supreme Court of Canada. In July 2005, the Supreme Court of Canada denied the CPCC's application for leave to appeal.

In February 2007, the CPCC applied to the Copyright Board for a levy on digital audio recorders in its proposed 2008-2009 Tariff. The Copyright Board held that it could hear evidence relating to this proposal. The decision of the Copyright Board was appealed, and in January 2008, the Federal Court of Appeal ruled that the Copyright Board could not hear evidence in support of a private copying levy on digital audio recorders.

EXEMPTION AND REFUND

EXEMPTION IN CASE OF EXPORT?

Yes

ARE THERE EXEMPTIONS FROM THE LEVY PAYMENT OBLIGATION IN CASE OF PROFESSIONAL USE?

Yes

ARE THERE ANY CONSUMERS OR BUYERS EXEMPT FROM PAYING THE LEVIES (OTHER THAN PROFESSIONAL USE)?

Importers under the "Tourism Shopping Regime" (Regimen de Turismo de Compras) are exempt. Import companies located in designated border shopping zones whose trade is directed at foreign natural persons not domiciled in Paraguay (e.g. Ciudad del Este on the Brazil border) are exempt from paying private copying remuneration.

EXEMPTION (EX-ANTE)?

The National Directorate of Tax Revenue (DNIT) will grant an exemption to the importing company covered by the Tourism Shopping Regime (border importers).

REFUND?

The system does not use ex-post refunds. All adjustments/exemptions must be handled in advance.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Importers must go to AIE and pay the 0.5% levy on the import value before customs clearance. Proof of payment is needed for customs to release the goods. AIE distributes the collected amounts monthly among the three CMOs.

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Payments are made regularly, per batch of imported products, depending on the value of each imported lot that is subject to the levy.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

There is close collaboration. Payment of the private copying remuneration is a mandatory condition for the customs authority to issue the import clearance (Despacho de Importación) for levied products. Thus, customs effectively enforce the obligation to pay.

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

Yes

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

At national level, AIE collects and then distributes monthly the net national amount among the three CMOs (APA, SGP, AIE). Within music / audiovisual repertoire, AIE is the distributing body for performers; APA distributes to authors, SGP to producers, under their own internal rules.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

30% Administrative Expenses

PARAGUAY

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

IS THERE A MAXIMUM TIME LIMIT SET BY THE LAW TO DISTRIBUTE PC REMUNERATION AFTER THEIR COLLECTION?

There is a legal/regulated maximum: every four (4) months from collection.

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

Authors, Performers, Producers of phonograms, Publishers are not entitled to a share of these private copying amounts.

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

Set or approved by an administrative authority/commission and subject to state approval/review.

HOW DO RIGHTSHOLDER CLAIM THEIR DISTRIBUTION?

Through automatic, periodic distributions by their CMO; no individual claim procedure is required.

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

IS THERE A SOCIAL AND/OR CULTURAL DEDUCTION?

Yes, 10% from the distributable sum

HOW IS THE AMOUNT/PERCENTAGE OF SOCIAL AND/OR CULTURAL DEDUCTIONS DETERMINED?

Decisions are taken solely by the CMO (APA) - not jointly with the government.

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF THE DEDUCTION AND WHO CAN BENEFIT?

Social benefits for authors in need, especially for health or elderly authors whose creative activity is limited. Cultural support and promotion of creativity for projects declared to the society.

The foregoing remuneration shall not be payable for equipment and materials that are used by the producers of audiovisual works and phonograms and publishers or their licensees, neither shall it be payable by studios concerned with sound recordings or the post synchronization of sound and images, or companies that work under contract to any of them, with respect to the legitimate production or reproduction of their works and products, provided that the equipment or media in question are intended solely for such activities.

Article 44 of the Law No. 1.328/98 on Copyright and Neighboring Rights of 1998

The exclusively personal copying of works published in graphic form or in the form of sound or audiovisual recordings shall be lawful where the compensatory remuneration referred to in Chapter IV of Title IV of this Law has been paid. The reproductions allowed under this Article shall not however extend to the following:

1. reproduction of a work of architecture in the form of a building or other construction.
2. reproduction of the whole of a book or musical work in graphic form, or of the original or a copy of a work of fine art executed and signed by the author;
3. a database or compilation of data.

Decree No. 6.780/11 regulating Chapter IV Rights to Compensatory Remuneration' of Law No. 1.328/98 'on Copyright and Neighboring Rights'

The Decree No. 6780/11 determines the equipment and media subject to the levy as well as the rates.

Exemptions from payment of compensation applies to:

- Professional uses;
- Equipment and materials to be used by producers of audio-visual works, phonograms and publishers, or by their respective licensees and companies working on behalf of any of them, for legitimate production or reproduction of those works, provided that such equipment is used exclusively for these activities.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Articles 36-37 of the Law No. 1.328/98 on Copyright and Neighboring Rights of 1998

36. The collection and distribution of the remuneration referred to in this Chapter shall take place through the appropriate collective management bodies, which shall centralize collection either by delegating it to one of their members or by setting up a collecting agency with its own legal personality.

37. Within the six months following the entry into force of this Law the Executive, on a proposal by the National Directorate of Copyright, shall specify the owners entitled to remuneration and shall regulate the procedure for determining the equipment and material for which it is payable, its amount and the methods of collection and distribution. The National Directorate of Copyright shall decide what exemptions are appropriate and may also broaden the liability for payment of remuneration referred to in Article 34 to include those who distribute the material mentioned therein to the public.

Article 12 of the Decree n°4145 establishes 90% of the net amount collected will be distributed in equal parts to: authors, phonographic producers, and performing artists.

PARAGUAY

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

The Tourism Shopping Regime decrees (Nos. 2063/2024 and 4145/2025) exempt certain border-zone importers from the levy, reducing revenue.

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES?

Some legislators argue that the liable party for private copying remuneration should be the final user and not the importer, but there are no formal bills yet.

COURT CASES

In the last 10 years, the Supreme Court of Justice has declared Article 34 of Law 1328/98 unconstitutional in three cases brought by individual importing companies. As a result, these importers are exempt from payment, often for large volumes of levied products, significantly impacting collections.

The unconstitutionality rulings only benefit the specific importers who filed them, but these decisions (1) led to reduce total collection, (2) are based mainly on commercial/constitutional arguments and (3), do not adequately take into account the international and national recognition of authors' rights (e.g. Berne Convention).

EXPLANATION ON DEVELOPMENTS

In recent years, revenues tend to decrease due to Decree No. 2063/2024, which creates the "Tourism Shopping Regime" for the import and sale of certain goods to foreign individuals not resident in Paraguay. This decree exempts importers located in border shopping areas (e.g. Ciudad del Este) from paying private copying remuneration on qualifying imports. Since many high-volume importers of levied products operate in these border zones, this exemption significantly reduces collections. Decree 4145 establishes that 10% of the net amount collected will be destined to the promotion and respect of intellectual property rights and the fight against piracy, and 90% of the net amount collected will be distributed in equal parts to: authors, phonographic producers, and performing artists.

In Paraguay, the distribution of remuneration for private copying is governed by the current decree, which establishes that administrative management costs may not exceed 15% of gross revenue. Of the resulting net amount, 10% is allocated to the promotion and enforcement of intellectual property rights and the fight against piracy, through programmes run by the National Directorate of Intellectual Property (DINAPI). The remaining 90% is distributed equally among the three recognised collective management societies: Autores Paraguayos Asociados (APA), the Sociedad de Gestión de Productores Fonográficos del Paraguay (SGP) and the Entidad Paraguaya de Performing Artists (AIE-Paraguay), which administer the amounts received on behalf of their members and repertoires exclusively.

Notes

Rightsholders have attempted to fix levies on devices, in particular on digital devices, but they were challenged as unlawful before the Peruvian Copyright Authority and a decision of Supreme Court - Cassation judgement N°4534-2011:

“The payment of a compensation for private copying has been regulated as an obligation to redress an act that truly affects rights (through the reproduction with private purposes), not as a tax or pecuniary payment that objectively affects an activity (e.g. manufacture or sale items to carry out reproduction acts) with the purpose of compensate the economic rights prejudice suffered – in abstract- by authors, artists or producers, for individualized acts. In such way, under this regulatory model producers or sellers of these item couldn’t be obligated to the payment of a compensation for private copying by this mere fact (because it’s evident that... this kind of hardware are not destined only for the reproduction of works, but also as a storage device of any other kind of information), but for the fact of being the cause in a production and sale that finally took to reproduce the work”.

TARIFFS	The Audio Home Recording Act of 1992 ("AHRA") sets the fees for manufacturers/distributors or importers/distributors of equipment and media to pay.
BENEFICIARIES	Writers and directors; Sound Recording copyright owners (Producers).
LIABLE	Under AHRA, royalties must be distributed based on sales in the US during the year for which the royalties are collected – the royalty year. Royalties must be paid by required importers/distributors or manufacturers/distributors of certain digital audio recording devices, digital audio recording media and digital audio interface devices manufactured or imported and distributed in the United States.
EXCEPTION	Export/professional use

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

Under the AHRA, the royalty rate for devices is set at 2% of the distribution price, with a minimum of USD 1 per device and a maximum of USD 8 per device. If it is a physically integrated unit containing more than one device, the maximum rate is USD 12 per unit. For blank media, the rate is 3% of the distribution price.

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

If a device or media falls within the definitions in AHRA, the percentage fees specified in the law must be paid.

UNITED STATES

EXEMPTION (EX-ANTE)?

Professional devices

REFUND/REIMBURSEMENT (EX-POST)?

Adjustments can be made for equipment or media for which fee was paid but which was not distributed because of returns, in a statement filed with the Copyright Office.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

SoundExchange began claiming international PC royalties in late 2021 and domestic PC royalties in February 2022.

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Payments are made annually

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

SoundExchange must collect certain Tax Identification information from the rightsholder and keep this information on file.

DEFINITION OF IMPORT

AHRA covers the manufacturer or importer, whichever party distributes digital media in the United States for ultimate transfer to consumers in the US. There is no definition for importer.

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

SoundExchange distributes annually to Featured Recording Artists and Sound Recording Copyright Owners (Producers). Distribution methods are determined by the AHRA.

FREQUENCY OF DISTRIBUTION

SoundExchange distributes annually contingent on having received the royalties from the federal government.

WHICH RIGHTS HOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

SoundExchange represents Featured Artists and Sound Recording Copyright Owners (Producers).

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

Under the Audio Home Recording Act of 1992, the royalties must be distributed based on sales of music during the year for which the royalties were collected.

DISTRIBUTION KEYS SUBMITTED?

Distribution scheme for Audio under AHRA

Sound Recordings Fund (SRF) – 2/3 of total DART fund

AHRA requires allocation of 96% to Sound Recording Copyright Owners and Featured Recording Artists, as follows:

Sound Recording Copyright Owners' Subfund – 60%

Featured Recording Artists' Subfund – 40%

The AFM & SAG-AFTRA Intellectual Property Fund

Non-Featured Artists – 4% of SRF

Musical Works Fund (MWF) – 1/3 of total DART fund

Writers' Subfund – 50% of MWF

Publishers' Subfund – 50% of MWF

Distribution scheme for video: No private copy for video

EXCEPTION

Audio Home Recording Act of 1992. Pub. L. No. 102-563. 106 Stat. 4237 (Oct. 28, 1992). codified at 17 U.S.C. §1001 et seq.

AHRA requires the payment of fees upon distribution of certain digital audio recording devices and digital audio recording media and the inclusion of a serial copy management system (SCMS) in all digital audio recording devices and digital audio interface devices imported, manufactured or distributed in the United States. Such a system allows unlimited first-generation digital copying of sound recordings but prevents the making of digital copies from copies.

LEVY

Devices: 2% of the distribution price with a maximum of USD 8 per device and USD 12 in the case of a physically integrated unit containing more than 1 device and USD 1 minimum.

Media: 3% for media.

COURT CASES

The AARC filed suit against certain car manufacturers who offered music recording devices in their cars. In its ruling from 18th January 2020, the Federal court rejected claims of the AARC arguing that the in-vehicle audio system that copied CD information onto internal hard drives do not qualify as digital audio recording devices under the AHRA. As a result, car manufacturers were exempted from paying the levy for private copying.

INTRODUCTION ASIA

Asia is the largest and most populous region in the world, encompassing around fifty countries and territories, from Israel to Japan, including Türkiye and China.

In many countries/territories in this region, while copyright and authors' rights protection frameworks exist, private copying is not part of the legal tradition. This absence negatively impacts rightsholders, leading to lost sales and missed licensing opportunities.

Among the 48 countries/territories examined, no reference to an exception for private copying is mentioned in the law of 10 countries/territories. In 30 countries/territories, exceptions for private copying exist, but they are often minimal. The narrow wording of these exceptions leaves little room for action by local authorities to implement additional regulations that would ensure fair compensation for creators. These actions may include specific decrees or court decisions to appoint organizations responsible for collecting and distributing private copying levies or setting tariffs.

Eight countries out of the 48 countries/territories have introduced a private copying levy scheme in their domestic legislation. These are Azerbaijan, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyz Republic, Uzbekistan, Turkmenistan, Türkiye, Israel and Japan. In Azerbaijan and Kazakhstan, court cases are underway to remove obstacles to the proper implementation of a collection and distribution system. Only three countries—Israel, Japan and Türkiye—have functioning collection and distribution systems in place. However, in Japan, the scope of the levy has been outdated for some time, diminishing the system's efficiency—local actors are lobbying for an update to the devices covered to align with those currently in use. And in Türkiye, the private copying remuneration is collected by the Ministry of Culture and used for cultural programs.

In summary, no levy is currently collected and distributed in most countries and territories in this region, despite national provisions that provide for such a levy. Furthermore, some countries specifically exclude reprography from the scope of the exception (Afghanistan, Azerbaijan, Bahrain, Bhutan, Cambodia, Indonesia, South Korea, Sri Lanka, Tajikistan, and Turkmenistan).

Asia has potential in markets such as China, India and Indonesia. So far, governments have failed to respond to widespread infringement of creative works in their region. The introduction of a levy scheme would entitle Asian creators to a share of income from private copying levies in countries/territories that only distribute on a reciprocity basis.

COURT CASES

There is currently an ongoing court case. Some industry debtors and organizations deny responsibility for or refuse to make payments on certain storage media/devices.

They argue that devices like phones and tablets are primarily used for personal purposes and, therefore, should not be subject to payment for private copying purposes. Additionally, they argue that some storage devices (such as memory cards or USB drives) are primarily for personal or commercial use, and the imposition of fees on these devices is questioned.

Another common argument is the evolution of technology, with claims that some devices do not regularly lead to significant copying activities, and therefore, the charges applied to these devices are not considered fair.

The proposal is to establish a list of devices to avoid future misunderstandings and disputes.

COMMENTS

The Law on Copyright and Related Rights (1996) of the Republic of Kazakhstan stipulates that the remuneration from the private copying (PC) shall be distributed as follows: 40% to the authors, 30% to the performers, 30% to the phonogram producers, unless otherwise agree. Only reproduction of audio-visual works or audio-recording of works are entitled for the PC remuneration. No other types of works are included. The authors of visual and written works are excluded from compensation for private copying of text and images if they are not part of an "audio-visual work or audio-recording of work".

The category "phonogram" includes the following recipients: the author of the text, the author of the music, the performer, the producer of the phonogram.

The category "audiovisual work" includes the following recipients: the author of the script, the author of the musical work (with or without text), specially created for this audiovisual work (composer), the director of production, the director of photography, the production designer.

Collection and distribution system:

According to the Law on Copyright and Related Rights of the Republic of Kazakhstan (1996), Art. 26, collection and distribution of the remuneration shall be made by one of the organizations, managing the property rights of authors, performers and producers of phonograms on a collective basis, in accordance with the agreement, concluded between the organizations (Article 43 of this Law).

COMMENTS

The collection and distribution systems are not functioning in practice as the organisation the Eurasian Union of Rightsholders, that holds the State accreditation for PC does not function in the market. There is no valid agreement between KazAK and the CMO collecting PC. The CMO for PC is connected to representation of Russian interests and lacks accountability and transparency in its operations.

The agreement that existed previously between KazAK and CMO for PC, signed in 2019 and valid until 2021, was declared illegal by the court on the grounds that it was signed in the name of the General Director of KazAK by a person who had been dismissed from the position of General Director by the time of signing.

Several court cases have been filed questioning the legitimacy of the accreditation granted to the Eurasian Union of Rightsholders, accusing the Ministry of Justice of issuing the accreditation on false grounds and having ties to the organization. The Eurasian Union of Rightsholders is closely associated with promoting Russian influence within copyright in Kazakhstan and advancing Russian interests. It lacks credibility and transparency.

LEGAL BASIS

LEVY ONLY

Article 18 of the Law of Turkmenistan No. 257-IV of January 10, 2012 on Copyright and Related Rights (amended up to 2017)

3. Reproduction of an audiovisual work, phonogram or videogram by a private person for private use and without commercial purpose is authorised without the copyright holder's consent, but with a payment of remuneration: in relation to reproduction of an audiovisual work – to the authors, performers and producer of the audiovisual work; in relation to reproduction of a phonogram (videogram) – to the authors, performers and producer of the phonogram (videogram).

Remuneration is paid to the manufacturers and importers of the equipment (audio- and (or) video recorders or other equipment) and material information carriers (audio and (or) video tapes, compact discs and other material carriers) used for such reproduction.

The amount of remuneration and the conditions of its payment are determined by an agreement between the manufacturers and importers on the one hand, and the organisations managing the economic rights of the authors, producers of phonograms or videograms and performers on a collective basis on the other hand, and in the case if the parties cannot reach such agreement – by the authorised state administration body on intellectual property.

It is taken into account that if the rightholders apply technical means of protection, access to such works, phonograms and videograms with the purpose of reproduction for private use can also be limited by payment of remuneration.

OVERVIEW

COLLECTING SOCIETY APPOINTED BY

Audio: SARAH (Society for the Administration of Remuneration for Audio and Video Home Recording)

For information, SARVH (Soc. for Administration of Remuneration for Video Home Recording) disbanded by 31 March 2015 due to the termination of video compensation collection by the loss of the court case (see "Court Cases").

The designated management association, which collects compensation for private recording, is appointed by the government (by the Commissioner of the Agency for Cultural Affairs). It does not receive government funding.

EXCEPTION

LEVY

Equipment: Yes

Media: Yes

Cloud Storage: No

NPVR: No

Reprography: No

Any person who, for the purpose of private use, makes sound recording on digital recording machines / media shall pay compensation to the copyright owners concerned.

TARIFFS

Calculation of the compensation amount: The compensation rate is set per medium and per machine by multiplying the fixed rate by the base price (the shipping price for sale).

The amount of remuneration:

- For the machine: 2% of the shipping price for sale, with a maximum limit of JPY 1,000
- For the medium: 3% of the shipping price for sale

BENEFICIARIES

Copyright owners, Performers and Producers of the phonogram

EXEMPTION

- Analogue recording media or machine
- Machines with special efficiency, generally not for private use but for business purposes, such as those used for broadcasting.
- Machines with sound or visual recording functions incidental to their primary functions, such as telephones with sound recording capabilities.

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL DEDUCTIONS

20 % of the compensation paid

JAPAN

RATE SETTING

After consulting with manufacturers, SARAH drafts a compensation plan and submits it to the Commissioner of the Agency for Cultural Affairs for approval. The Commissioner shall approve the compensation amount only if it is considered appropriate. Before granting approval, the Commissioner shall consult the Culture Council.

There is no consideration of damages, harm, or copying behaviour as rates are not reviewed regularly. Market circumstances are considered when determining market prices.

EXEMPTION AND REFUND

PRODUCTS EXEMPT FROM LEVIES

- analogue recording media or machine
- machines having special efficiency generally not for private use but for business use, such as that for broadcasting
- machines having sound or visual recording functions incidental to the primary functions, such as telephones with sound recording function

Types of media and machines subject to levy payment have to be assigned by the Cabinet Order. Only specified media or machines with labelling of 'for audio' 'for video' are subject to compensation.

REFUND AFTERWARDS

Anyone who has paid such compensation can claim a refund from SARAH by certifying they use the specified recording machine or medium solely for purposes other than private recording. This includes (i) using them under restrictions beyond copyright owners' rights under Copyright Law, (ii) recording under a licence from the copyright owner, (iii) recording works that are not protected by copyright, and (iv) exporting the specified recording machine or medium purchased in Japan.

Regarding the decision to grant a refund, it is made based on the return standards, taking into account various factors such as the nature of the purchase and the circumstances of use. However, there are few examples of such cases.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

The designated association (SARAH) has the right to claim compensation from the end user of the specified media or machine. On the other hand, because the manufacturer or importer of specified recording machines or media shall cooperate with the designated association in claiming and receiving such compensation under the law, the end users shall purchase machines or media on which the compensation has been added. Customs is not involved.

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Every half-year basis

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Basically, SARAH relied on manufacturers' good faith. Sometimes, they communicated with manufacturers to question the reasonable grounds if there was a remarkable change in the reporting.

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

Those who export specified machines or media sold in Japan are not liable to pay compensation, because only the people who make sound or visual recordings are liable to pay compensation. If the exporter has paid compensation, he or she can claim a refund..

DEFINITION OF IMPORT

Although no definition is provided under the Copyright Law, it is said that "import" means "To receive goods from the area where Japanese laws and regulations cannot be applied into the area covered by Japanese laws and regulations."

JAPAN

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

Distribution is handled by the collecting society (SARAH) itself. SARAH distributes compensation to three rightsholders organisations (i.e., JASRAC<sup>1</sup>, GEIDANKYO<sup>2</sup>, and RIAJ<sup>3</sup>), and afterwards, these organisations redistribute the received funds to each member person or company entitled to receive compensation in the following manner:

- Copyright owners (through JASRAC): 36%
- Performers (through GEIDANKYO): 32%
- Producers of the phonogram (through RIAJ): 32%

In addition, distribution to rightsholders not belonging to any of these organisations is paid upon request from the funds allocated to each organisation.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTING PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS DETERMINED BY LAW?

20%, SARAH is unable to split the admin costs into collection costs and distribution costs.

FREQUENCY OF DISTRIBUTION

Every six months

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

- Copyright owners
- Performers
- Producers of the phonogram

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

Previously negotiated. Not reviewed regularly.

DISTRIBUTION KEYS SUBMITTED?

SARAH creates distribution materials with the highest possible accuracy using methods such as sampling surveys of broadcasting and rental records, production results surveys, such as CDs, and methods guided by specialist statisticians, such as questionnaire surveys from users, etc.

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

Social and/or cultural deductions account for 20% of the compensation received, a rate fixed by the Cabinet Order according to the Copyright Law.

The social and cultural fund is allocated for activities contributing to the protection of copyright and neighbouring rights and to the promotion of the creation and dissemination of works. This system is based on the principle that allocating 20% to such activities benefits all rights holders, including unidentifiable rights holders, and it would act as an indirect form of distribution.

EXCEPTION

(Reproduction for private use)

"Article 30. (1) Except in the following cases, a user may reproduce a work that is subject to copyright (hereinafter in this Subsection referred to as a "work") if the reproduction is for personal or family use or for any other use of a similarly limited scope (hereinafter referred to as "private use"):

(i) a user reproduces a work by means of an automated duplicator (meaning a device with a function for making reproductions, all or most of whose instruments for making the reproductions are automated) that has been set up for use by the public;

(ii) the reproduction of the work has become possible due to the circumvention of technological protection measures (meaning that the removal or alteration of the signals provided for in Article 2, paragraph (1), item (xx) or any other action that interferes with the effect of the signals (excluding any such action resulting from technological constraints accompanying the conversion of recording or transmission systems) or the restoration of sounds or images of a work, performance, phonogram or broadcast or cablecast which has been converted so as to necessitate a specific conversion as prescribed in that item makes it possible to take an action that the technological protection measures prevent or makes it so that a barrier no longer arises as a result of an action that the technological protection measures deter (other than a restoration made based on the intentions of the person that owns the copyright, etc.); the same applies in Article 113, paragraph (7) and Article 120-2, items (i) and (ii) or a barrier to reproduction of the work no longer arises as a result of that circumvention, and the user reproduces the work in knowledge of this fact;

(iii) the work is received via an automatic public transmission that infringes on a copyright (including an automatic public transmission that is transmitted abroad and that would constitute copyright infringement if it were transmitted in Japan), and the user records the sounds or visuals of the work in digital format (hereinafter referred to as "specified infringing sound or visual recording" in this item and the following paragraph), in knowledge of the fact that the relevant action constitutes the specified infringing sound or visual recording;

(iv) the work is received via an automatic public transmission that infringes on a copyright (excluding the rights provided in Article 28 (limited to those for a derivative work created by a means other than translation); hereinafter the same applies in this item) (including an automatic public transmission that is transmitted abroad and that would constitute copyright infringement if it were transmitted in Japan), and the user reproduces the work in digital format (excluding sound and visual recording; hereinafter the same applies in this item) (excluding reproduction that is minor in light of the percentage of the reproduced part in the work relevant to the copyright, the accuracy of indications made at the time the part is transmitted via automatic public transmission, and other elements; hereinafter in this item and the following paragraph referred to as "specified infringing reproduction"), in knowledge of the fact that the relevant action constitutes the specified infringing reproduction (excluding cases where there are special reasons for finding that the action would not unreasonably prejudice the interests of the copyright owner in light of the nature or purpose of the work or the circumstances of the specified infringing reproduction).

(2) The provisions of items (iii) and (iv) of the preceding paragraph must not be interpreted as including cases where a user undertakes the relevant action through gross negligence in not knowing the fact that the relevant action constitutes the specified infringing sound or visual recording or the specified infringing reproduction.

(3) A person who, for private use, records the sound or visuals of a work in a digital format, on a digital sound or visual recording medium that is provided for by Cabinet Order, by means of a machine with digital sound or visual recording functions (excluding a machine with special performance capabilities for use in the broadcasting business or other special performance capabilities that are generally not offered for private use, and also excluding a telephone with a sound recording function or any other machine with sound or visual recording functions incidental to its primary function) which is provided for by Cabinet Order must pay a reasonable amount of compensation to the copyright owner.

(2) The rules mentioned in the preceding paragraph shall include the matters relating to the distribution of compensation for private recording (limited to such compensation as paid in accordance with the provision of Article 104quater, paragraph (1)), and the designated association shall take into account the spirit of the provision of Article 30, paragraph (3) when establishing the rules on such matters.

(Allocation for such activities as contributing to the protection of copyright, etc.)

Article 104octies. (1) The designated association shall allocate an amount corresponding to the rate fixed by Cabinet Order within 20% of the compensation received (limited to such compensation as paid in accordance with the provision of Article 104quater, paragraph (1)) for such activities as contributing to the protection of copyright and neighboring rights as well as to the promotion of the creation and dissemination of works.

(2) When intending to draft the Cabinet Order mentioned in the preceding paragraph or to draft its amendment, the Commissioner of the Agency for Cultural Affairs shall consult the Culture Council.

(3) The Commissioner of the Agency for Cultural Affairs may issue to the designated association an order necessary for supervising the business relating to the activities mentioned in paragraph (1) when it is deemed necessary for assuring an proper execution of such business.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

Discussions on reforming the current compensation system have been ongoing in the subcommittee of the Culture Council, led by the Agency for Cultural Affairs. No conclusions have been reached.

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES?

Several manufacturers of audio recording media had previously refused to provide SARAH with levy calculation statements. However, they all eventually reached an agreement with SARAH.

VIDEO:

Japan decided to complete the transition from analogue to digital terrestrial television broadcasting by July 2011. In 2009, the Japanese manufacturer Toshiba denied any cooperation obligations under the provisions of Article 104quinquies of the Copyright Law for its DVD recording machines without an analogue tuner, insisting that the provisions specified by Cabinet Order did not cover such machines.

Other manufacturers producing the same kind of machines followed Toshiba's example.

The designated association for visual private recording (SARVH) negotiated with Toshiba but was unable to reach an agreement. Therefore, SARVH sued Toshiba for damages due to a breach of the cooperation obligation under Article 104quinquies of the Copyright Law.

JAPAN

COURT CASES

The court of first instance dismissed SARVH's claims, stating that although Toshiba's machine falls within the category of specified machines, the cooperation obligation in the same article is purely an abstract obligation without legal force. The appeal court dismissed SARVH's claims, arguing that because the content of the cooperation obligation was not clearly defined and the Toshiba machine did not qualify as a specified machine, the court decision was final. As a result, under the current Cabinet Order, it became difficult for SARVH to collect compensation for machines used in terrestrial television broadcasts, leading to a substantial halt in the private recording compensation system for video. Consequently, SARVH disbanded by 31 March 2015.

COMMENTS

On 18 December 2025, the Presidential Decision was published in the Official Gazette (Decision No. 20251219-10), it introduced significant changes to levy rates and enforcement mechanisms for devices and blank media used for reproduction. Under the new regulation, levy rates have been set at 1% for certain printing and copying machines and computers, and 1.2% for smartphones with recording or copying capabilities. The decision also strengthens enforcement by enabling tax authorities to collect unpaid or underpaid levies and transfer them to the Ministry of Culture and Tourism's special account.

Societies in Türkiye do not collect the levies themselves. The Ministry collects these funds directly and uses the collected amounts for cultural programs.

Societies are in negotiations for a change in this system, but a consensus has not been reached yet.

INTRODUCTION EUROPE

The European continent is very broad, covering 27 EU member states having a high level of copyright protection. Most EU member states have implemented a private copying exception and remuneration system under Article 5(2)(b) of EU Copyright Directive (2001/29/EC). These systems generally compensate authors and rights holders for copies made for private use.

The origin of the private copying exception lies in Germany where it was first introduced in the law in 1966 and expanded throughout Europe during the following decades.

Of the 44 European countries studied, two countries (United Kingdom and Malta) have not introduced a private copying exception in their domestic law (the UK abolished its private copying exception entirely and after Brexit in 2020 the UK is no longer bound to EU directives and CJEU case law).

On the 42 countries which have an exception, 4 countries have no levy system in place (Albania, Republic of Ireland, Liechtenstein and San Marino).

Some countries only have remuneration but no collection and distribution mechanism and some countries have a state-funded remuneration system as a means of compensating rightsholders for private copying. Finland for example has introduced a state funded system in 2015, which is being assessed for its compliance with EU law. Some years earlier, in 2012 the Spanish government also established a state-funded private copying compensation system by law, but was later annulled by the Court as incompatible with EU law. Thus, Finland's state funded system is being challenged, not only on the basis of incompatibility with EU law, but also due to its unexplained and drastic reduction in the State budget for rightsholders' private copying remuneration in 2024.

In the EU, tariff setting practices and the media and devices that are subject to the levy are within the discretion of each Member State. This decentralised rulemaking leaves room for Member States to consider changes to their domestic markets and improvements in technology. Regarding digital media, some Member States have now included the storage of private copies using cloud services in their list of media subject to private copying. According to the CJEU, it has also been confirmed in 2022 that such cloud service providers are now encompassed by the private copying regime (Case C 433/20).

As of this Study's publication, there is a pending question before the CJEU raised by the Supreme Court of the Netherlands on the applicability of private copying remuneration to offline streaming copies, or copies of protected works made available offline via a streaming service on a user's device. A ruling is expected in 2026.

Private copying is a significant source of income for rightsholders in the EU and beyond, and this region provides some of the strongest examples worldwide of how well-functioning and reliable the stream of income from private copying remuneration can be for European rightsholders.

CHAPTER 4. CASES OF FREE USE OF OBJECTS OF COPYRIGHT AND RELATED RIGHTS

Article 35. Reproduction of Works and Related Rights Objects for Personal Purposes

1. Reproduction of lawfully published works and related rights objects in single copies by a natural person exclusively for personal purposes (for personal use, without pursuing direct or indirect commercial purposes) is permitted without the consent of the author or other rightsholder. Such reproduction is carried out without payment of remuneration, except in the cases provided for in paragraph 3 of this Article.

2. The provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to the reproduction of:

LEVY

3. For the reproduction, in accordance with paragraph 1 of this Article, of audiovisual works, works and performances embodied in phonograms, and phonograms, the persons holding exclusive rights to such works, performances, and phonograms (authors, performers, producers of phonograms, or other rights holders) are entitled to receive remuneration.

The remuneration is paid by manufacturers of equipment and/or material media usually used for the personal reproduction of audiovisual works, works and performances embodied in phonograms, and phonograms, except for equipment and/or material media exported outside the Republic of Belarus, as well as by legal entities and individual entrepreneurs importing the mentioned equipment and/or material media into the territory of the Republic of Belarus. The collection, distribution, and payment of remuneration are carried out by an organisation managing the property rights of authors or other rights holders on a collective basis (hereinafter referred to as a collective management organisation) in accordance with the legislation.

The list of equipment and material media usually used for the personal reproduction of audiovisual works, works and performances embodied in phonograms, and phonograms, as well as the amount of remuneration, the conditions of its payment, and the proportions of distribution among categories of rightsholders, are established by the Council of Ministers of the Republic of Belarus.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM

4. The collective management organisation that collects the remuneration provided for in paragraph 3 of this Article shall annually, no later than April 1 of the year following the reporting year, transfer to the President of the Republic of Belarus' Fund for the Support of Culture and Art, 25 per cent of the remuneration it collected for each reporting year.

A contract for the management of property rights (the right to receive the remuneration provided for in paragraph 3 of this Article) must contain a condition stating the rights holder's consent, upon joining such a contract, to the retention of 25 percent of the remuneration collected by the collective management organization for each reporting year and the transfer of these funds to the President of the Republic of Belarus' Fund for the Support of Culture and Art.

5. The collective management organisation that collects the remuneration provided for in paragraph 3 of this Article has the right to receive from state bodies:

- information on the actual volumes of import into the territory of the Republic of Belarus of equipment and/or material media usually used for the personal reproduction of audiovisual works, works and performances embodied in phonograms, and phonograms;
- information on the actual volumes of production and/or sale of the equipment and/or material media specified in the second paragraph of this part, except for the equipment and/or material media exported outside the Republic of Belarus;
- data on legal entities and individual entrepreneurs importing into the territory of the Republic of Belarus the equipment and/or material media specified in the second paragraph of this part;
- information on manufacturers, suppliers (sellers), and the range of equipment and/or material media specified in the second paragraph of this part.

The content of the information specified in the first part of this paragraph, as well as the procedure for its transfer, storage, and use, is determined by the Council of Ministers of the Republic of Belarus.

When collecting, storing, and using information received from state bodies, payers of remuneration, and other persons, the collective management organization ensures compliance with the requirements of legislation on information, informatisation, and information protection.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Article 25 of the Law on Copyright and Neighboring Rights of 1993 (as amended up to 2019)

Without consent of the owner of the copyright but upon payment of fair compensation shall be admissible:

2. reproduction of works, regardless of the carrier, by a natural person for personal use unless done with commercial purposes. The provision of para 1, item 2, shall not refer to computer software and architectural works.

LEVY ONLY

Art. 26 of the Law on Copyright and Neighboring Rights of 1993 (as amended up to 2019)

(1) Authors of works, performers, producers of phonograms and producers of initial recordings of movies or other audio-visual works shall be entitled to a compensatory remuneration, where the recordings are reproduced for personal use as set out in Art. 25, Para 1, Item 2. A right to compensatory remuneration shall also have the authors and publishers of any kind of print works, when such works are reproduced in reprographic manner for personal use under the conditions of Art. 25, Para 1, Item 1.

(2) Any waiver of the right to compensatory remuneration by the rightsholders referred to in Para 1 shall be invalid.

(3) The remuneration referred to in Para 1 shall be due by the persons who:

1. manufacture blank information carriers;
2. import from third countries blank information carriers.

(4) The remuneration referred to in Para 1 shall be due by the persons referred to in Para 3 for sales of information carriers on the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria, primarily intended for reproduction of works for personal use by natural persons under Art. 25, Para 1, Item 2.

(5) The types of information carriers, which primary use is reproduction in the sense of Art. 25, Para 1, for which remuneration under Para 1 is due, and the amount of the remuneration shall be determined annually by the organizations referred to in Para 8, agreed upon with representative organizations of the persons under Para 3 and 4, as well as with other interested persons. In negotiating the types of carriers and the amount of remunerations shall be taken into account the recording capacity of the carriers and the extent of their use for reproduction in the sense of Art. 25, Para 1.

The amount of remuneration shall not be lower than 1.0 percent or exceed 1.5 percent of the supply value according to the accounting standard for processing the stock reserves of the respective blank information carriers.

For the persons referred to in Para 3 may be negotiated discounts, which amounts and conditions of use shall be determined in the negotiation procedure set for determining the amount of the basic remuneration.

(10) Compensatory remunerations for blank information carriers shall not be due, or, if collected, restored, when:

1. delivered from the territory of another Member State of the European Union;
2. delivered from the territory of a third country and already levied, without possibility for restoration, with a compensatory remuneration for reproduction, equivalent to the remuneration referred to in Art. 25, Para 1 according to the legislation of the said Member State of the European Union or the third country;
3. they are subject to transactions for export to third countries or delivery to another Member State of the European Union;
4. purchased in the country by a person that has legally obtained the right to make such recordings and has arranged the authors rights and related rights questions related to the recording;
5. purchased by a provider of audio-visual media services/radio services, legally carrying out his activity;

6. purchased in the country by manufacturers of movies or other audio-visual works;
7. purchased by medical establishments, specialized rehabilitation hospitals, social establishments and penitentiary establishments.
8. purchased by legal persons, sole entrepreneurs or natural persons - freelancers, whose activity does not presuppose their use for reproduction in the sense of Art. 25, Para 1.

(11) When compensatory remunerations have been collected and are subject to restoration, the facts and circumstances justifying the right to restoration shall be proved by the persons claiming it. The requests, accompanied by the evidence, shall be submitted to the respective organizations referred to in Para 8 within the time limits referred to in Para 12. The organizations referred to in Para 8 shall pronounce on the requests within one month from their submission.

The amounts subject to restoration shall be paid by the organizations referred to in Para 8 within one month from the date of the protocol for granting the requests with the evidence.

(12) The persons, which under Para 4 are due compensatory remunerations, shall be obliged within one month from the end of every calendar six months to provide to the organization under Para 8 a summary of the types and total supply value according to the accounting standard for processing the stock reserves of sold carriers of each type, for which compensation is due. No further detailed information may be requested than the information required for the purpose of allocating the remunerations referred to in Para 1 by the organizations referred to in Para 8. The information received shall not be made public or used for any other purpose except for collecting and allocating the remunerations. The remunerations shall be paid to the organizations collecting them within one month from the end of the accounting period.

In Bulgaria, the private copying compensation system is based on the Tariff for Compensation under Article 26 of the Copyright and Neighbouring Rights Act, approved by the Ministry of Culture with Order N° RD09-0027/01.02.2012 (effective from 25.03.2011).

This tariff lists specific categories of blank media and recording devices subject to private copying levies. Smartphones, tablets, NPVR (network personal video recorders), refurbished goods, and reprographic devices were not included in the 2011 approved tariff.

At the time, the focus was on traditional blank media (such as CDs, DVDs, Blu-ray discs, USB sticks, memory cards, and external hard drives) rather than multifunctional smart devices. Therefore, no private copying levies apply to smartphones, tablets, or NPVR capacities under the currently effective tariff.

COMMENTS

Musicautor has provided a variety of public authorities with evidence calling for urgent action and amendments to the current private copying legislation. Unfortunately, all efforts to date have been disregarded by the Bulgarian authorities.

At the end of 2018, Musicautor lodged a complaint with the European Commission regarding Bulgaria's non-compliance with Articles 5(2)(a) and (b) of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonisation of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society (the InfoSoc Directive). The complaint highlights specific provisions that are inconsistent with the Directive.

The complaint has been officially supported by 10 international organisations, including CISAC, GESAC, and BIEM, which have called on European Commissioner Mariya Gabriel to take all necessary measures to address the situation concerning private copying and reprography in Bulgaria.

In 2025, Musicautor commissioned a study (<https://www.cisac.org/Newsroom/articles/cisac-supports-new-study-and-joins-calls-private-copying-remuneration-bulgaria>) with Alpha Research, with the support of CISAC, estimating financial losses to rightsholders of EUR 14.3 million in 2024 alone due to a non-functioning private copying system.

In light of the continuing lack of action, Musicautor, in partnership with CISAC, has organised a roundtable and national discussion dedicated to the private copying problem. Bulgaria remains the only EU country where the private copying levy system is not functioning. Leading international experts in the field will participate in the event, aiming to share best practices and propose effective solutions to bring Bulgaria into compliance with European standards.

Law on Copyright and Related Rights of 1976, amended up to Law No. 55(I)/2022

Art. 7(2)(ie) - Reproduction, on any medium, carried out by a natural person for private use and for purposes that are not directly or indirectly commercial, on condition that the rightsholders receive fair compensation which takes into account whether or not technological measures have been applied to the specific work or other subject matter.

COMMENTS

The Law on Copyright and Related Rights of 1976, as amended (Intellectual Property Law 59/76) — gives copyright holders exclusive rights to control reproduction. This generally prohibits copying without the rights holder's authorisation.

However, there is a legal exception allowing individuals to make copies for private, non-commercial use, provided the rightsholders are entitled to fair compensation. This reflects EU law (specifically Article 5(2)(b) of the InfoSoc Directive), which requires member states to permit such private copying if fair remuneration is ensured.

At present, there is no system or mechanism in Cyprus to collect or distribute this compensation to rightsholders.

OVERVIEW

COLLECTING SOCIETY APPOINTED BY

Austro-Mechana and Literar-Mechana have legal monopolies and special authorisation as collective management societies in line with EU Directive 2014/26 on CMOs, and are supervised by the Special Authority for Collective Societies installed within the Ministry of Justice (Aufsichtsbehörde für Verwertungsgesellschaften). As for the collection of digital private copying levies, Austro-Mechana is additionally contractually mandated and authorized by all other Austrian CMOs having a legal claim to private copying. Literar-Mechana collects reprography levies.

BENEFICIARIES

AV, Audio, Visual Arts, Literary works, any and all authors, performers and producers of such content

LIABLE PARTIES FOR PAYMENT AND THEIR LEGAL OBLIGATIONS

The remuneration is collected through levies on media - integrated memory, memory cards or hard disc included - and on digital devices. Levy is also collected on reprographic devices.
 Payment: disclosure, must provide information on the type and quantity of levied products placed on the market on request.
 Reporting: must report the type and quantity of imported items.

EXEMPTION

Exports and professional use are exempted either upfront (professional use only) or the respective persons can apply for reimbursement of paid levies. Any person showing the prerequisites may apply for reimbursement, not only the first distributor. Reprography: Exemption applies only for exports. Exporters can apply for an ex-post refund of paid levies.

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL DEDUCTIONS

RATE SETTING

Levies and remuneration are determined through free negotiations between rights owners and the Chamber of Commerce or set by the Urheberrechtssenat, a specialized copyright tribunal foreseen for such cases, if negotiations fail.

For tariffs, the following criteria are relevant according to the law:

1. the comparable tariffs for levies hitherto in force and the total volume of the levy, whereas inadequate changes shall be avoided;
2. the comparable tariffs for levies and their volumes in Member States of the European Union or the Contracting Parties to the EEC;
3. effects on the common exploitation of works and the justified interests of authors;
4. the advantage of the reproducer, and the advantage of the person liable for payment, under consideration of the market development of the respective commercial sector, including the turnover with appliances and storage media;
5. the scope in which storage media and appliance are used on average for reproductions for personal or private use and the total amount of such uses, under consideration of the effects of the application of technical protective measures on the use of the respective works for reproductions due to the levy;
6. the attributes of storage media and appliances with respect to their use, in particular the productivity of appliances and the storage capacity as well as the ability for re-writing of storage media;
7. the commercial interests of manufacturers, merchants and importers of appliances and storage media, which must not be affected unacceptably;
8. an economically adequate relation between the levy and the typical price level of appliances, whereas the appliance levy shall not exceed 11 percent of the price level of such appliances; as far as empirical proof shows a nearly total use of an appliance for uses according to para. 2, this threshold may be exceeded.)

New rates are negotiated at irregular intervals (i.e., tariff negotiations 2010, 2015, 2024). Empirical study is necessary as a basis for levy calculation. Reprography: Rates are aligned frequently based on annual CPI changes.

REFURBISHED DEVICES

Refurbished devices are not subject to levy.

EXEMPTION AND REFUND

Exemptions apply for exports and professional use. A signed form provided by the professional end user can be used to obtain an ex-ante exemption. Regarding ex-post refunds or reimbursements for professional end users, an online application with relevant invoice is required. For exporters, and invoice of purchase, invoice of client, certification of payment, cargo documents or other (in case of smartphones: IMEI-Number of purchase and sale; all of the aforementioned per supplier). For reprographic devices, in case of export: type, brand, model, and serial number of device; purchase and sales invoices and delivery notes of exporter; confirmation of payment of foreign buyer of device.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Importers (who sell the media or appliance for the first time in Austria); distant direct sellers to Austrian private end consumers and manufacturers have to report the amounts themselves to Austro-Mechana or Literar-Mechana.

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

The law sets the reporting deadline with 15 days from the last quarter in which media has been distributed for the first time in Austria. The payment is due, as determined in the Umbrella Agreement with the Chamber of Commerce, by the end of the reporting month.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Austro-Mechana and Literar-Mechana are authorized to check the reports made in accordance with the Umbrella Agreement. We may also request from any whole- or retailer to report any amounts of levied media sold and who is their supplier.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

Austro-Mechana and Literar-Mechana are authorized by the relevant industry organizations to obtain detailed information from customs, the Austrian statistics office, and forwarding agents about imports and shipments of devices.

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

Professional exports are exempted, and a refund can be obtained by presenting the purchase invoice, export invoice, confirmation of payment and other export documents.

DEFINITION OF IMPORT

There is no definition in the law.

WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER?

Austro-Mechana always holds liable the first distributor in Austria, regardless whether he sells to whole-, retailers or end consumers. In case of direct distant sellers to Austrian private end consumers, that seller is hold liable. The act of first sale from an Austrian trader to another Austrian is the relevant act that triggers the reporting and payment obligations, not the physical delivery of the product to Austria. Whenever assessing the seat of a seller or purchaser within or outside Austria, we also consider the respective invoices.

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTS HOLDERS?

Austro-Mechana collects the monies and distributes them to the 7 collecting societies authorized to collect the remuneration, including Austro-Mechana itself. The collecting societies involved distribute the monies to their respective rights holders in their own discretion. Literar-Mechana collects reprography levies and distributes to its own rightsholders for text and to Bildrecht for image.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

Depends on the various regulations laid down by each collecting society for its own rightsholders.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM TIME LIMIT SET BY THE LAW TO DISTRIBUTE PC REMUNERATION AFTER THEIR COLLECTION?

Yes, 9 months after the end of the collection year (CMO-Directive).

FREQUENCY OF DISTRIBUTION

Distribution to other Austrian collective management societies having mandated Austro-Mechana happens on a quarterly basis. Depends on the various distribution plans, in Austro-Mechana, distribution is once a year. Distribution from Literar-Mechana to Bildrecht happens on a quarterly basis and to its own rightsholders up to two times per year.

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

Authors
Publishers
Performers
Producers

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

Free negotiation

HOW DO RIGHTSHOLDER CLAIM THEIR DISTRIBUTION?

Automatic/periodic distributions through CMOs

DISTRIBUTION KEYS SUBMITTED?

Yes

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

There is a total 50% social and cultural deduction, with 25% social and 25% cultural. The amount/percentage is mandated by law. Funds are used for pensions, social aid for certain emergency situations, and the promotion of cultural activities. Reprography: Deduction of up to 10% on a voluntary basis.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Law

Section 42 para. 2 to 7 Copyright Act

- (1) Any person may make single copies of a work for personal use.
- (2) Subject to paragraphs (3) and (4), a copy made for the purpose of making the work available to the public shall not constitute reproduction for personal use. Copies made for personal use may not be used for the purpose of making the work available to the public.
- (3) Schools and higher educational establishments may make and distribute copies for purposes of teaching or training, in the quantities required for a specific class or lecture (reproduction by schools for their own use). Authorization to make copies by schools for their own use shall not apply to works which, by their nature and designation, are intended for teaching or training.
- (4) Establishments which are open to the public and which collect works may, insofar as this is not done for profit (reproduction by collections for their own use),
  1. make a single copy of works in their possession; such copy may be exhibited (Section 16(2)), lent (Section 16a) and used in accordance with Section 56b in place of the work copied, subject to the same conditions as that work;
  2. make single copies of works which have been made public, but have not been published or which have been sold out; for as long as the work has not appeared or has been sold out, such copies may be exhibited (Section 16(2)), lent under Section 16a and used in accordance with Section 56b.
- (5) The following forms of reproduction shall not be permissible at any time without the consent of the person entitled:
  1. reproduction of whole books or periodicals, except where copied by hand, unless the work in question has not been published or has been sold out, or where paragraph (4) item 1 applies; the same shall also apply where the copy is not made from the book or periodical itself but from a copy thereof, produced by any method;
  2. execution of a work of architecture according to a plan or design or reproduction of such a work.
- (6) Schools, universities and other educational institutions may, for purposes of teaching, make and distribute copies to the extent justified thereby, in the number required for a specific class or course ("reproduction for a school's own use"); this also applies to musical scores. On carriers other than those named in paragraph 1, this is permitted only for the pursuit of non-commercial purposes. The authorization does not apply to works which, by their nature and designation, are intended for school or instructional use.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

(7) Publicly accessible libraries or museums, archives, or institutions active in the field of film or sound heritage (“cultural-heritage institutions”) may reproduce, or have reproduced, works that are permanently in their collections—regardless of format or medium—for the purpose of preservation (“reproduction for a cultural-heritage institution’s own use”), where and insofar as such reproduction is required for that purpose. This use may not be waived by contract. In addition, publicly accessible institutions that collect copies of works may make, or have made, reproductions for inclusion in their own archive (“reproduction for a collection’s own use”), where and insofar as such reproduction is required for that purpose. On carriers other than those named in paragraph 1, this is only permitted if no direct or indirect economic or commercial purpose is pursued. Subject to that limitation, they may also:

1. make one copy from each item in their own holdings and, in place of the copied item, exhibit it (Section 16(2)), lend it (Section 16a), and use it under Section 56b under the same conditions as the original; and
2. make single copies of works that have been made public but not published, or that are out of print, and exhibit them (Section 16(2)), lend them under Section 16a, and use them under Section 56b for as long as the work remains unpublished or out of print.

Section 42a Copyright Act

Reproduction for the Personal Use of Another

Single copies of a work may also be made, free of charge and on order, for the personal use of another person. Such reproduction shall, however, be permissible even if made for payment.

1. where reproduction is by reprography or a similar method;
2. where a work of literature or music is copied by hand.

Section 42b para. 1 Copyright Act

Remuneration (Private Copying and Reprography Levies)

(1) If it is probable that, owing to its nature, a work which has been broadcast or recorded on a video or audio recording medium will be reproduced for personal use by fixing on a video or audio medium, the author shall be entitled to equitable remuneration (“blank cassette levy”) if recording material is commercially available on the domestic market; unrecorded video or audio media, suitable for such reproduction, or other video or audio recording media, shall be deemed to constitute recording material.

Section 42b para. 2 Copyright Act Remuneration (Reprography Levies)

(2) If a work is of a type that is likely to be reproduced for personal use using reprographic or similar processes, the author is entitled to appropriate remuneration (reprographic levy),

1. if a device designed for making such reproductions (reprographic device) is placed on the market for commercial purposes within the country (equipment levy) and
2. if a reprographic device is operated in schools, universities, vocational training institutions, research institutions, public libraries, or in institutions that make reprographic devices available for a fee (operator levy).

Law

Collection: Section 42b para. 3 to 9 Copyright Act

(3) The following persons shall be required to pay such levies:

1. blank cassette or appliance levy: the person who first makes the recording material or reprographic appliance commercially available for payment in Austria; the person who makes the recording material or reprographic appliance commercially available for payment in Austria, but is not the first to put it into circulation or offer it for sale, shall be liable as guarantor and payer; however, persons who, within a six-month period, acquire audio recording media with not more than 5,000 hours playing time and video recording media with not more than 10,000 hours playing time shall be exempt from liability for the blank cassette levy;
2. operator levy: the operator of the reprographic appliance.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

- (4) The following circumstances shall be taken into particular consideration in assessing the amount of the levies::
1. in the case of the blank cassette levy, the playing time;
  2. in the case of the appliance levy, the capacity of the appliance;
  3. in the case of the operator levy, the type and extent of use of the reprographic appliance that is probable in the circumstances, particularly the type of establishment, the location of the appliance and the use normally made of the appliance.
- (5) Claims for remuneration under paragraphs (1) and (2) may be asserted only by collecting societies.
- (6) The collecting society shall refund the equitable remuneration:
1. to persons who export recording material or reprographic appliances abroad prior to their sale to the end user;
  2. to persons who use recording material for reproduction for non-personal use, unless such non-personal use constitutes a free use of the work; prima facie evidence shall suffice.
- (7) Claims to remuneration under paragraph (1) do not arise if the person liable for payment makes a prima facie showing that the storage media will not be used, by themselves or by third parties, for reproductions for own or private use.
- (8) The collecting society must provide on its website a simple, comprehensible and user-friendly way to assert the refund claim and the exemption from the payment obligation, enabling effective assertion without excessive burden.
- (9) Invoices for the sale or other placing on the market of the storage media and devices referred to in paragraphs (1) and (2) must indicate the amount of remuneration attributable to the storage medium or device.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

Austro- Mechana wants to introduce the obligation to report IMEI numbers for mobile phones, in order to control the refunds for exports better. This may be accomplished through changing the umbrella agreement with the competent chamber of commerce. The Constitutional Court of Austria, with effect of January 2019, has repealed one of the tariff criteria, namely the provision that the tariffs may not exceed 6% of the typical retailers' price of the respective storage media. The target value limiting the annual revenues to EUR 20 Mil. ended in 2019.

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES? AND WHY?

An online shopping platform (Amazon). Settlement talks were initiated after a negative judgment by Austria's Supreme Court in 2017 (Austrian Supreme Court of 21 February, 2017, 4 Ob 62/16w).

COURT CASES

A case against Amazon is still pending before the Commercial Court of Commerce of Austria. Amazon is still negotiating on a settlement. It is not foreseeable at the moment whether the organisation will have to continue to litigate or not.

EXPLANATION ON DEVELOPMENTS

In 2016, Austro-Mechana settled with nearly all traders of so-called new media in Austria and received supplementary compensation for the years 2012-Q3/2015. From 2016 onwards, annual revenues are more or less stable around the 20 Mil. benchmark.

There is, however, a significant decrease in sales of physical media with the exception of mobile phones. People are relying more on the cloud for private copying and/or streaming services. A levy for cloud private copying is therefore the immediate strategic aim of Austro-Mechana.

RATE SETTING

Levies/remuneration are determined by Law. The tariffs and the list of products subject to remuneration are set in a Royal Decree by the competent Minister after consulting the Consultative Commission of interested parties for private copying.

The criterion used for determining levies and level of remuneration is an estimation of the harm caused and a market analysis of the products used to make private copies. Negotiations for new tariffs are initiated if one of the parties concerned (rightsholders, industry, consumers, etc.) so requests. There is no legal obligation for an empirical study to be used as a basis for levy calculation.

REFURBISHED DEVICES

Refurbished devices are subject to levy, and refurbishers are obliged to pay the levy. Levies differ for refurbished devices vs. new devices.

EXEMPTION AND REFUND

Exemptions or refunds apply for exports, professional use and list of article XI.233, §1 of the Code of Economic Law.

No products are per-se exempt from levies.

Regarding ex-ante exemptions, an agreement between Auvibel and manufacturers or importers (some conditions are necessary for the importers), a declaration on honor from the professional user to the liable party, a monthly report to Auvibel of the devices and media who were brought into circulation on the national territory by professional users are provided.

For refunds, parties must provide purchase invoices plus (i) for exports/intra-EU deliveries, proof of export (sales invoices and transport documents); (ii) for entities under Art. XI.233 §1 ELC, the company's articles of association; and (iii) for professional use, a written request to Auvibel with purchase invoices and a sworn statement of exclusive professional use. Ex-post refunds are filed by the end user, but professional users may authorize contributors, distributors (wholesale or retail), or a recognized professional organization to apply on their behalf.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Duty of individual industry debtors to report and pay

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Part of the mission of Auvibel is to undertake regular checks on the declaration by auditing the reporting process and the accounting of the legally responsible parties. Auvibel also purchases market data regarding the sale in Belgium of products submitted in order to compare it with collection.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

The law allows Auvibel to exchange information with various public authorities.

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

Yes in certain cases: exports from wholesalers or manufacturers are exempted as their responsibility starts only upon the first sale in Belgium.

DEFINITION OF IMPORT

The Royal decree of 18 October 2013 gives definitions.

WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER?

The Royal Decree of 18 October 2013 defines the importer as someone who provides devices and blank media on the Belgian market which are subject to the levy for private copying and coming from a non-EU country and the intra-EU purchaser as someone who provides devices and blank media on the Belgian market which are subject to the levy for private copying and coming from a country that is a member of the European Union.

With regard to e-commerce, the Belgian court has pronounced as follows on this matter:

"Anyone who offers products liable for the remuneration for private copying via a website and who thereby aims expressly at Belgian customers, makes specific advertising, takes the initiative of and bears responsibility for importing those products into Belgium, which is also presented in the general conditions of sale thereof".

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

There is a maximum percentage per collecting societies provided for in the Code of Economic Law (art. XI.256): 15% of the average of collection over the three last years. This percentage may be exceeded provided that justification for exceeding it is given in the annual report.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM TIME LIMIT SET BY THE LAW TO DISTRIBUTE PC REMUNERATION AFTER THEIR COLLECTION?

Yes:

For Auvibel: 9 months from the end of the financial year in which the remuneration was collected.

For members of Auvibel: 6 months from receipt of these sums.

Art XI.229

Authors, performers and producers of phonograms and audiovisual works have a right to remuneration for private copying (...) when reproduction occurs under Arts. XI.190, 9° & 17°, and XI.217, 7° & 16°. The remuneration is paid by the manufacturer, importer or intra-EU acquirer of media plainly used for private copying, or of devices plainly used for such copying, when placed on the national market. The King determines which devices/media are plainly used for private copying. The remuneration is distributed per Art. XI.234 by the Belgian collecting societies/CMOs that manage it. The King designates one representative CMO to ensure collection and distribution. An author or performer who has assigned this right retains a right to equitable remuneration for private copying.

Art. XI.232

The King determines, by categories of technically similar media and devices which He defines, whether they are plainly used for the private reproduction of works and performances, and sets the modalities for collection, distribution and control of the remuneration, as well as the moment it falls due.

The King may, on a specific list, determine categories of technically similar media and devices not plainly used for private copying and not subject to the private-copy remuneration.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Computers or categories of computers as defined by the King can be made subject to the remuneration—or placed on the specific list mentioned in the previous paragraph—only by Royal Decree deliberated in the Council of Ministers.

At the same time as He determines the status of devices and media, the King fixes by Royal Decree (deliberated in the Council of Ministers) the remuneration referred to in Art. XI.229.

This remuneration is established by category of technically similar devices and media.

A device plainly used for private copying of works and performances that permanently incorporates a medium is subject to only a single remuneration.

In fixing the remuneration, particular account is taken of whether or not technological measures (Arts. I.13, 7°, XI.291 and XV.69) have been applied to the relevant works or performances.

The amount of the remuneration may be revised every three years; if the conditions justifying the amount have manifestly and durably changed, it may be revised earlier; an early revision must be reasoned by the change in initial conditions.

The absence of technological measures may not prejudice the right to remuneration as defined in Art. XI.229.

Art. XI.233

The remuneration under Art. XI.229 is refunded, under modalities set by the King, to:

- (1) producers of sound and audiovisual works;
- (2) broadcasting organizations;
- (3) officially recognized and publicly subsidized institutions for preserving sound/audiovisual documents (refund only for media intended for preservation and on-site consultation);
- (4) blind, visually impaired, deaf and hard-of-hearing persons and recognized institutions for them;
- (5) recognized educational institutions using sound/audiovisual material for teaching or scientific purposes;
- (6) recognized hospitals, prisons and youth-care institutions.

In addition, the King may, by Royal Decree deliberated in the Council of Ministers, designate other categories of natural or legal persons who either (1) benefit from full or partial refund of remuneration passed on to the media/devices they purchased, or (2) for whom the payers under Art. XI.229 are exempted or refunded (in whole or in part) for the media/devices acquired by those persons.

Such refunds/exemptions must be duly justified, either (1) to guarantee, without prejudice to creation, the most equal access for all to ICT, where the remuneration would otherwise hinder that access, or (2) to guarantee acquisition by persons who manifestly do not use the equipment for the reproductions covered by Art. XI.229.

The King determines the conditions for refund or exemption.

Art. XI.234

§1. For the remuneration under Art. XI.229, the King may determine the allocation key among the following categories of works:

- (1) literary;
- (2) graphic or plastic art;
- (3) sound;
- (4) audiovisual.

The portion of the remuneration relating to sound and audiovisual works is divided in thirds among authors, performers and producers. The portion relating to literary and graphic/plastic works is attributed to authors.

BELGIUM

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

The two preceding paragraphs are mandatory.

The portions to which authors and performers are entitled (for sound/audiovisual works), and the authors' portion for literary/graphic/plastic works, are inalienable.

§2. The Communities and the Federal State may allocate 30% of the proceeds to promoting creation, by cooperation agreement.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Article 46 of the Copyright and Related Rights Law of 2010

Article 46 - (Private and other Internal Reproduction)

(1) Without prejudice to the rights referred to in paragraph (1) of Article 36 of this Law, the reproduction of a disclosed work shall be free if only one copy has been made and if the conditions referred to in paragraphs (2) and (3) of this Article have been met.

(2) A natural person may reproduce a work freely:

b) on any other media, provided that he does it for private use, provided that the copies are not intended for or accessible by the public and provided that such reproduction is not aimed at gaining direct or indirect economic advantage.

(...)

(4) Unless otherwise provided by this Law or a contract, and independently of the provisions of paragraphs (1), (2) and (3) of this Article, the reproduction of the following shall not be permitted:

- a) written works to the extent of the whole book – unless the copies of such book are out of print for a minimum of two years;
- b) graphic editions of musical works (sheet music) – except by means of handwritten transcription,
- c) electronic databases and computer programs,
- d) works of architecture, in the form of building an architectural structure,
- e) any work if such reproduction would be contrary to the ordinary exploitation of a work and detrimental to the legitimate interests of the author or copyright holder to an unreasonable extent.

LEVY ONLY

Articles 36-37-38 of the Copyright and Related Rights Law of 2010

Article 36 - (Right to Remuneration for Private and Other Internal Use)

(1) If, under the provisions of Article 46 of this Law, a work may be reproduced without author's consent, the author of the works which, due to their nature, may be expected to be reproduced by photocopying or recording them on sound, video or text recording media for private or other internal use shall have the right to remuneration for such use.

(2) The remuneration, referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article, for sound and visual recording shall be payable: a) at the first sale or importation of new technical devices for sound and visual recording and b) at the first sale or importation of new blank sound, video or text recording media.

(3) The remuneration for photocopying referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article shall be payable: a) at the first sale or importation of new photocopying devices, b) on made photocopies intended for sale.

(4) For the purposes of this Law, the importation into Bosnia and Herzegovina shall mean any release into circulation and any bringing of goods into the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina, with the exception of small quantities intended for private and non-commercial use, which are brought into as a part of personal luggage or sent in small consignments.

(5) Equal to photocopying shall be considered all other reproduction techniques, and equal to sound and visual recording devices shall be considered all other devices allowing for the achievement of the same effect.

A natural person may, without the author's consent, reproduce a copyright work from a legally published source in any medium if he does so for private use, or in the form of photocopying and other personal use if this copy is not intended for or available to the public and has no direct or indirect commercial purpose.

2. Where a copyright work may be reproduced without the author's consent in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (1) of this Article, authors of the work which, by reason of their nature, may be expected to be reproduced without their permission by recording on sound, image or text or photocopying, for private use, are entitled to an appropriate remuneration from the sale of blank sound, image or text carriers and devices for audio and visual recording and photocopying devices.

LEGAL BASIS

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

3. In addition to the rights referred to in paragraph (2) of this Article, authors have the right to appropriate remuneration from a natural or legal person who performs photocopying services against payment.
4. All other duplication techniques are equated with photocopying, and other devices that provide the same effect are equated with audio and visual recording devices.

LEVY ONLY

Article 184

1. The appropriate remuneration referred to in Article 183, paragraph (2) of this Act shall be paid by manufacturers of blank sound, image or text media, manufacturers of audio and visual recording devices, manufacturers of photocopiers, and jointly with them importers of blank audio, video or text media, audio devices and visual recording, photocopiers, unless they are imports of small quantities intended for private and non-commercial use as part of personal luggage. If the listed devices and items are not manufactured in the Republic of Croatia, the fee shall be paid by the importer.
2. The obligation to pay the appropriate remuneration arises upon the first sale in the Republic of Croatia or import into the Republic of Croatia of new blank sound, image or text carriers, new audio and visual recording devices and new photocopying devices.
3. The obligation to pay the appropriate remuneration also arises when the devices and carriers referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article are brought into the Republic of Croatia from another Member State of the European Union.
4. The obligation to pay the appropriate remuneration does not arise if new blank sound, image or text carriers, new audio and visual recording devices, and new photocopying devices are taken out or exported from the Republic of Croatia.
5. The remuneration referred to in Article 183, paragraph (3) of this Act shall be paid according to the data on the number of photocopies made.
6. The authors may not waive the right to appropriate remuneration referred to in Article 183, paragraphs (2) and (3) of this Act. The remuneration must be paid collectively.

Article 240 paragraph (14)

Appropriate remuneration for the reproduction for private use referred to in Article 184 paragraphs (2) and (3) of this Act is a fair remuneration, whereby, in determining the amount of appropriate remuneration, in addition to the principle for setting the price of using the subject matter of protection referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article, the probable damage to the right holder incurred shall be taken into account when his work or subject matter of related rights is reproduced for private use without his authorization, the application of technical measures of protecting access to the use of works or subject matter of related rights and other circumstances that may affect the proper measurement of the form and amount of appropriate remuneration. The appropriate remuneration shall not unreasonably burden the business of a manufacturer and importer referred to in Article 184 paragraph (1) of this Act, so that the price of blank sound, image or text carriers, technical devices and other relevant market circumstances shall be taken into account when determining the amount of the appropriate remuneration. Before initiating the procedure of adopting the tariffs referred to in Article 235 of this Act for new blank sound, image or text carriers and technical devices, the collective management organization shall conduct research on the actual use of these empty sound, image or text carriers and technical devices for reproduction of works and subject matter of related rights, and the results of which shall be taken into account in determining the amount of appropriate remuneration. The results of such research shall be made public on the website of the collective rights organization.

COLLECTION PROCESS

DEFINITION OF IMPORT

Based on Section 25 (3) of the Copyright Act: Entitlement to remuneration to be paid by the persons defined in Paragraph (2) (a) to (d) in connection with the reproduction of a work for individual use shall pertain to the author at the time of the import, receiving or first sale of:

- a) Device for making reproductions of fixations;
- b) Device for making printed reproductions;
- c) Blank record carriers

WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER?

The person or company who imports the good to the territory of the Czech Republic from countries outside EEA.

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES? AND WHY?

The most discussed products are tablets, smartphones and record TVs. Some parties refuse to pay the remuneration (e.g. 3% of the price of notebook – they are only willing to pay (if at all) 3 % of the component price. It's HDD, SSD and optical disc drive and their price is less than one-tenth of notebook's one).

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

INTERGRAM and OSA distribute collections directly to individual rightsholders (performers and producers).

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

INTERGRAM: 15,4 %

OSA: 8%

Varying one-half of percentage point depends on many parameters and detailed description is beyond this questionnaire.

FREQUENCY OF DISTRIBUTION

INTERGRAM: once a year

OSA: quarterly

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

INTERGRAM: Performers and producers

OSA: Music composers, lyricist and publishers

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

General Assembly decides by way of Distribution Rules.

DISTRIBUTION KEYS

INTERGRAM DISTRIBUTION PERFORMING ARTISTS: (Accounting Rules A, II, d), (Method of distribution: A,II,1,3)

II. Unidentifiable income:

- d) Incomes from the rental of copies of the recorded performances

- Method of distribution:

1. Incomes collected in the audio field shall be distributed as a share proportional to the amount of the identifiable incomes collected for the use in radios and in other fields of use of audio and incomes collected in the audio-visual field shall be distributed as a share proportional to the amount of the identifiable incomes collected for use in television broadcasting and in other fields of audio-visual use.

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

[...]

3. Incomes from blank audio-visual carriers and technical devices for making reproductions of the audio-visual fixations, incomes from making the performances available to the public by means of a television broadcast and incomes from the rental of video carriers are distributed according to point 1; for the purpose of assessing their share of the unidentifiable incomes specified in this point, the performing artists (in particular actors, musicians, singers, dubbing directors and theatre play directors, if these theatre plays are recorded on an audio-visual fixation) may substantiate the amount of their income by submitting a Statutory Declaration.

PRODUCERS OF PHONOGRAM: private copy levies = unidentifiable income (Accounting Rules B, II, e), (Method of distribution: B, II, e)

II. Unidentifiable income:

- e) incomes connected to the reproduction of fixations for personal use

- Method of distribution:

100% of the income – based on the amount of income connected to the sale of phonogram carriers distributed for the purpose of a separate sale or connected to direct retail sale to end customers in the territory of the Czech Republic, including the incomes from such a sale in an electronic form (downloading), incomes from making the phonograms available to the public by means of on-demand streaming and 1/2 of the incomes from making the phonograms available to the public through audio-visual on-demand streaming (e.g. through Youtube), based on the affirmation of the producer;

PRODUCERS OF AUDIOVISUAL FIXATION: private copy levies = unidentifiable income (Accounting Rules C), (Method of distribution: C)

C) Unidentifiable incomes:

- the incomes connected to reproduction of audio-visual fixations for personal use

- Method of distribution:

88% of collection for blank carriers video is distributed according to the affirmation of the producer

12% of collection for blank carriers video is distributed according to the identifiable income from the use of videoclips

OSA DISTRIBUTION

One scheme for both audio and video, statement from OSA Distribution Rules:

- 5.10. Royalties for reproductions of musical works for personal use.

The royalties collected from blank carriers and from devices used to make reproductions will be distributed proportionately among the domestic copyright holders and foreign collective managers of mechanical rights that have concluded reciprocal agreements with OSA.

The royalties will be distributed to the domestic copyright holders proportionately in accordance with their distributed incomes for the past two calendar years as follows:

- (a) 90% in line with the incomes from mechanical rights (incl. mechanical rights from on-line uses)
(b) 10% in line with the incomes from public performance of live music.

The royalties will be distributed to foreign societies proportionately in accordance with the amounts received from OSA distributions for the past two years as follows:

- (a) 90% in line with the amounts for mechanical rights (incl. mechanical rights from on-line uses)
(b) 10% in line with the amounts for public performance of live music.

General Scheme:

Act No. 121/2000 Coll. as amended up to Act No. 429/2022 Coll.

§30 30

- Using a work for the personal use of a natural person is not regarded as “use of a work” within the meaning of this Act, provided that the purpose of such use is not to obtain direct or indirect economic or commercial advantage, unless this Act expressly provides otherwise.
- A person does not infringe copyright if, for his or her personal use, they make a recording, reproduction or imitation of a work.
- Unless this Act provides otherwise, the use of a computer program or electronic database is regarded as use within the meaning of this Act even for the personal use of a natural person or the own internal use of a legal person or entrepreneur, including making reproductions of such works for that purpose.

The same applies to:

- making a reproduction or imitation of an architectural work by construction, even for personal use or for the own internal use of a legal person or entrepreneur (§ 30a), and
- making a recording of an audiovisual work at its communication to the public from a recording or by its transmission (§ 20) for the personal use of a natural person.

4. A reproduction or imitation of a work of fine art made for the personal use of a natural person under paragraph 1 must always be clearly marked as such.

5. A reproduction or imitation of a work made for the personal use of a natural person under paragraph 1 must not be used for any other purpose than the one stated there.

6. The provisions of § 25, § 43 and § 44 (remuneration, technological protection, etc.) are not affected by paragraph 1.

Reprographic Devices:

§30 A

- Copyright is not infringed by:
  - a natural person who, for his or her personal use,
  - a legal person or entrepreneur who, for its own internal use,
  - a person who, on order for the personal use of a natural person, or
  - a person who, on order for the own internal use of a legal person or entrepreneur,

Makes a reprographic reproduction of a work on paper or a similar medium by photographic technique or another method having similar effects, except where the reproduction concerns a published musical score of a musical or musical-dramatic work.

In the cases under points (c) and (d), the person who makes such reproductions must duly and in time pay the remuneration under § 25.

2. The provisions of § 30(4)–(6) (marking of fine-art copies, limitation to personal use, non-prejudice of § 25, § 43 and § 44) apply mutatis mutandis.

RATE SETTING

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

By law (or other legal instrument).

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

The remuneration is based on the tariffs that are set by law. According to the preparatory works, the tariffs for the storage media covered by the Danish scheme take into account any legal and compensation-eligible private copying of audio and audiovisual works that the storage media allow for and are based on an average of the sales figures for the storage media covered by the scheme sold to private consumers in 2018, 2019 and 2020. The ongoing revenue for the rights holders arises from the tariffs being imposed on the ongoing sales in the year in question. The tariffs are adjusted annually by the rate adjustment percentage, cf. the Danish Rate Adjustment Percentage Act.

HOW FREQUENTLY ARE NEW RATES NEGOTIATED?

Not relevant, rates are set by Law.

DENMARK

RATE SETTING

HOW FREQUENTLY ARE NEW RATES NEGOTIATED?

They can only be changed by law. However, it follows from the law that the Danish Minister of Culture in 2023 and every three years thereafter, must conduct an evaluation of the provisions of the scheme in order to assess the need for revision of these.

IS AN EMPIRICAL STUDY NECESSARY AS A BASIS FOR LEVY CALCULATION?

ARE THERE EXEMPTIONS FROM THE LEVY PAYMENT OBLIGATION?

Yes, in case of export and in case of professional use

ARE THERE ANY CONSUMERS OR BUYERS EXEMPT FROM PAYING THE LEVIES (OTHER THAN PROFESSIONAL USE)?

Yes, professional users, including educational institutions, can be exempted. People with visual or hearing impairments are also exempted.

EXEMPTION (EX-ANTE)?

Upfront entities will have to apply to and be approved by Copydan KulturPlus through an approval scheme. Companies/professionals and educational institutions can then be exempted if the storage media are used solely for professional purposes, including commercial purposes and educational purposes. Administration and granting of exemptions are managed by the Danish Ministry of Culture.

REFUND/REIMBURSEMENT (EX-POST)?

The levy can be refunded for storage media covered by the scheme in the following cases: commercial export, professional purposes (including educational and commercial purposes), use of the storage media by people with visual or hearing disabilities, or use of the storage media for special purposes exempted from the levy by the Minister of Culture. Generally, a refund can only be made if Copydan Kultur Plus has received levies for the relevant storage media from the liable manufacturer, importer, or wholesaler. In case of doubt, it is the applicant's responsibility to document that this condition is met. All liable users can obtain refund if criteria are met.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Duty of individual industry debtors to report only

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

A company liable for payment registered at Copydan Kultur Plus must report monthly or quarterly the number of storage media supplied/sold per month in the preceding month/quarter. Quarterly reporting can only be chosen by companies that report less than 50,000 DKK per quarter. If 50,000 DKK or more is reported, the company automatically switches to monthly reporting. The same time limits apply to payment of the levy to Copydan Kultur Plus.

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Copydan Kultur Plus may choose an external publicly authorized accountant or an administrative employee within the organization who has an undisputed right to make both announced and unannounced control visits. When making a control visit the accountant or administrative employee has the right to examine any accounting material, which is believed to have any value in relation to undertaking the control.

No definition in the law

WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER?

The importer is the person or entity who brings the media into the country.

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

Music:

Remuneration is distributed from Copydan Kultur Plus to rightsholder organizations within music. Individual distribution happens through the different rightsholder organizations.

Audiovisual works:

Remuneration is distributed from Copydan Kultur Plus to rightsholder organizations within audiovisual works. Individual distribution happens through the different rightsholder organizations.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

No

IS THERE A MAXIMUM TIME LIMIT SET BY THE LAW TO DISTRIBUTE PC REMUNERATION AFTER THEIR COLLECTION?

Yes, annually

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

All categories of rightsholders within music and audiovisual works

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

A distribution key has been settled between categories of rightsholders.

HOW DO RIGHTSHOLDER CLAIM THEIR DISTRIBUTION?

Automatic/periodic distributions through CMOs

DENMARK

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

DISTRIBUTION KEYS SUBMITTED?

Where possible, individual distribution is based on statistical surveys of private copying, which applies to both audio and video.

Audio

1/3 – Authors

1/3 - Performers

1/3 - Producers of a phonogram

Video

1/3 – Authors

1/3 - Performers

1/3 - Producers of an audio-visual work

In advance the broadcasters are given a 5% share.

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

There is a Social and Cultural deduction, where the amount/percentage is mandated by law.

The organizations representing the different categories of rightsholders are responsible for the allocation of funds to artist, cultural productions and social schemes. The funds can be used for grants, production support, etc.

LEGAL BASIS

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

The Consolidation Act on Copyright, No 1093 of August 20, 2023

§12 Reproduction for private use

Any person may make, or have made, individual copies of a published work for his or her private use, provided that this does not take place for commercial purposes. Such copies may not be exploited in any other way.

LEVY ONLY

Section 39

Any person who on a commercial basis manufactures or imports storage media on which sound or images can be recorded or otherwise copied shall pay remuneration to the authors of the works mentioned in subsection 2.

Subsection 2

The remuneration shall be paid for storage media that are suitable for the making of copies for private use, and only for works which have been broadcast on radio or television, which have been published on phonogram, film, videogram or the like, or which have been made available in such a way that the public has access to them at an individually chosen place and time.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Subsection 3

The administration and supervision, including the collection, shall be carried out by a joint organisation which represents a substantial part of authors, performers and other rightholders, including producers of sound recordings etc. and photographers whose works, performances etc. are used in Denmark. The organisation shall be approved by the Minister for Culture. The Minister may require to be provided with all information on the collection, administration and distribution of the remuneration.

Subsection 4

The organisation shall lay down guidelines for the payment of the remuneration to the beneficiaries so that the distribution is, as far as possible, made in accordance with the copying which takes place. However, one third of the annual amount available for payment shall be used to support purposes which are common to authors etc. within the groups represented by the organisation, cf. subsection 3.

Subsection 5

The Minister for Culture shall lay down more detailed rules on the handling of cases in connection with the approval of the joint organisation referred to in subsection 3.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

On the 5th of March 2015, the ECJ gave its judgement in C-463/12 – “Båndkopi”.

The central issue in the case was whether the Danish implementation of article 5 (2) (b) of the infosoc directive was in conformity with EU Law. Nokia Denmark (now Microsoft Denmark) had argued that the Danish levy on SD-cards was in violation with EU Law. The main arguments from Nokia was:

1. Copying on SD-cards constitute minimal harm, especially because they are multifunctional, so implementing a levy is not allowed
2. The fact that there is a levy on SD-cards used in mobile phones, but not on internal memory in mobile phones, constitutes a violation of the principles of equal treatment.

Firstly, the ECJ ruled that the fact that a device can be used for private copying, is enough to justify a levy and that the actual copying or the fact that a device is multifunctional can only influence the size of the levy.

Secondly, the ECJ ruled that the courts in the member states must determine whether there are legitimate objective reasons for not subjecting internal memory in mobile phones to a levy. The ECJ did however in no way indicate that the lack of levy on internal memory of mobile phones would make the particular levy on SD-cards incompatible with EU Law. On the contrary, the ECJ hinted that a levy should also be implemented on internal memory of mobile phones.

In addition to the central issues of the case, the ECJ gave and reiterated a lot of opinions which strengthen the European remuneration schemes.

The ECJ referred the case to the Danish Court of Appeals for the final judgment, see below.

DENMARK

COURT CASES

The Danish Court of Appeals gave in its judgment in the case between Copydan Kultur Plus and Nokia Denmark (now Microsoft Denmark) on 12 October 2016. The Court of Appeals only took into consideration whether the Danish levy on SD memory cards was in violation with EU-law and found that the levy is/was compliant with EU-law, noting that the copying in question could not be characterized as minimal. Consequently, the Court of Appeals found Nokia liable for the payment of levy for SD cards in the period 2004-2014. Nokia appealed the case to the Danish Supreme Court. The Supreme Court gave its judgment on 4 September 2017. However, the ruling of the Court of Appeals was final in respect to Nokia's/Microsoft's liability, as the Supreme Court only gave its judgment regarding interests. Thus, Nokia/Microsoft was found liable for the payment of levy for SD cards in the period 2004-2014. The ECJ indicated in C-463/12 (Båndkopi) that the Danish implementation of article 5(2)(b) of the Infosoc Directive was not in conformity with EU-law since the Danish remuneration system at the time only had levy on detachable media and not on integrated media (non-detachable media).

EXPLANATION ON DEVELOPMENTS

The change in consumers purchase of blank media (with levy) to equipment with private copying components that cannot be detached (no levy), is the primary explanation to the decrease in revenues.

However, the guaranteed DVD-compensation limits the decrease somewhat.

RATE SETTING

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

The Government of the Estonian Republic establishes by a regulation the procedure for payment of remuneration to compensate for private use of audio-visual works and sound recordings of works, the list of storage media and recording devices and the rates of remuneration to be collected on them.

The list of storage media and recording devices and the rates of remuneration to be collected on them shall be established on the basis of the following conditions:

- 1) the remuneration collected must ensure the authors, performers, producers of phonograms and producers of the first fixations of films a fair compensation for the damage that they are estimated to suffer due to the restriction of their economic rights, and taking into account the number of copies made for private use;
- 2) the entry of a storage medium or a recording device in the list and the rate of remuneration collected on it must be pro rata to the extent of the damage, incurred presumably due to the fact that the respective type of storage media or recording devices are used for the reproduction of works or sound recordings of works;

ESTONIA

RATE SETTING

- 3) the recording devices on which the remuneration shall be collected, include but are not limited to laptops, tablets or personal computers and smartphones, and the storage media on which the remuneration shall be connected include but are not limited to external hard drives, USB flash drives and memory cards;
- 4) the rate of remuneration collected on recording devices shall be 3 – 8 euros and the rate of remuneration collected on storage media shall be 0.03 – 4 euros.

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

Tariff rates are set by political decision.

ARE THERE ANY PRODUCTS EXEMPT FROM LEVIES?

The remuneration shall be repaid on the storage media and recording devices:

- 1) which, due to their technical characteristics, do not enable the reproduction of audio-visual works and sound recordings of works as single copies;
- 2) exported or transported from Estonia into the Community customs territory;
- 3) which are used in the course of the activities specified in the articles of association of the undertaking;
- 4) which are used in an activity in the case of which the result of the main activity of the person who makes the recording requires the manufacture of an audio or video recording as an intermediate stage;
- 5) which are intended for recording activities in educational and research institutions for the purpose of teaching or scientific research;
- 6) used for making recordings for the benefit of disabled persons.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Any manufacturer, importer and person who brings recording devices and storage media from the customs territory of the European Community into Estonia is obliged to inform the organization appointed to collect remuneration four times a year of the quantity of recording devices and storage media produced in Estonia or imported or brought into Estonia from another Member State during the previous three months. Unless otherwise agreed, the information for the relevant quarter must be submitted no later than the 20th day of the month following the quarter.

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

The collector of remuneration has the right to obtain necessary information from customs authorities and statistical organisations and manufacturing and importing organisations and sellers. The information submitted is confidential and the collector of remuneration has the right to use and disclose the information only in connection with the collection of remuneration. The collector of remuneration is appointed by the Ministry of Justice.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

Yes

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

Exports are exempted by law. The remuneration shall be repaid on the storage media and recording devices exported or transported from Estonia into the Community customs territory.

ESTONIA

COLLECTION PROCESS

WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER?

An importer is a person who brings the recording devices and storage media, specified in the Government of the Republic regulation, to Estonia for the first time from outside the European Union, as well as from another European Union country.

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

Every year, the Minister of Justice and Digital Affairs appoints a committee, which is proportionally composed of collective management organisations representing authors, performers, phonogram producers and producers of the first fixations of films, and a representative of the Ministry of Justice and Digital Affairs. The remuneration is distributed between the CMOs based on the distribution plan. Each CMO is responsible for distributing the remuneration to rights holders based on their own distribution rules.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

The Minister of Justice and Digital Affairs appoints a collective management organisation (so far it has been the Estonian Author's Society) as the collector of remuneration and the organisation has the right to deduct expenses related to the collection and payment of remuneration from the remuneration collected. The law does not stipulate any maximum amount (percentage) of administrative costs, but the committee responsible for developing the distribution plan is responsible approving the expenses of the collector.

FREQUENCY OF DISTRIBUTION

Yearly

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

The remuneration shall be distributed among authors, performers, producers of phonograms and producers of the first fixations of films according to the use of works and phonograms.

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

Distribution schemes are set and approved by the Ministry of Justice and Digital Affairs not later than three months after the end of the budgetary year, having previously obtained the approval of the representatives (collective managing organisations) of authors, performers, producers of phonograms and producers of the first fixations of films.

DISTRIBUTION KEYS SUBMITTED?

Distribution scheme, audio: 33.33 % - authors; 33.34% - performers; 33.33% - producers

Distribution scheme, video: 58,81% - authors; 21,39% - performers; 19,79% - producers

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL

IS THERE A SOCIAL AND/OR CULTURAL DEDUCTION?

Remuneration may be paid to organisations for the development of music and film culture and in order to finance educational and research programmes or for use thereof for other similar purposes, but only in an amount not exceeding 10% of the remuneration subject to distribution.

(1) The manufacturers, importers, sellers of storage media and recording devices and persons who bring storage media and recording devices from another EU Member State into Estonia, shall pay the remuneration specified in § 26 of this Act.

(2) The seller shall pay remuneration in case the manufacturer, importer, or the person who brings storage media and recording devices from another EU Member State into Estonia has not paid remuneration.

(3) The seller has the right to reclaim remuneration from the manufacturer, importer and the person who brings storage media and recording devices from another EU Member State into Estonia.

(4) Natural persons shall pay remuneration in case the importing of storage media and recording devices or bringing of the storage media and recording devices from another EU Member State into Estonia is carried out for commercial purposes.

(5) The remuneration shall be repaid on the storage media and recording devices:

- 1) which, due to their technical characteristics, do not enable the reproduction of audiovisual works and sound recordings of works as single copies;
- 2) exported or transported from Estonia into another EU Member State;
- 3) which are used in the course of the activities specified in the articles of association of the undertaking;
- 4) which are used in an activity in the case of which the result of the main activity of the person who makes the recording requires the manufacture of an audio or video recording as an intermediate stage;
- 5) which are intended for recording activities in educational and research institutions for the purpose of teaching or scientific research;
- 6) used for making recordings for the benefit of disabled persons.

(6) For repayment of the remuneration, the purchaser of the storage medium or recording device may submit, in the case specified in subsection 5 of this section, a written application to the collector of remuneration within three years after purchasing the storage medium or recording device. The collector of remuneration shall repay the remuneration within six months after submission of the respective application.

(7) The Government of the Republic shall establish by a regulation the procedure for payment of remuneration to compensate for private use of audio-visual works and sound recordings of works, the list of storage media and recording devices and the rates of remuneration to be collected on them.

LEVY ONLY

(7.1) The list of storage media and recording devices and the rates of remuneration to be collected on them as specified in subsection 7 of this section shall be established on the basis of the following conditions:

- 1) the remuneration collected must ensure the authors, performers, producers of phonograms and producers of the first fixations of films a fair compensation for the damage that they are estimated to suffer due to the restriction of their economic rights in the case specified in subsection 1 of § 26 of this Act, and taking into account the number of copies made for private use;
- 2) the entry of a storage medium or a recording device in the list and the rate of remuneration collected on it must be pro rata to the extent of the damage referred to in clause 1 of this subsection, incurred presumably due to the fact that the respective type of storage media or recording devices are used for the reproduction of works or sound recordings of works;
- 3) the recording devices on which the remuneration shall be collected, include but are not limited to laptops, tablets or personal computers and smartphones, and the storage media on which the remuneration shall be connected include but are not limited to external hard drives, USB flash drives and memory cards;
- 4) the rate of remuneration collected on recording devices shall be 3 – 8 euros and the rate of remuneration collected on storage media shall be 0.03 – 4 euros.

(7.2) The use of storage media and recording devices for the reproduction of audiovisual works or sound recordings of works and a change in the volume of making copies for private use shall be evaluated by the Government of the Republic at least once in every four years.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Article 27 of the Copyright Act of 1992 (the wording of Article 27 is valid from January 2021) + Government Regulation No. 14 of 2006 (amended on 2021) on the establishment of Collection and Payment of Remuneration for Private Use of Audiovisual Works and Sound Recordings of Works

(8) Remuneration shall be distributed among authors, performers, producers of phonograms and producers of the first fixations of films according to the use of works and phonograms, and other conditions provided for in this Act.

(9) Remuneration shall be distributed on the basis of a distribution plan for the preparation of which the minister in charge of the policy sector shall appoint a committee every year, which is proportionally comprised of collective management organisations representing the authors, performers, producers of phonograms and producers of the first fixations of films, and a representative of the Ministry of Justice and Digital Affairs.

(10) Remuneration may also be paid to organisations for the development of music and film culture and in order to finance educational and research programmes or for use thereof for other similar purposes, but only in an amount not exceeding 10 per cent of the remuneration subject to distribution.

(11) The minister in charge of the policy sector shall approve the distribution plan not later than three months after the end of the budgetary year, having previously obtained the approval of the representatives of authors, performers, producers of phonograms and producers of the first fixations of films.

(12) The minister in charge of the policy sector may appoint a collective management organisation to collect remuneration. The minister in charge of the policy sector may appoint also any other legal person in private law, a governmental authority or a state authority administered by a governmental authority to collect remuneration, if no collective management organisation is capable of collecting remuneration or does not agree to collect remuneration.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

(12.1) The collector of remuneration has the right to deduct expenses related to the collection and payment of remuneration from the remuneration collected. The collector of remuneration shall submit a written report to the Ministry of Justice and Digital Affairs on the collection and payment of remuneration and the deductions made, by 31 January every year.

(13) The person appointed as the collector of remuneration has the right to obtain necessary information from customs authorities and statistical organisations and manufacturing and importing organisations and sellers. The information submitted is confidential and the collector of remuneration has the right to use and disclose the information only in connection with the collection of remuneration.

(14) The Government of the Republic shall establish by a regulation the procedure for applying for the remuneration specified in subsection 10 of this section.

(15) If the person specified in subsection 1 of this section is in delay with payment of remuneration, such person shall pay delay interest on the outstanding remuneration to the collector of remuneration at the rate provided for in the second sentence of subsection 1 of § 113 of the Law of Obligations Act starting from the day when the obligation to pay remuneration becomes collectible until the day when it is duly performed, but not over 50 per cent of the outstanding remuneration. If the person specified in subsection 1 of this section does not provide the collector of remuneration with data on the storage media and recording devices produced or brought to Estonia by such person, which are necessary for determining the amount of remuneration, delay interest shall be calculated on the outstanding remuneration from the day following the day when the respective data should have been submitted.

(16) Administrative supervision over performance of the obligations of the collector of remuneration provided for in this section shall be exercised by the Ministry of Justice and Digital Affairs.

OVERVIEW

COLLECTING SOCIETY APPOINTED BY

State funded system

The Finnish Government sets the level and the scope of the remuneration in the annual state budget. The Ministry of Education and Culture is responsible for the conducting of surveys on private copying to determine the level considered as fair compensation to authors. An advisory board (consultative committee) has been established to assist the Ministry of Education and Culture.

The Ministry of Education and Culture annually allocates the private copying compensation from the state budget to various entities associated with rightsholders, including CMOs for distribution to their represented rightsholders.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Copyright Act (404/1961), as amended up to Act 1216/2023

Section 12

- (1) Anyone may make single copies for his private use of a work that has been made public. The copies thus made may not be used for other purposes.
- (2) It is also permitted to have copies made by a third party for the private use of the party ordering the copies.
- (3) The provisions of subsection 2 shall not apply to the reproduction of musical works, cinematographic works, utility articles or sculptures, or the reproduction of any other work of art by artistic means.
- (4) The provisions of this section shall not apply to a computer- readable computer program, to the making of a computer- readable copy of a computer- readable database, or to the construction of a work of architecture.

Section 26a of the Copyright Act (404/1961), as amended up to 2015

- (1) The State shall pay compensation for the reproduction of a work for private use to its authors. The compensation is paid from an allocation included in the State budget, and the amount of compensation shall be settled at a level which can be considered a fair compensation for the reproduction of a work for private use.
- (2) The reproduction of a work for private use and its frequency is surveyed in order to size the right amount for the compensation. The survey is conducted by an independent research institution approved by the Ministry of Education and Culture.
- (3) The Government shall appoint an advisory board by proposal of the Ministry of Education and Culture, the aim of which is to act as an advisory expert body on the survey on reproduction for private use. The term of office of the advisory board is four years.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

In 2024, the Finnish Government decided due to budgetary constraints that as of 2025 the amount of private copying compensation in the annual state budget shall be halved from the previous level of 11 Mil. Euro to 5.5 Mil. Euro. The decision is based solely on budgetary reasons and without a corresponding decrease in the level of private copying based on surveys.

The Ministry of Education and Culture appointed a rapporteur to examine the potential reformation of the private copying compensation system in Finland. The rapporteur stated that Finland's budget-based system is contrary to EU law and must be amended without delay.

The rapporteur's report was published in February 2025 (link), wherein the rapporteur proposed that the budget-based system be replaced with a storage device-based compensation scheme, wherein device-specific tariffs would be determined through private copying surveys. The rapporteur proposed that compensation would be collected primarily from the manufacturers and importers of storage devices and secondarily from distributors. Devices subject to the compensation would include digital storage devices and smart phones, computers, tablets, USB memory sticks, online file storage services and certain further devices.

As an alternative, the rapporteur proposed that the compensation could be based on a tariff set to broadband and mobile broadband internet subscriptions. The rapporteur further proposed that literary works, visual art works, photographic works and the broadcasts of television and radio broadcasters should be included in the scope of compensated works. No legislative action regarding a potential reform has yet been taken.

EXPLANATION ON DEVELOPMENTS

In Finland, compensation for private copying is paid from an appropriation reserved in the budget. Budget funding has been in use since 2015. According to the Copyright Act, the amount of the appropriation entered in the State budget must be such that it can be considered a fair compensation for the reproduction of works for private use. For 2025 the total of 5.5 million Euro from the state budget is allocated for the compensation for private copying (for 2024 the total was 11 million Euro).

Notes:

In the decisions of the Ministry of Education and Culture, the annual total amount of private copying compensation (11 Mil. Euro) has been divided into two shares (a video share and an audio share) corresponding with the results of conducted private copying surveys. For example, in 2024, the video share amounted to 79,5 % and the audio share to 20,5 % of the total amount. In accordance with the Ministry's decisions, 50 % from the video share and 65 % of the audio share shall be distributed as direct compensation to individual rightsholders (through CMOs), whereas 50 % of the video share and 35 % of the audio share shall be distributed indirectly for the collective purposes of authors.

In 2025, the only change in Finland's system is the halving of the appropriation, with the total compensation for 2025 being € 5.5 million. The distribution ratio remains unchanged. The organisation previously listed as Tuotos (film producers) is now known as Audiovisual Producers Finland -- APFI ry.

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

The types of media, the remuneration rates, and the payment terms are set by the Private Copying Commission, an administrative joint body chaired by a State representative and composed of 24 members: 12 representatives of collective management organizations and 12 representatives of debtors (manufacturers and importers, as well as consumer representatives).

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

This commission uses statistical and usage studies designed to measure and analyze private copying practices, which are entrusted to independent organizations. Article L.311-4 of the IP Code stipulates that "the amount of remuneration shall depend on the type of medium and the duration or recording capacity it allows (...)" and specifies that "This amount shall also depend on the use of each type of medium (...). This use shall be assessed on the basis of an investigation."

HOW FREQUENTLY ARE NEW RATES NEGOTIATED?

At irregular intervals, depends on the agenda of the commission responsible for setting tariffs, bearing in mind that this agenda is established by a vote among all members of the commission (CMO, manufacturers, representatives of consumer organizations).

IS AN EMPIRICAL STUDY NECESSARY AS A BASIS FOR LEVY CALCULATION?

Yes

ARE REFURBISHED DEVICES SUBJECT TO LEVY?

Yes

IF YES, ARE REFURBISHERS OBLIGED TO PAY THE LEVY?

Yes, except for media that have been refurbished by a private legal entity that meets the conditions on the social and solidarity economy conditions as set by Law No. 2014-856 of July 31, 2014.

DO LEVIES FOR REFURBISHED DEVICES DIFFER FROM LEVIES FROM NEW DEVICES?

Yes

ARE THERE EXEMPTIONS FOR THE LEVY PAYMENT OBLIGATION?

Yes, in case of export and in case of professional use.

ARE THERE ANY CONSUMERS OR BUYERS EXEMPT FROM PAYING THE LEVIES (OTHER THAN PROFESSIONAL USE)?

Yes, apart from professional users or exporters, specific categories of users are exempted such as videograms and phonograms producers and those who work for them (press plants, mastering studios...), radio and TV stations, blind and deaf non-profit organizations.

ARE THERE ANY PRODUCTS EXEMPT FROM LEVIES?

Some family of devices have been excluded from the scope of the remuneration (musical photo frames, SD Card used for cameras...) or not examined by the commission (mp3 wearables, smartwatches...).

FRANCE

EXEMPTION (EX-ANTE)?

Professionals are entitled to a refund of the private copying levy or may request an exemption agreement. Any end user who purchases recording media may apply for either option if they can prove that they are the final user and that the media are used exclusively for professional purposes, making private copying presumptions impossible. For end users who regularly buy large quantities of recording media in France, a renewable annual exemption agreement can be signed with Copie France, allowing them to purchase media without paying the levy. Suppliers who bought media with the levy included but later resell them to exempt beneficiaries may request a refund from Copie France for the amounts already paid.

REFUND/REIMBURSEMENT (EX-POST)?

One-off refund for occasional purchases or small quantities of media, the law allows end purchasers to request a refund from COPIE FRANCE for the remuneration paid at the time of purchase. The conditions and supporting documents required to obtain a refund are defined by a ministerial decree of December 20, 2011. (identification data + proof of internal professional use of the carriers + invoice showing the amount of PCR charge by the seller).

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Duty of individual industry debtors to report and pay

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Monthly

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Buying figures from specialised institutes ( IDC, GfK, FOx...), monitoring the market through enquiries, invoices analysis.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

Informal cooperation

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

Yes

DEFINITION OF IMPORT

All products coming from other countries including European countries

WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER?

Since the Opus case and a supreme French Court decision, foreign-based websites selling new or refurbished devices online to French consumers must report all deliveries to the French market. Regularisation process and court cases are ongoing.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

The court rulings obtained by COPIE FRANCE against entities (license fee payers or professional organizations) contesting the private copying mechanism in France have given rise to a wide range of litigation. Where necessary, these disputes have made it possible to make adjustments to the private copying remuneration system. However, and above all, these decisions have gradually and unequivocally legitimized the private copying mechanism in principle and reinforced the legitimacy of COPIE FRANCE's role as the body responsible for collecting and distributing the sums due. The French courts have, on the whole, confirmed that this system complies with French and European law and constitutional requirements. Similarly, the decisions handed down by the Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU) in various cases relating to private copying have played an essential role: whenever a point of interpretation of EU law has been raised, they have clarified and consolidated the validity of the private copying mechanism under European law. Thus, whether in domestic (French) litigation or in European decisions, these disputes have ultimately reinforced and framed the private copying system, while confirming its legitimacy and highlighting the relevance of COPIE FRANCE's actions.

COURT CASES

Cour de Cassation, N° RG 21/14158 (26 April 2024):

Handydortmund sold multimedia phones that have already been used, which Copie France considered to be 'refurbished' devices and are subject, like new devices, to 'private copy remuneration.' Court ruled that Handydortmund was liable and ordered it to provide reporting on all refurbished mobile phones sold in France between June 2021-2023, and to pay Copie France for the amounts owed.

Cour de Cassation, N° RG 21/15709 (26 April 2024):

Wefix sold multimedia phones that have been previously used, known as 'refurbished', which company Copie France believed are subject, like new devices, to 'private copy remuneration'. Court ruled that the law specifies that the levy for refurbished media must be 'specific and differentiated', and that the repair and resale of a product does not constitute a "new release". Copie France was ordered to repay the amounts collected.

Cour de Cassation, N° RG 22/15277 (7 March 2025):

Animus Corporation sold used multimedia phones, which Copie France considered to be "refurbished" media and therefore subject to the "private copying levy" like new media. Buyers in France could purchase phones sold by Animus on online marketplaces. The court held that Animus is liable for the levy on all its sales of refurbished phones to France since July 1, 2021, and ordered it to report on the sales of mobile devices and to pay Copie France for the amounts owed.

OVERVIEW

COLLECTING SOCIETY APPOINTED BY

The supervisory authority is the German Patent and Trade Mark Office in Munich.

ZPÜ is an association of nine German collecting societies in the legal form of a civil law partnership, whereby GEMA is the managing shareholder. As such it is a "dependent management entity" acc. to Section 3 Act on the Management of Copyright and Related Rights by Collecting Societies (VGG).

VG WORT is a collective management organisation, collecting i.e. levies for reprographic copies of text and images.

EXCEPTION

NPVR: No

Reprography: Yes (including operator levy)

TARIFFS

Yes, you can find all devices and storage media under:

<https://www.zpue.de/produkte-tarife.html>; included are mobile phones, PCs, tablets, smartwatches, consumer electronics (e.g. mp3-players), external burners, external hard drives, USB-sticks and memory cards, old blank media, CD/DVD-blanks, Infotainment systems with built-in hard disk installed in motor vehicles.

BENEFICIARIES

Shareholders of ZPÜ are: GEMA, GÜFA, GVL, GWFF, TWF, VFF, VGF, VG BILD-KUNST and VG WORT. In the field of reprography VG WORT collects levies for VG Bild-Kunst as well.

OVERVIEW

LIABLE PARTIES FOR PAYMENT AND THEIR LEGAL OBLIGATIONS

Manufacturers, importers, traders, operators (such as copy shops, libraries, educational and research institutes, retailers)

- Payment
- Disclosure of information on the type and quantity of levied products placed on the market on request.
- Reporting - parties must report the type and quantity of imported items.
- Auditing

EXEMPTION

Export and professional use.

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL DEDUCTIONS

No, there are no deductions from ZPÜ itself and no social and cultural funds, as revenue is distributed in full to the (affiliated) shareholders (collecting societies) after deduction of own costs. VG WORT and VG Bild-Kunst as CMOs make deductions for social and cultural purposes as for all sorts of remunerations.

RATE SETTING

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

Tariffs are set through negotiations between rightsholder societies (ZPÜ, VG WORT and VG Bild-Kunst) and industry organisations representing manufacturers and importers. Remuneration is first based on the actual use of products for private copying and reprography, as determined by empirical studies, and must remain proportionate to the average price of each product category.

The State is not directly involved in tariff setting, although CMOs and ZPÜ are supervised by the German Patent and Trademark Office and the courts, which ensure compliance with the law. If negotiations fail, parties may initiate study or umbrella-agreement procedures. In all cases, tariffs can be ultimately subject to judicial review.

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

Actual number of copies made (empirical study). It is possible to negotiate tariffs with industry societies in form of umbrella agreements (see Section 40 and 38 VGG) or to apply to the Arbitration Board to have an independent empirical study carried out to determine the use relevant (see Section 93 VGG).

HOW FREQUENTLY ARE NEW RATES NEGOTIATED?

At irregular intervals; As long as tariffs seem still to be adequate and umbrella agreements are valid, there is no need to new negotiations.

IS AN EMPIRICAL STUDY NECESSARY AS A BASIS FOR LEVY CALCULATION?

No, there is an obligation to conduct a study procedure before the arbitration board (see § 93 VGG) if there was no success in negotiating an umbrella agreement.

REFURBISHED DEVICES

ARE REFURBISHED DEVICES SUBJECT TO LEVY?

Yes, as far as the practise of ZPÜ is concerned.

GERMANY

3/11

DO LEVIES FOR REFURBISHED DEVICES DIFFER FROM LEVIES FROM NEW DEVICES?

Yes, the tariffs are based on tariffs for new devices and storage media, but only due if no or less remuneration on the new product was paid in Germany or other country.

In principle, ZPÜ asserts claims for used devices in accordance with a special matrix. Remuneration for used devices and storage media is only claimed if no private copying remuneration has already been paid for these products, if the products are not older than 36/38 months (depending on the brand) and if they are not permanently defective at the time of purchase.

The ZPÜ differentiates as follows with regard to the assertion of remuneration claims for used devices: Where was the device purchased? Abroad or in Germany? How do the purchasing channels describe themselves: Was it purchased from a private individual or a commercial end user/authority?

Bought in Germany from private end user: No remuneration but disclosure is owed.

Bought in Germany from a commercial end user/authority:

When reselling to private customers in Germany: Disclosure and remuneration are owed in the amount of the difference between the remuneration for private products and the remuneration for business products (so-called top-up tariff).

When reselling to commercial end users/authorities in Germany: No remuneration but disclosure is owed.

Bought in Germany after a lessor has leased or rented the device for a certain period (less than 36 or 38 months) to one or more legal or natural persons (based in Germany) and has taken back the product as a used device:

When reselling to private customers in Germany: Disclosure and remuneration is owed in the amount of the difference between the remuneration for private products and the remuneration for business products (so-called top-up tariff).

When reselling to commercial end users/authorities in Germany: No remuneration but disclosure is owed.

Bought from abroad from private end user:

From non-EU countries without a PCL there is an obligation to report and pay remuneration.

From EU country with PCL there is no obligation to pay but to report.

Bought from abroad from commercial end users/authorities: Private copying remuneration and disclosure is owed.

EXEMPTION IN CASE OF EXPORT?

Yes

ARE THERE EXEMPTIONS FROM THE LEVY PAYMENT OBLIGATION IN CASE OF PROFESSIONAL USE?

Yes (excluding reprography)

ARE THERE ANY CONSUMERS OR BUYERS EXEMPT FROM PAYING THE LEVIES (OTHER THAN PROFESSIONAL USE)?

No, but ZPÜ treats public authorities like commercial end users.

ARE THERE ANY PRODUCTS EXEMPT FROM LEVIES?

Yes. Germany has a business-use exemption system and export exemptions, available either ex-ante (before invoicing) or ex-post (refund after payment). These exemptions are built into ZPÜ's collective agreements and tariffs.

GERMANY

4/11

EXEMPTION (EX-ANTE)?

For tablets, mobiles, and PCs, importers/manufacturers can apply reduced tariffs for business sales by using IDC market quotas, which indicate the percentage of each brand sold to business users. They may also provide their own proof of business use instead of relying on IDC. Importers/manufacturers may exclude exported products if they provide proof of export (invoices, product identification, auditor confirmation). Export deductions apply only to the entity that pays the levy.

REFUND/REIMBURSEMENT (EX-POST)?

End users or traders may request a refund by proving the products are used professionally and providing purchase invoices. Refunds for exported goods may be claimed only by the importer/manufacture who originally paid the levy, not by traders who exported the goods later. This is different in the field of reprography.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Duty of individual industry debtors to report and pay.

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Members of umbrella agreements have to pay bi-annually; in general we collect remuneration from "outsiders" annually.

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

There are several approaches used to monitor the market:

- Trader Information: ZPÜ receives reports from traders that include details on sources of supply, such as from whom and how many products were purchased. This helps ZPÜ to identify new remuneration debtors.
- Auditor Certificates: ZPÜ obtains audit certificates from the auditors of the umbrella agreement members to confirm the accuracy of reported import and manufacturer unit figures.
- Market Data: ZPÜ purchases market data from major research institutes, such as IDC, to assess the market coverage rate and identify emerging technology trends.
- Independent Research: ZPÜ continuously conducts its own research to identify new remuneration debtors and monitor market developments.

Same also applies for reprography.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

Music: GEMA, GVL

Audiovisual works: GEMA, GÜFA, GVL, GWFF, VFF, VG Bild-Kunst, VG Wort, VGF, TWF

Videoclips: no distribution category but for "music video": GEMA, GVL

Audiobooks (& Audio-Podcasts): VG Wort, GEMA, GVL

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

No

IS THERE A MAXIMUM TIME LIMIT SET BY THE LAW TO DISTRIBUTE PC REMUNERATION AFTER THEIR COLLECTION?

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

Authors

Publisher

Performers

Producers

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

Free negotiation

Based on empirical study data

Subject to approval/review by state authority

HOW DO RIGHTSHOLDER CLAIM THEIR DISTRIBUTION?

Rightsholders can assign their claims of private copying remuneration to the respective CMO. Once this has been done, the rightsholders receive a share of the ZPÜ distributions via the respective CMOs. Each collecting society, however, distributes the proportional revenue received from ZPÜ to the beneficiaries pursuant to its individual distribution scheme (ZPÜ distribution scheme does not determinate the distribution scheme in the CMOs to the concrete rightsholders).

LEGAL BASIS

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Act on Copyright and Related Rights, amended up to act of Octobre 23, 2024

Section 53<sup>1</sup>

(1) It is permitted for a natural person to make single copies of a work for private use on any medium, insofar as they neither directly nor indirectly serve commercial purposes, as long as no obviously unlawfully produced model or a model which has been unlawfully made available to the public is used for the copying. A person authorised to make copies may also have another person make such copies if no payment is received therefor, or if it involves copies on paper or a similar medium which have been affected by the use of any kind of photomechanical technique or by some other process having a similar effect.

[...]

(4) The reproduction of:

- a) graphic recordings of musical works,
- b) a book or periodical, in the case of an essentially complete reproduction, insofar as this does not occur by means of manual transcription, is only ever permitted with the rightholder's consent or under the conditions of subsection (2) sentence 1 no. 2 or for personal use if the work has been out of print for at least two years.

LEVY ONLY

General Scheme:

Section 54

(1) Where, given the nature of a work, it is probable that the work will be reproduced and such reproduction is permitted under section 53 (1) or (2) or sections 60a to 60f, the author of the work is entitled to payment of equitable remuneration from the manufacturer of appliances and of storage mediums, where the type of appliance or storage medium is used alone or together with other appliances, storage mediums or accessories, to make such reproductions.

(2) The claim under subsection (1) does not apply where, in the light of the circumstances, it can be expected that the appliances or storage mediums will not be used for reproductions within the territory to which this Act applies.

Section 54a

(1) The amount of remuneration is determined by the extent to which the appliances and storage mediums are actually used as types for reproductions pursuant to section 53 (1) or (2) or sections 60a to 60f. Account is thereby to be taken of the extent to which technical protection measures pursuant to section 95a are used in respect of the works concerned.

(2) Remuneration in respect of appliances is to be set so as to be altogether equitable also in relation to the obligation to pay remuneration for storage mediums contained in such appliances or for other appliances or storage mediums functioning together with them.

(3) In determining the amount of remuneration, account is to be taken of such properties of the appliances and storage mediums as are relevant to use, in particular the capacity of appliances, the storage capacity of storage mediums and the extent to which they are rewritable.

(4) The remuneration may not have an inequitable effect on the manufacturers of appliances and storage mediums; its relationship to the price level of the appliance or of the storage medium must be economically equitable.

LEGAL BASIS

Reprographic Devices:

Section 54c (operator levy)

(1) Where appliances of the type referred to in section 54 para. 1, being appliances for reproduction by means of photocopying or by some other process having a similar effect, are operated in schools, universities, vocational training institutions or other educational and further education institutions, research institutions, public libraries, in non-commercial archives or institutions in the field of cinematic or audio heritage, or in non-commercial publicly accessible museums or in institutions which keep appliances available for making photocopies in return for payment, the author is also entitled to payment of equitable remuneration from the operator of the appliance.

(2) The total amount of remuneration owed by the operator is calculated in accordance with the type and extent of the use of the appliance which is likely in the circumstances, in particular its location and the usual use thereof.

TRADER'S OR IMPORTER'S OBLIGATION TO PAY REMUNERATION

Section 54b

(1) Together with the manufacturer, any person who, on a commercial scale, imports or re-imports the appliances or storage mediums into the territory to which this Act applies or any person who trades in them bears liability as joint and several debtor.

(2) The importer is the person who introduces the appliances or storage mediums, or who causes them to be introduced, into the territory to which this Act applies. Where importation is based on a contract with a non-resident, the importer is only the contracting party residing in the territory to which this Act applies as long as that importer is acting on a commercial scale. Any person acting only as forwarding agent, carrier or in a similar function in the introduction of the goods is not deemed to be the importer. Any person who introduces items from third countries into a free zone or a free warehouse pursuant to Article 166 of Council Regulation (EEC) No 2913/92 of 12 October 1992 establishing the Community Customs Code (OJ L 302, 19.10.1992, p. 1) is deemed to be the importer only if the items are used in that area or if they are released for free circulation for customs purposes.

(3) There is no obligation incumbent on the trader to pay remuneration

1. if a person obliged to pay the remuneration from whom the trader obtains the appliances or storage mediums is bound by an inclusive contract concerning the remuneration or
2. if the trader notifies the receiving office pursuant to section 54h (3) in writing of the nature and quantity of the appliances and storage mediums received and of the source of supply by 10 January and 10 July for each preceding six months of a calendar year.

EDUCATIONAL SECTOR; TEACHING IN EDUCATIONAL ESTABLISHMENTS

Section 60a

(1) For the purpose of illustration in teaching in educational establishments, up to 15 per cent of a published work may be reproduced, distributed, made available to the public or otherwise communicated to the public on a non-commercial basis

1. for teachers and participants at the respective event,
2. for teachers and examiners at the same educational establishment and
3. for third persons insofar as this serves the presentation of lessons or lectures or the results of tuition or training or learning outcomes at the educational establishment.

Section 60h

(1) Authors are entitled to equitable remuneration for uses in accordance with this Subdivision. Reproductions are to be remunerated in accordance with sections 54 to 54c.

[...]

s. also Sections 60c, 60e, 60f German Copyright Act

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Section 54h

(1) Claims under sections 54 to 54c, section 54e (2) and sections 54f and 54g may be asserted only through a collecting society.

(2) Each rightholder is entitled to an equitable share of the remuneration paid pursuant to sections 54 to 54c. Insofar as works are protected by technical measures pursuant to section 95a, they are not taken into account when income is distributed.

(3) As regards the reports to be made pursuant to section 54b (3) and section 54e, the collecting societies are to designate to the German Patent and Trade Mark Office a joint receiving office. The German Patent and Trade Mark Office announces the joint receiving office in the Federal Gazette.

(4) The German Patent and Trade Mark Office may publish specimen reports for the reports to be made pursuant to section 54b (3) no. 2 and section 54e in the Federal Gazette. If specimen reports are published, their use is compulsory.

(5) The collecting societies and the receiving office may only use the information received pursuant to section 54b (3) no. 2 and sections 54e and 54f for the purpose of asserting claims under subsection (1).

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES?

There is no specific group of debtors who deny PCL in general, but there are several debtors and industry associations who attack the system especially for the levy for refurbished products, levy for cloud-storage, levy for Infotainment systems with built-in hard disk installed in motor vehicles, and reduced business remuneration (more than 0€) for devices bought for business purposes as a commercial end user.

EXPLANATION ON DEVELOPMENTS

Established case law and the currently established system with existing umbrella agreements lead to reliable income for creatives and financial planning security for those liable for remuneration. The case law on the indicative effect of collective agreements proves the correctness of the German legislator's assumption that the negotiation solution set out in the law is suitable for achieving appropriate and generalizable results. After initial difficulties, the current system has proven itself in practice. In the last ten years, it has been possible to conclude umbrella agreements with the industry organizations for all “classic” and newer physical devices and storage media. On this basis, it has also been possible to establish valid tariffs for so-called outsiders. In 2020, the BGH also ruled for the first time that the remuneration rates agreed in umbrella agreements provide an indication of the appropriateness of the collectively agreed remuneration with effect for outsiders (so-called “indicative effect of umbrella agreements”). As a result, the ZPÜ was able to reach an out-of-court settlement with a large number of remuneration debtors and declare the associated proceedings closed. Particularly since this establishment in case law, the new instrument of the provision of guarantees (Section 107 VGG) created by the legislator has also been increasingly successful, as companies can be obliged to provide guarantees at a collectively agreed level. At the same time, Supreme Court rulings will make it increasingly difficult for unlawful companies to operate business models that end in insolvency after years without payment of remuneration, as has repeatedly been the case in recent years.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Copyright Act LXXVI of 1999 on Copyright (consolidated text of September 1, 2024)

§35

(1). A natural person may make a copy of a work for private purposes, provided that it does not serve, even indirectly, the purpose of gaining or increasing income and provided the person had lawful access to the work used. This provision does not apply to architectural works, technical structures, software and databases operated by computer equipment, nor to the fixation of a public performance of a work onto an image or sound carrier. Printed music (sheet music) may not be reproduced by reprography for private purposes, nor in the cases regulated in points (b)–(d) of paragraph (4).

§20

(1). In view of private copying of works, performances, films and sound recordings that (i) are broadcast in radio/TV programmes, (ii) are included in programmes relayed to the public by cable, or (iii) are marketed on image or sound carriers, the authors of the works, the performers of the performances, and the producers of films and sound recordings are entitled to appropriate remuneration.

§20

(2). The remuneration is set by the collective management organisation for literary and musical works, in agreement with the other right-holder CMOs concerned. When setting the tariff, regard must be had to whether effective technological measures (see §95) are applied to the works/performances/films/sound recordings concerned. The duty to pay the remuneration lies with the manufacturer of blank image/sound carriers, or, for carriers manufactured abroad, the person liable for customs duties; in the absence of such liability, jointly the person who brings the carrier into the country and the person who first places it on the domestic market. Payment must be made to the literary/musical CMO within eight days of the completion of customs clearance, or, absent customs, within eight days from placing on the market or, if earlier, from the start of stocking for the purpose of placing on the market. All domestic distributors of the given carrier are jointly and severally liable for payment.

§20

(4) After deduction of costs, the net proceeds from sound carriers shall—unless the CMOs concerned agree otherwise by 31 March each year—be distributed as follows: 45% to composers and writers, 30% to performers, and 25% to phonogram producers.

§20

(5) After deduction of costs, the net proceeds from image carriers shall—unless the CMOs concerned agree otherwise by 31 March—be distributed as follows: 13% to film producers, 22% to the audiovisual creators of film works (moving-image creators), 4% to visual artists / industrial designers / authors of photographic works, 16% to screenwriters, 20% to composers and lyricists, and 25% to performers.

§20

(6) The literary/musical CMO shall transfer the shares due to right-holders it does not represent for distribution purposes—including authors/right-holders of other repertoires, performers and producers of phonograms—to their respective CMOs.

§20

(7) Right-holders may enforce their claims only through their CMOs, and may waive their remuneration only with effect after the distribution date and only up to the amount allocated to them.

Article 11

(3). Authors of works which have been broadcast, have been made accessible to the public in such a way that each and every person can obtain access to the work at the place, at the time and with the equipment of his or her own choosing, or have been issued on a sound recording or a visual recording, shall be entitled to fair compensation for the reproduction of the works for private use.

The compensation shall be paid annually to associations of copyright societies by means of a budgetary allocation pursuant to an authorisation in the State Budget.

The payment shall constitute fair compensation for the reproduction for private use of the aforementioned works and shall be calculated on the basis of the following percentage figures of the customs value of tapes, discs, records or other such storage media, in whatever form, on which sound or images may be recorded in analogue or digital form, as well as of equipment intended for such recording for private use, which are imported into or manufactured in this country in the preceding year. (See Tariff table, below).

Art. 11(4) of the Icelandic Copyright Act no. 73/1972

The compensation referred to in the third paragraph is to be paid to collective management organizations which have been recognized by the Minister as competent to exercise such rights on behalf of authors. The organizations shall distribute the compensation to their member associations, after deducting a reasonable administration fee. The recognition of collective management organizations pursuant to this Article is governed by the procedural rules of Article 26a, fourth paragraph, and any rules issued on the basis thereof. The resolution committee set up pursuant to Article 57 shall, at intervals no longer than three years, review the basis used to calculate fair compensation pursuant to the third paragraph, and submit any proposals for changes to the Minister.

EXEMPTION AND REFUND

ARE THERE EXEMPTIONS TO THE LEVY PAYMENT OBLIGATION?

Yes, exemption applies in case of export; refund applies in case of professional use (application for upfront deduction).

ARE THERE ANY CONSUMERS OR BUYERS EXEMPT FROM PAYING THE LEVIES (OTHER THAN PROFESSIONAL USE)?

Yes, Italy's 2024 Ministerial Decree on exemptions/refunds treats devices and media as outside private copying when their design or use makes private copying impossible. Specifically, (a) the recording function is technically disabled and cannot be unlocked, or (b) the memory is filled with non-removable content. If only part of the memory is pre-filled, the levy applies to the unused portion.

ARE THERE ANY PRODUCTS EXEMPT FROM LEVIES?

EXEMPTION (EX-ANTE)?

Ex-ante exemptions rely on importer/manufacture declarations listing devices/media demonstrably unrelated to private copying, with invoices to the end-user and a professional-use declaration attached. The rules are set by a Minister of Culture decree, and exemptions are administered by Fondazione Copia Privata Italia on behalf of SIAE.

REFUND/REIMBURSEMENT (EX-POST)?

The end-users asking for refunds must give evidence of their professional status attached to their refund application the required documents as indicated in the Ministerial Decree. In Italy the manufacturers/importers and the end-users suppliers may also apply for reimbursement.

LEGAL BASIS

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Law No. 663 of April 22, 1941, on the Protection of Copyright and Neighboring Rights (as amended up to Law No. 142 of September 21, 2022)

Article 71- sexies

1. Private reproduction of phonograms and videograms on any carrier is permitted on condition that it is carried out by natural person with the sole purpose of personal use and provided that it has not a gainful intent, nor does it have direct or indirect commercial purposes and incompliance with the technological measures under art.102-quater.
2. The reproduction referred to in paragraph 1 may not be carried out by third parties. The provision of services aimed at enabling a natural person to reproduce phonograms and videograms for personal use constitutes a reproduction activity subject to Articles 13, 72, 78-bis, 79 and 80.
3. The provision in paragraph 1 does not apply to works or protected materials made available to the public in such a way that anyone may access them from a place and at a time individually chosen, when the work is protected by the technological measures under Article 102-quater or when access is granted on the basis of contractual agreements.

ITALY

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

4. Without prejudice to paragraph 3, rightholders are required to allow that, despite the application of the technological measures under Article 102-quater, a natural person who has acquired lawful possession of copies of the work or protected material, or has had lawful access to them, may make a private copy, even merely in analog form, for personal use, provided that this possibility does not conflict with the normal exploitation of the work or other materials and does not unreasonably prejudice the rightholders.

LEVY ONLY

Article 71 – septies

1. Authors and producers of phonograms, as well as original producers of audiovisual works, performing artists, and producers of videograms, and their successors in title, are entitled to compensation for the private reproduction of phonograms and videograms referred to in Article 71-sexies. This compensation consists, for devices exclusively intended for the analog or digital recording of phonograms or videograms, of a share of the price paid by the final purchaser to the retailer; for multifunction devices it is calculated on the price of a device with characteristics equivalent to those of the internal recording component, or, where this is not possible, of a fixed amount per device. For audio and video recording media—such as analog media, digital media, fixed or removable memories intended for recording phonograms or videograms—the compensation consists of an amount commensurate with the recording capacity of such media. For remote video-recording systems, the compensation is due from the service provider and is commensurate with the remuneration obtained for providing the service.

2. The compensation in paragraph 1 is determined, in compliance with EU law and taking reproduction rights into account, by decree of the Minister for Cultural Heritage and Activities, adopted after consulting the committee under Article 190 and the most representative trade associations of the producers of the devices and media referred to in paragraph 1. To determine the compensation, account is taken of whether technological measures under Article 102-quater are applied, as well as of the different impact of digital copying compared to analog copying. The decree is updated every three years.

3. The compensation is owed by those who manufacture in, or import into, the State's territory for profit the devices and media indicated in paragraph 1. These parties must file with the Italian Society of Authors and Publishers (SIAE), every three months, a statement showing the transfers made and the compensation due, which must be paid at the same time. In case of non-payment of the compensation, the distributor of the devices or recording media is jointly liable for payment.

4. Violation of the obligations in paragraph 3 is punished with an administrative fine equal to double the compensation due, and, in more serious cases or in case of repeat offense, with suspension of the commercial or industrial license/authorization from fifteen days to three months, or with revocation of the license or authorization.

Article 71-octies

1. The compensation referred to in Article 71-septies for audio recording devices and media is paid to the Italian Society of Authors and Publishers (SIAE), which distributes it, net of expenses, 50% to authors and their successors in title and the remaining 50%, in equal parts, to phonogram producers and to performing artists, including through entities that carry out intermediation of related rights under Legislative Decree 15 March 2017, No. 35.

2. Paragraph abrogated by Decree-Law 25 May 2021, No. 73, as converted with amendments by Law 23 July 2021, No. 106.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

3. The compensation referred to in Article 71-septies for video recording devices and media is paid to SIAE, which distributes it, net of expenses, including through the most representative trade associations of their categories, 30% to authors and the remaining 70% in equal parts among the original producers of audiovisual works, the producers of videograms, and the performing artists. The share due to performing artists is allocated 50% to the activities and purposes referred to in Article 7(2) of Law 5 February 1992, No. 93.

3-bis. To encourage the creativity of young authors, 10% of all compensation collected under Article 71-septies, calculated before the distributions made by SIAE under paragraphs 1 and 3 of this Article, is allocated by SIAE—on the basis of a specific annual policy act of the Minister of Culture—to activities for national and international cultural promotion.

3-ter. By 31 December each year, SIAE transmits to the Ministry of Culture a detailed account of the expenses under paragraphs 1 and 3 incurred for managing the activities referred to in those paragraphs, along with the list of beneficiaries of the compensation distribution and the related amounts.

3-quater. By 31 December each year, the entities authorized to distribute the compensation referred to in Article 71-septies transmit to the Ministry of Culture and to SIAE a detailed account of the destination of the sums and their distribution to beneficiaries, as well as of the expenses incurred insofar as strictly connected to distribution activity. To promote economy, effectiveness and efficiency and to reduce management costs, SIAE defines models and procedures—approved by the Ministry of Culture—relating to distribution activities, which also enable SIAE to verify the necessity and appropriateness of reported expenses and any amounts set aside or otherwise not distributed. SIAE may carry out administrative-accounting audits, including on a sample basis, to verify the accuracy of the reported data and may order the replenishment of amounts deducted to cover management expenses or any reserves, for subsequent distribution to beneficiaries. Failure to comply with the reporting obligations in this paragraph prevents non-compliant entities from participating in subsequent distributions and requires them to return the total amounts received from SIAE. SIAE reports to the Ministry of Culture on the outcomes of these audits.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

The court cases concerning private copy levy in Italy are dealt with in the administrative tribunal (TAR Lazio) since the rates and the exemption procedure are determined by decrees of the Minister of Culture. The subsequent decrees on rates were challenged by various technology companies. The first instance decisions and the appeal judgements confirmed the legitimacy of the decrees. However, due to the remarkable length of these proceedings, the case on the 2020 decree on rate determination is pending in appeal. After CJEU decisions concerning exemptions and refunds, in 2019 the Minister of Culture issued a Decree that was partially deemed unlawful by the Council of State (appeal administrative court). That decree is replaced by a new decree in December 2024, that has also been challenged. The case is pending in front of the Regional Administrative Tribunal.

LEGAL BASIS

General Scheme:

Article 34 of the Copyright Law of 2000 (as amended up to April 5, 2023) (Cabinet Regulation No. 321)

(1) Without the author's consent, a natural person is permitted to reproduce works included in a lawfully acquired film or phonogram, or in another form of expression of a protected work, as well as visual works, including in digital form, in a single copy for personal use without direct or indirect commercial purpose. No other persons may be involved in making such a copy. Authors are entitled to fair remuneration for making such a copy (carrier remuneration).

Reprographic Devices:

Article 35 of the Copyright Law of 2000 (as amended up to April 5, 2023)

(1) Without the author's consent, a natural person is permitted to reprographically reproduce published works, except musical scores, for personal use without direct or indirect commercial purpose. Persons who possess or use equipment intended for reprographic reproduction and who make such reproduction available to natural persons for a fee or free of charge may reprographically reproduce works for the benefit of a natural person and for that person's personal use. Authors and publishers are entitled to fair remuneration for reprographic reproduction.

LEVY ONLY

General Scheme:

Article 34 of the Copyright Law of 2000 (as amended up to April 5, 2023)

(2) The blank tape levy for reproduction for personal use shall be paid by manufacturers and persons who import into Latvia equipment used in such reproduction and blank recording media (audio recording cassettes, videotapes or video cassettes, laser discs, compact discs, minidisks and the like).

(3) The blank tape levy shall not be paid if the equipment and blank recording media referred to in Paragraph two of this Section is imported for professional use by broadcasting organizations or the equipment and blank recording media are imported wholesale for reproduction of works for commercial purposes, as well as where natural persons import such equipment and blank recording media for non-commercial purposes.

(4) If the equipment and blank recording media referred to in Paragraph two of this Section are exported unused from Latvia, persons who have paid the blank tape levy have the right to receive it back.

(5) The seller of the equipment and blank recording media referred to in Paragraph two of this Section, on the basis of a request from a collective management organization, has a duty to prove that the blank tape levy for the referred to equipment and blank recording media has been paid.

(6) If a seller cannot prove that the blank tape levy has been paid, the seller shall pay such levy. In such case, the seller is entitled to bring a subrogation action against the manufacturer or the person who imported the referred to equipment and blank recording media into Latvia.

(8) The provisions of this Section shall not apply to computer programs and databases.

COURT CASES

Decision by Constitutional court of Latvia Case No. 2011-17-03:

Four collective management organizations in Latvia responsible for administering private digital copying on behalf of rightsholders sued the Cabinet of Ministers who is responsible for drawing up a list of empty data carriers and equipment used for private digital reproduction subject to levies.

The Regulation had neither been revised nor updated since its release in 2005. The societies argued that the Regulation infringed the fundamental rights of authors as it regulated the payment of blank tape levies only for certain empty data carriers and equipment. The Cabinet of Ministers argued that it was not balanced to apply a levy on each blank tape or on all kinds of recording equipment, just because they could be used for reproduction of objects of copyright or related rights.

The Constitutional Court ruled that the Cabinet of Ministers had failed to fulfill its task to establish criteria and to draw up a list of empty data carriers and recorders that are subject to levies, to follow technological developments, supplement the list of empty data carriers and equipment and to substantiate whether the legal regulatory framework is still effective and should or should not be improved. As a result of the judgment the Cabinet of Ministers revised Regulation No. 312 in October 2012 (updated in April 2021).

URG (Act of May 19, 1999 on Copyright and Neighboring rights, consolidated version of November 1, 2021)

ART. 22 "Privileged uses"

Art. 22(1):

(a) Any use of a work in the personal sphere and within a circle of persons closely connected (such as relatives or friends).

Art. 22(3) (outside the private circle, not permitted):

(a) copying all or substantially all of commercially available copies;

(b) copying works of fine art; (c) copying musical notation; (d) recording lectures/performances onto audio-/audiovisual/data carriers.

Art. 22(4): Computer programs are excluded from this article.

LEVY

ART. 23 "Remuneration for privileged uses"

Art. 23(3) (blank-media levy):

anyone who manufactures or imports blank audio/video carriers "suitable for recording works" owes remuneration

Art. 23(4):

Claims for remuneration may be asserted only by a collecting society licensed in Liechtenstein (Arts. 50 et seq.)

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

ART. 50 URG references the distribution scheme to the rules of the VGG (Management Companies Act). English version available at: <https://www.gesetze.li/konso/2018.111>

VGG -

Art. 19 – "Collection, administration and distribution of proceeds":

"The collecting society shall collect, manage, and distribute the proceeds from exploitation, including proceeds from the rights it manages under a representation agreement (Article 39), with due diligence in accordance with this section, unless this law provides otherwise. Exploitation proceeds within the meaning of this law also include income from the investment of these proceeds".

Art. 23 "Distribution Principles":

- 1) Collecting societies must distribute the proceeds from exploitation in proportion to the revenue generated by each work. They must make all reasonable efforts to determine the rightsholders.

LIECHTENSTEIN

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

- (2) If such distribution is unreasonably costly, the collecting societies may estimate the amount of the revenue from the work; such estimates must be based on verifiable and appropriate considerations.
- 3) The proceeds from exploitation shall be distributed between the author and other rightholders in such a way that the author generally retains a reasonable share. A different distribution is permissible if the expense would be unreasonable or if the work is performed for a service purpose.
- 4) The distribution regulations (Article 24) do not revoke contractual agreements between the original right holder and third parties.

Art. 24 — “Distribution regulations”:

“The collecting society establishes fixed rules that prevent arbitrary distribution of proceeds (distribution regulations). These distribution regulations must be submitted to the supervisory authority for approval”.

Art. 25 — “Distribution period”:

- 1) The collecting society shall determine in the distribution regulations or in the terms of administration the time limits within which the proceeds from the exploitation shall be distributed.
- 2) The collecting society shall determine the deadlines so that the proceeds from the exploitation are distributed no later than nine months after the end of the financial year in which they were collected.
- 3) The collecting society may provide that a period shall not expire as long as the collecting society is prevented from carrying out the distribution for objective reasons beyond its control.
- 4) Any proceeds from exploitation that are not distributed within the deadlines because the right holder cannot be identified or located shall be shown separately by the collecting society in its accounting records.

Art. 28 — “Deductions from the proceeds of the sale”:

- 1) Deductions from the proceeds of exploitation must be reasonable in relation to the services provided by the collecting society to the rightholders and must be determined on the basis of objective criteria.
- 2) To the extent that the collecting society makes deductions from the proceeds of exploitation to cover the costs incurred in the management of copyright and related rights (administrative costs), the deductions may not exceed the justified and documented administrative costs.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Monitoring of the market, and direct contact with companies or persons. If they have a duty to pay remuneration, they make contract with the responsible association AGATA and pay this levy in accordance with the Resolution of the Government. If the liable party is not compliant, the responsible association contacts them by telephone or email to inform them about their duties and legal liability. If this is not effective, AGATA provides a formal claim. Then the liable party is referred to a law firm, which represents AGATA, and lawyers for that company also submit a claim. The last step is a court procedure where the civil claim is lodged.

Also according to the Resolution of the Government, the responsible association has a right to inspect the accuracy of the reports about the levied media and devices sold in the Republic of Lithuania for the first time, and inspect the import, production, and sales documents of the liable party in the workplace.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

In individual and rare cases

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

Yes

WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER?

The importer is the person who makes the import from the EU and third countries (not EU countries).

In Lithuania, the duty to pay remuneration for private copying arises when the first seller executes the first sale of imported or manufactured levied media or devices.

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

IS THERE A SOCIAL AND/OR CULTURAL DEDUCTION?

Yes, 25% for private copying levies from digital devices and media, collected by AGATA. There are no social or cultural deductions for reprography levies.

HOW IS THE AMOUNT/PERCENTAGE OF SOCIAL AND/OR CULTURAL DEDUCTIONS DETERMINED?

By law, 25% of collected remuneration is earmarked and split: 1/5 for rights-protection measures; 2/5 for the national copyright/related-rights protection program (administered by the Lithuanian Council for Culture, excluding CMO-implemented measures); and 2/5 for CMO-run creative, educational, and/or rights-protection programs (as decided by the members' general assembly).

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF THE DEDUCTION AND WHO CAN BENEFIT?

AGATA's General Assembly resolved to channel these funds into strategic, ongoing projects, including Music Hall, PAKARTOT.LT, the Music Publishing Fund, and initiatives promoting legal use (expanding lawful access, strengthening rights protection and enforcement, and education). Funds will also support targeted projects addressing the needs of professionals in the audiovisual sector.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Law on Copyright and Related Rights of the Republic of Lithuania

1999-05-18 No. VIII-1185, consolidated version as of 7 June 2022.

General Scheme:

ARTICLE 20

1. It shall be permitted for a natural person, without the authorization of the author of the work or any other owner of copyright in the work, to reproduce, exclusively for his individual use and not for commercial advantage, in a single copy a work lawfully published or communicated to the public.

(..)

3. The provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article shall not apply to the reproduction of the following works:

- 1) works of architecture in the form of building or other construction works;
- 2) computer programs (except for the cases provided for in Articles 30 and 31 of this Law);
- 3) electronic databases (except for the cases provided for in Article 32 of this Law).

Reprographic Devices:

ARTICLE 20

1. Without the consent of the author of a work or another subject of the copyright in that work, it is permitted to reproduce, for personal purposes, by reprography (by any photocopying method or using other processes of a similar nature where reproduction is made on paper or another similar medium) a lawfully published article or other short work, or a short extract from a written work, with illustrations or without them, where reproduction is carried out for non-commercial purposes.

2. The provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article shall not apply to the reproduction by reprography of the entire text of a book or of a substantial part thereof, or to the reproduction of the musical notation of a musical work.

LEVY ONLY

Article 20 of the Law on Copyright and Related Rights No. VIII-1185 of May 18, 1999 (as amended up to June 7, 2022)

General Scheme:

4. The owners of copyright and related rights shall be entitled to receive compensatory remuneration for reproduction of audiovisual works or works fixed in phonograms referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article for personal use (hereinafter in this Article: 'the compensatory remuneration').

5. The compensatory remuneration must be paid for the devices and analogous and digital blank audio and audiovisual media listed in Annex 1 to this Law, released for circulation and sold in the Republic of Lithuania for the first time, produced in the Republic of Lithuania or imported into the territory of the Republic of Lithuania and intended for reproduction for private use (hereinafter in this Article: 'devices' and 'blank media'). The compensatory remuneration must be paid by the persons selling such devices and blank media (hereinafter in this Article: 'compensatory remuneration payers') in the Republic of Lithuania.

6. A list of blank media and devices subject to the compensatory remuneration and the compensatory remuneration rates laid down out in Annex I to this Law shall be reviewed at least once in two years. Other terms and conditions and procedure for paying the compensatory remuneration shall be established by the Government taking into consideration the application or non-application of technological protection measures determined in Article 74(1) and (2) of this Law, after agreement with associations representing the compensatory remuneration payers and associations of collective administration of copyright and related rights.

LEGAL BASIS

LEVY ONLY

7. The paid compensatory remuneration shall be refunded in accordance with the procedure laid down by the Government in the following cases:

- 1) where blank media and devices are acquired for professional needs.
For the purposes of the present Article, professional needs shall be deemed to be the needs of broadcasting organizations and persons circulating audiovisual works and works fixed in phonograms or objects of related rights for producers of audiovisual works and phonograms, where such needs are related to the fixation of works or objects of related rights and the needs of the persons who acquire blank media and devices for the purposes evidently other than reproduction of works for private use (e.g. where works are reproduced in public administration and defense agencies and organizations, hospitals, educational institutions, libraries and state archives, museums, research institutions and organizations and where reproduction of works is meant exclusively for the operational needs of the said institutions and organizations);
- 2) where blank media and devices are acquired for the needs of persons with a disability.
- 3) where blank media and devices are brought out of the territory of the Republic of Lithuania.

Reprographic Devices:

3. The subjects of copyright and publishers shall have the right to receive compensatory remuneration for the reproduction of works by reprography as provided in paragraph 1 of this Article (hereinafter in this Article – “compensatory remuneration”).

4. Compensatory remuneration must be paid for reprographic reproduction services provided to natural persons and for the reprographic devices specified in Annex 2 to this Law, which are sold for the first time in the Republic of Lithuania, are in civil circulation and are manufactured in the Republic of Lithuania or imported into its territory for reproduction for personal use (hereinafter in this Article – “reprographic devices”). Compensatory remuneration must be paid by persons providing reprographic services and by persons selling reprographic devices (hereinafter in this Article – “payers of compensatory remuneration”) in the Republic of Lithuania.

5. The list of reprographic devices for which compensatory remuneration must be paid, and the rates of the compensatory remuneration for reprographic devices and for reprographic reproduction services, as set out in Annex 2 to this Law, must be reviewed at least every two years. Other conditions and the procedure for the payment of compensatory remuneration shall be established by the Government, after coordination with the associations representing the payers of compensatory remuneration and with collective management organisations.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Article 20 of the Law on Copyright and Related Rights No. VIII-1185 of May 18, 1999 (as amended up to June 7, 2022)

General Scheme:

8. The compensatory remuneration for the owners of rights referred to in paragraph 4 of this Article shall be collected, allocated and paid by the collective administration associations approved by the institution authorized by the Government in accordance with the procedure laid down by the Government.

9. 25 per cent of the compensatory remuneration collected in accordance with the procedure established by the Government shall be allocated for creative programs and programs for the protection of copyright and related rights.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

10. After deducting from the collected compensatory remuneration the amount referred to in paragraph 9 of this Article and the costs incurred by collective administration associations as a result of collection, distribution and refunding of the compensatory remuneration, the remaining amount shall be allocated as follows:

- 1) 1/3 of the compensatory remuneration collected for blank audio recording media and devices shall be allocated to authors, 1/3 to performers and 1/3 to producers of phonograms (including broadcasting organizations for phonograms produced by them);
- 2) 1/3 of the compensatory remuneration collected for blank audiovisual media and devices shall be allocated for authors, 1/3 for performers and 1/3 for producers of audiovisual works (including broadcasting organizations, for the audiovisual works produced by them).

11. In the accounting documents drawn up for sale of the media and devices referred to in paragraph 5 of this Article, the amount of the compensatory remuneration shall be calculated, singled out and indicated in a separate line and the notes of the issued invoices shall indicate that the person who has acquired the media or devices is entitled to refunding of the compensatory remuneration in the cases set out in paragraph 7 of this Article.

Reprographic Devices:

7. Compensatory remuneration for the subjects referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article shall be collected, distributed and paid, in accordance with the procedure laid down by the Government, by collective management organisations approved by the institution authorised by the Government.

9. After deducting from the collected compensatory remuneration the amount intended to cover collective-management deductions, the remaining amount shall be distributed as follows:

1. 60 per cent shall be allocated to authors, of which: 20 per cent to authors of scientific and technical literature works, 15 per cent to authors of works of fiction and essays, 15 per cent to authors of works of visual art, and 10 per cent to authors of journalistic works (journalists);
2. 20 per cent shall be allocated to book publishers;
3. 20 per cent shall be allocated to publishers of periodical press.

10. In the accounting documents by which the sale of reprographic devices referred to in paragraph 4 of this Article is recorded, the amount of the compensatory remuneration must be calculated, singled out and indicated as a separate line, and when issuing invoices it must be indicated in the notes that the person who has acquired the reprographic devices has the right to have the compensatory remuneration refunded in the cases provided for in paragraph 6 of this Article.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

The Moldovan legal framework has been recently completed with comprehensive rules on the private copying levy. This levy represents a fee incurred by manufacturers or importers to Moldova of recordable media (such as MP3 Players, PCs, tablets, smartphones, etc).

The newly introduced statutory rules establish a clear mechanism for the calculation and collection of this levy.

The copying levy represents 0.3% of the value of the recordable media manufactured or imported to the Republic of Moldova. This levy is charged on the entities or individuals (i.e. importers or manufacturers) making such devices available to Moldovan customers.

In connection therewith, in October 2023, a methodology regulating the calculation and collection of the private copying levy has entered into force. As per this methodology, information on the entities importing recordable media to Moldova or manufacturing such devices, is delivered to the State Agency for Intellectual Property. Such data is later forwarded to the collecting societies, specially appointed to collect the private copying levy.

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES? AND WHY?

Some distribution agents do not consider that they bear the responsibility of paying levies as obliged by law. ANCO is pressing charges on such agents.

Only 2 agents agreed to a truce and pay out the levies. ANCO is pressing the charges against the remaining agents.

RATE SETTING

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

By Law (or other legal instrument), by official procedure involving CMOs and debtors, and by negotiation. Levies correspond to the actual number of copies made (from empirical study).

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

Estimation of the harm caused. A market survey on consumer copying behaviour is commissioned yearly. Other criteria are the tariffs in other European countries, the relation to the sales price of the product, acceptability by the public and the wish to avoid major administrative costs for the industry.

RATE SETTING

HOW FREQUENTLY ARE NEW RATES NEGOTIATED?

Regularly; in principal tariffs are set for 2 or 3 years unless adaptations are necessary because of legal developments.

IS AN EMPIRICAL STUDY NECESSARY AS A BASIS FOR LEVY CALCULATION?

No, but it is used.

ARE REFURBISHED DEVICES SUBJECT TO LEVY?

Yes; refurbishers are obliged to pay the levy.

DO LEVIES FOR REFURBISHED DEVICES DIFFER FROM LEVIES FROM NEW DEVICES?

Yes, 60% of the tariff for new devices

ARE THERE EXEMPTIONS FROM THE PAYMENT LEVY OBLIGATION?

Exemptions apply for exports and for professional use.

EXEMPTION (EX-ANTE)?

If the importer signs a collection agreement with ThuisKopie it is possible to deliver levy-free to professional users and/or after contractors under certain conditions.

REFUND/REIMBURSEMENT (EX-POST)?

The request for a refund must be submitted within six months of the purchase date or export date. For professional use the request should be accompanied with purchase invoices (evidence that device is purchased levy included), sales invoice (evidence that device is sold to professional user and not to a reseller/consumer). For export it should be accompanied with a purchase invoice (evidence that device is purchased levy included) and export documents (evidence of export/sales invoices and shipping documents/proof of export).

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Duty of individual industry debtors to report and pay

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

By law parties are obligated to pay immediately upon import/manufacturing.

Parties that have a collection agreement can report and pay monthly for the devices brought upon the Dutch market.

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

We are using market information (sales data) from NiQ (GfK) and an annual market survey made by Verian (f.k.a. Kantar Public).

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

We receive information from customs authorities but only regarding devices which are imported from outside the EU.

Art. 16 Copyright Act of 1912

1. It shall not be regarded as an infringement of copyright in a work of literature, science or art to reproduce the work, or part of it, onto an object intended to render, display or play a work, provided the reproduction is made without any direct or indirect commercial objective and is intended solely for the personal exercise, study or use of the natural person who makes the reproduction.
2. For the reproduction referred to in paragraph 1, an equitable remuneration is owed to the author or his successors in title. The obligation to pay the remuneration rests with the manufacturer or the importer of the objects referred to in paragraph 1.
3. For the manufacturer, the obligation to pay the remuneration arises when the objects produced by him can be placed on the market. For the importer, the obligation arises at the time of import.
4. The obligation to pay the remuneration lapses if the person liable under paragraph 2 exports an object as referred to in paragraph 1.
5. The remuneration is due only once per object.
6. By general administrative order, further rules may be laid down concerning the objects in respect of which the remuneration referred to in paragraph 2 is owed. By general administrative order, further rules and conditions may also be laid down for the implementation of this Article, with regard to the amount, chargeability, and form of the equitable remuneration.
7. Where a reproduction permitted under this Article has been made, objects as referred to in paragraph 1 may not be delivered to third parties without the author's consent, unless delivery is made for the purposes of judicial or administrative proceedings.
8. This Article does not apply to the reproduction of an electronically accessible database within the meaning of Article 10(3).

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Article 16d Copyright Act of 1912

1. Payment of the remuneration referred to in Article 16c shall be made to a legal person to be designated by Our Minister of Justice, which in his opinion is representative, and which shall be charged, to the exclusion of others, with the collection and distribution of this remuneration in accordance with a regulation drawn up by that legal person and approved by the Supervisory Board referred to in the Supervision of Collective Management Organisations Act. In matters concerning the collection and remuneration, this legal person represents the authors or their successors in and out of court.
2. The legal person referred to in paragraph 1 shall be subject to supervision by the Supervisory Board referred to in the Supervision of Collective Management Organisations Act.

Article 16e Copyright Act of 1912

The amount of the remuneration referred to in Article 16c shall be determined by a foundation to be designated by Our Minister of Justice, whose board is composed in such a way that the interests of authors or their successors and of those liable to pay under Article 16c(2) are balanced. The chair of the board of this foundation shall be appointed by Our Minister of Justice.

Article 16 f Copyright Act of 1912

The person who is obliged to pay the remuneration referred to in Article 16c must immediately, or within a period agreed with the legal person referred to in Article 16d(1), report to that legal person the number of the objects referred to in Article 16c(1) that he has imported or manufactured. He is also obliged, at that legal person's request, to grant immediate inspection of the documents necessary for determining whether the remuneration is due and the amount thereof.

ORGANIZATIONS

Appointed by the Minister of Justice by Royal decree.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES?

Some deny payment for a certain period; this is subject of current court cases.

COURT CASES

There are some refurbishers/resellers who claim that they aren't liable for the levy because:

1. The levy has already been paid for a new device and shouldn't be paid again when the device is refurbished;
2. They haven't done anything with the device other than cleaning it, thus making it a "second-hand device";
3. They bought it "not ready" for sale and resold it "not ready" for sale, someone else has made it useable for consumers.

Several big producers/sellers of leviabile devices have contested the Stichting Onderhandeligen Thuiskopievergoeding (SONT; Foundation for Private Copying Levy Negotiations) decision including offline streaming copies in court, and the case is now pending at the EU Court of Justice (C-496/24 Stichting de Thuiskopie).

Arguments of plaintiffs:

- Offline streaming copies are covered under the licensing agreement between streaming providers and right owners
- Right owners are thus able to exercise full control of the use of their works through streaming providers, subject to their exclusive reproduction right
- Right owners already receive payment for offline use of their works from the streaming providers
- Streaming providers have a commercial purpose with the (licensed) offering of works for offline streaming, therefore offline streaming copies cannot be considered private copies under the exemption
- Bringing offline streaming copies under the exemption would be contrary to the 3-Step Test of art. 5.5 CD: permitting offline streaming copies belongs to the normal exploitation by the rightowner, for which he is able to request remuneration directly from the provider

NETHERLANDS

COURT CASES

Counter arguments ThuisKopie and SONT:

- Offline streaming copies fit within the definition of 'Private Copying' from article 5.2b Infosoc Directive, as fully implemented in Dutch law
- In practice, right owners don't receive (separate) payment for the reproduction of their work in the context of offline streaming
- Bringing offline streaming copies under the exemption is the only way to assure that right owners receive fair compensation for these uses
- Doing otherwise would be contrary to the objectives of Dir. 2001/29 (a.o. principle of high level of protection of right owners, technology neutral application)
- Users making offline streaming copies don't have a commercial purpose. The fact that platforms offering these services DO have a commercial purpose is not relevant according to ECJ case law

EXPLANATION ON DEVELOPMENTS

After the judgement from the Court of appeals in the offline streaming copies case, the SONT has decided to lower the tariffs as to exclude these copies pending judgement of the Supreme Court. This results in a lower collection as of 2023.

The biggest impact can be seen in the tariffs set for smartphones. In 2022 the tariff was € 7,30, and in 2023 it was lowered to € 5,30.

There is an ongoing process of broad re-assessment of the current tariffs underway within SONT. An empirical study has been commissioned by SONT as to the (consumption) value of different categories of works. In parallel, independent advice has been commissioned by ThuisKopie regarding re-assessment of the distribution keys.

RATE SETTING

HOW FREQUENTLY ARE NEW RATES NEGOTIATED?

At irregular intervals. The applicable law (Art. 20.5 of the Copyright Act) does not specify the interval at which the list of levied devices and rates must be updated.

IS AN EMPIRICAL STUDY NECESSARY AS A BASIS FOR LEVY CALCULATION?

ARE REFURBISHED DEVICES SUBJECT TO LEVY?

Yes

DO LEVIES FOR REFURBISHED DEVICES DIFFER FROM LEVIES FROM NEW DEVICES?

The same tariffs apply as to new media and devices.

ARE THERE EXEMPTION FROM THE PAYMENT LEVY OBLIGATION?

Yes, in case of export and in text and image levies in case of professional use - the exemption by tariff setting mechanism for large-format devices

ARE THERE EXEMPTIONS FROM THE LEVY PAYMENT OBLIGATION IN CASE OF PROFESSIONAL USE?

The applicable regulation simultaneously sets a special tariff of 1.00% of the selling price and a levy cap of 100 PLN on large-format devices (copiers, printers and multi functionals), i.e. devices capable of making reproductions on sheets of paper larger than the A3 format. The rationale for setting this type of tariff is that such devices are not normally used for making reproduction by private users; instead, large-format devices are used almost exclusively for professional purposes. The objective of setting the tariff cap at 100 PLN (applicable if the price of the device exceeds 10,000 PLN) was to prevent buyers of expensive professional devices from incurring unjustified costs.

EXEMPTION EX-ANTE?

An ex-ante exemption applies when a levied device or carrier is sold to a party with a registered seat outside Poland.

REFUND/REIMBURSEMENT (EX-POST)?

The legal basis for refunds is found in Article 410.2 of the Civil Code. As far as copyright levies are concerned, a refund may be claimed whenever a levy was paid unduly, regardless of the reason that the undue payment was made. There is therefore no specific refund scheme provided in the copyright system itself because the general Civil Code rules apply and the exemptions for the professional use and the exemption ex-ante exist and are applied.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Importers and manufacturers are legally obliged to submit quarterly reports specifying the category and value of devices and media sold. The collecting organisations are additionally authorised to request that the liable parties provide information and access to documents necessary to determine the amount of fees. New liable entities are identified mainly through research carried out by the CMOs. Non-compliant parties are informed of obligations, and, if an amicable resolution cannot be reached, a civil claim is filed

COLLECTION PROCESS

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

Until 2017, the customs authority used to provide data on individual importers to collective management organisations upon request. Following a 2017 revision of the regulations relating to fiscal and statistical confidentiality, the authority has refused to share this type of information with CMOs. The current situation calls for a change in the practices of the authority or in the applicable regulations.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM TIME LIMIT SET BY THE LAW TO DISTRIBUTE PC REMUNERATION AFTER THEIR COLLECTION?

Yes,

Time limits as stipulated in the Act of 15 June 2018 on the Collective Management of Copyright and Related Rights: Article 39.2. "A collective management organisation distributes and pays rights revenue within time limits specified in the distribution regulations referred to in Article 19.4, but not later than within 9 months from the end of the financial year it was collected."

Article 42.2. "The distribution and payment of rights revenue under a representation agreement is made without delay, but not later than within 9 months from the end of the financial year in which it was collected, unless it is not possible to meet this time limit due to objective reasons, in particular relating to the non-communication of information necessary to make the distribution or payment by users or a party to the representation agreement."

Article 43. ### HOW DO RIGHTSHOLDER CLAIM THEIR DISTRIBUTION?

Stowarzyszenie Autorów i Wydawców (Association of Authors and Publishers) COPYRIGHT POLSKA (CP) distributes fair compensations directly to book publishers in Poland, which must prove that they have copyrights in a given base year. Basing on detailed copying surveys (in a wide statistical study conducted by the leading Polish public opinion research agency) and on data from the National Library CP assigns publishing categories to the rightholders' submissions, which are then compensated accordingly. All remunerations are allocated and transferred in total to a vast majority of Polish publishing houses, representing 97-98% of the Polish book market in turnover. The remunerations for press publishers are distributed via a press journalists and publishers RRO Repopol. On the basis of bilateral agreements with Foreign CMOs foreign publishers are remunerated and approx. 1% of the gross collections is waiting to be transferred after concluding additional agreements with CMOs worldwide.

ZAiKS makes automatic and periodic distributions of PCLs.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

The Polish levy system was designed over 20 years ago as comprising two discrete sectors:

- the audiovisual sector
- the text-and-image sector

No levies are collected for the benefit of the text-and-image sector from digital devices and media that are already levied for the benefit of the audiovisual sector, e.g. flash drives, computer hard drives, etc.

Text-and-image levies are collected only from manufacturers and importers of reprographic devices (printers, copiers, etc.) and of A3 and A4 paper. Accordingly, levies collected from the devices and media listed in Appendix 3 are distributed only to text-and-image rightsholders, while levies collected from the devices and media listed in Appendices 1 and 2 are distributed only to rightsholders in the audiovisual sector. The lists of levied devices and media are not interoperable, even if – as a matter of fact – at least some of the levied devices and media may be used to copy works of more than one kind.

In 2025, the Polish Ministry of Culture proposed draft legislation introducing private copying levies for smartphones, tablets, portable computers and TV sets with discs or recording functions in the amount of 1% of the resale price. As of this publication, the legislative draft is still under consideration.

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES? AND WHY?

Some of the producers and importers

COURT CASES

Several court cases referring directly to the lack of modernization of the list of media and devices were brought in recent years. In September 2023 in the first instance judgment in the case brought by SAWP, the court found, that in order to classify a device as reprographic, the decisive factor is the possibility of making copies of a published work with its help and that it is incorrect to only charge the devices that are literally listed in the Ordinance of the Minister.

Recently, in February 2025 in the case brought by SFP, the court of first instance found in the interlocutory judgment that the claim was justified in principle and that the Polish legislator had breached the obligations arising from Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC, i.e. the compensation system it established was a denial of the required features of such a system resulting from the case law of the CJEU.

RATE SETTING

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

By law

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

The equitable compensation is applied according to the type and storage capacity of each device as defined in the table attached to the Private Copying Law. The equitable compensation is also applied on sales of photocopies of protected works (3% of the sales price). In both cases the equitable compensation is included in the sale price before application of VAT.

HOW FREQUENTLY ARE NEW RATES NEGOTIATED?

Regularly

IS AN EMPIRICAL STUDY NECESSARY AS A BASIS FOR LEVY CALCULATION?

ARE REFURBISHED DEVICES SUBJECT TO LEVY?

Yes

IF YES, ARE REFURBISHERS OBLIGED TO PAY THE LEVY?

DO LEVIES FOR REFURBISHED DEVICES DIFFER FROM LEVIES FROM NEW DEVICES?

ARE THERE EXEMPTIONS FOR THE LEVY PAYMENT OBLIGATION?

Yes, in case of export, not in case of professional use.

ARE THERE ANY CONSUMERS OR BUYERS EXEMPT FROM PAYING THE LEVIES (OTHER THAN PROFESSIONAL USE)?

Exemption from private-copying compensation applies to natural/legal persons (public or private) when devices/media are used for:

- (a) own audiovisual/phono-videogram productions;
- (b) supporting disabled persons;
- (c) safeguarding movable cultural heritage;
- (d) the author's professional work (e.g., photographers, designers, architects, engineers);
- (e) medical, defense, judicial, homeland-security or scientific-research purposes;
- (f) company-used devices strictly for automated document/data management that don't reproduce protected works and aren't available for individual use.

EXEMPTION (EX-ANTE)?

To get an ex-ante exemption, buyers must: (1) apply to AGECOP before purchase for a declaration proving the intended use fits an Article 4(1) exemption (with evidence) and (2) show the AGECOP declaration at checkout. If AGECOP doesn't issue or reasonably refuse within 15 days, the buyer may present proof of the request at purchase to obtain the exemption.

REFUND/REIMBURSEMENT (EX-POST)?

Refunds in Portugal apply only to exports and require timely proof of export by the first buyer in Portugal. AGECOP refunds only the importer/manufacturer via offsets in their quarterly report, reflecting credits issued to that first buyer for AGECOP-approved amounts.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Importers and manufacturers are obliged to collect equitable compensation when the first sale of the products subject to the law of private copying takes place on Portuguese territory. They must report quarterly the number of units sold of equipment and support and storage devices; respective storage capacity and equitable compensation collected in such sales.

The sellers of photocopies have to report once a year the number of photocopies and sale price before VAT.

PORTUGAL

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

The collection and delivery of the amounts received is up to the manufacturers established on Portuguese soil, as well as to importers. The referred payment shall be made every three months to a bank account in favor of the managing entity (AGECOP). The equitable compensation for photocopies is due once a year.

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Importers and manufacturers are obliged to report quarterly the number of units sold of equipment and support and storage devices; respective storage capacity and equitable compensation collected in such sales. In addition, they have to report data concerning exports and exemptions for professional uses. All the data has to be reported to AGECOP and also to the General Inspection of Cultural Activities, a body of the Ministry of Culture. Also, the public and private entities that sell photocopies are obliged to report the number of copies of works made each year.

AGECOP can audit the accounts of all importers and manufacturers covered by this Law. We also have such powers over public and private entities that have entered into contracts to pay equitable compensation over the selling price of photocopies. All administrative and police authorities are competent to supervise the compliance with private copy legal regulations.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

AGECOP does not have any collaboration with tax authorities/customs.

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

In order to be refunded for exports, importers and manufacturers have to present the same documents that are requested by the VAT services when applying for a VAT refund.

WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER?

The importer is the one that purchases abroad and sells in national territory.

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES?

Yes, for the payment of equitable compensation

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

As the members of AGECOP can only be collecting societies, distribution to rights holders is made by them.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

The operating costs of AGECOP shall not exceed 20% of the total revenue obtained from the collection of equitable compensation.

FREQUENCY OF DISTRIBUTION

2 times per year

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

All those who are represented by AGECOP or by its associates

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

Distribution schemes are set in the Law. As the members of AGE COP can only be collecting societies, distribution to rights holders is made by them. AGE COP, by legal imposition, has two Departments: The Graphic and Reprographic Copy Department and the Phonographic and Video graphic Copy Department

DISTRIBUTION KEYS

AGE COP distributes as follows:

Compensations to the Phonographic and Video graphic Copy Department –
 40% for collecting societies representing authors.
 30% for collecting societies representing artists and performers.
 30% for collecting societies representing music and video producers.

Compensations to the Graphic and Reprographic Copy Department –
 50% for collecting societies representing authors and
 50% for collecting societies representing publishers

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

IS THERE A SOCIAL AND/OR CULTURAL DEDUCTION?

Yes, the law establishes an obligation to retain 20% of the total amounts collected for collective purposes.

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF THE DEDUCTION AND WHO CAN BENEFIT?

The amounts are allocated to promote cultural activities and to investigation and public awareness of copyright and neighbouring rights.

Article 7 – Allocation

1. 20% of the total compensation collected shall be earmarked for cultural-development measures and copyright awareness.
2. After deducting operating costs, the remainder shall be apportioned as follows:
  - a) For Article 3(2) (reprography): 50% authors / 50% publishers.
  - b) For Article 3(4) (devices/media levy):
    - i) For the portion corresponding to typical use for audio/audiovisual reproduction: 40% authors / 30% performers / 30% phonogram & videogram producers;
    - ii) For the portion corresponding to typical use for written works (books, e-books, press): 50% authors / 50% publishers.

COMMENTS/DEVELOPMENTS

Law 62/98 as amended by Law 49/2015 and DL 100/2017

The increase in total revenues between 2015 and 2016 was due to the impact of Law No. 49/2015, of June 5, which enlarged the scope of equipment, devices and supports subject to the Private Copying Law.

Manufacturers and importers must deliver the amounts to AGECOP on a quarterly basis. In 2015, only one quarter of total levies due was declared and paid on the influence of Law No. 49/2015.

The increase observed in the Graphic and reprographic copy department, between 2017 and 2018, was due to the impact of D.L. No. 100/2017, of August 23.

RATE SETTING

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

By law. The collecting societies negotiated with users' representatives and an arbitration court nominated by ORDA established the list of media and devices.

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

There is only one criterion: the purpose of the device. If the device is for recording purposes the remuneration is 0.5% from the tax value; if the device is for storage purposes, the remuneration is 3% from the tax value.

REFURBISHED DEVICES

ARE REFURBISHED DEVICES SUBJECT TO LEVY?

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Payment is due monthly

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Part of UPFR's legal task is to undertake regular checks on the declaration by checking the accounting documents of the companies.

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Tariffs are established by law and we have a sole collector for all the fields of collection.

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

Yes, exports are exempted. Generally, manufacturers do not declare in their monthly report exports; if they are declared in one month, changes in declaration are taken into account and the amount is deducted from the payment of the next month.

DEFINITION OF IMPORT WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER.

Importers are considered companies which introduce their merchandise on Romanian territory, without taking into consideration the country out of which merchandise is brought (intra-communautaire products are considered imports).

LEVY

Article 36

(2) For the media on which sound or audiovisual recordings can be made, or on which reproductions of works expressed graphically can be made, as well as for devices designed for making copies, in the situation provided for in paragraph (1), a compensatory remuneration shall be paid, established by negotiation, in accordance with the provisions of this law.

Article 114

The authors of works capable of being reproduced by sound or audiovisual recordings on any type of medium, as well as the authors of works capable of being reproduced on paper, directly or indirectly, under the conditions laid down in Article 36(1), shall be entitled, together with the publishers, producers and performing artists or performers, as the case may be, to a compensatory remuneration for private copying, in accordance with Article 36(2). The right to compensatory remuneration for private copying may not be the subject of a waiver by the beneficiaries.

The compensatory remuneration for private copying shall be paid by the manufacturers and/or importers of the media and devices provided for in Article 36(2), regardless of whether the process used is analogue or digital.

Importers and manufacturers of media and devices provided for in Article 36(2) are obliged to register with the Romanian Copyright Office, in the National Private Copy Register, and may carry out the respective import or production activities only after obtaining from the Romanian Copyright Office a registration certificate. This certificate shall be issued by the Romanian Copyright Office on the basis of evidence regarding the lawfully declared object of activity and of the Single Registration Certificate at the Trade Register, within 5 days from their submission.

The list of media and devices for which the compensatory remuneration for private copying is due, as well as the amount of this remuneration, shall be negotiated every 3 years, if one of the parties so requests, within commissions composed of:

- a) one representative each of the main collective management organisations, which operate for each category of rights, on the one hand;
- b) one representative each of the main associative structures mandated by the manufacturers and importers of media and devices, appointed by those associative structures, and one representative each of the top 3 manufacturers and major importers of media and devices, determined on the basis of turnover and market share in the relevant field, provided that these data are declared for this purpose to the Romanian Copyright Office on their own responsibility, on the other hand.

For the purpose of initiating negotiations, in accordance with the procedures provided for in Article 163(2)–(5), the collective management organisations or the associative structures of the manufacturers and importers of media and devices shall submit to the Romanian Copyright Office an application containing the list of media and devices; this application shall be published in Part I of the Official Gazette of Romania by decision of the Director General of the Romanian Copyright Office, together with the amounts of remuneration to be negotiated. The list shall be drawn up separately for devices and media in the sound and audiovisual field and for devices and media in the graphic field and shall be negotiated in two commissions.

The remunerations are percentage-based and are calculated on the customs value, in the case of importers, and on the value without VAT when the products are placed into circulation by manufacturers, and shall be paid in the month following the import or the invoicing date.

The remunerations negotiated by the parties are percentage-based and are owed for the devices and media provided for in Article 36(2), including for A4 copier paper sheets and digital media.

ROMANIA

LEVY

The compensatory remuneration for private copying represents a percentage share of the value specified in paragraph (6), as follows:

- a) copier paper sheets, A4 format: 0.1%;
- b) other media: 3%;
- c) for devices: 0.5%.

Negotiations for establishing the list of devices and media for which the compensatory remuneration is due shall be convened by the Romanian Copyright Office within 15 days from the publication in Part I of the Official Gazette of Romania of the negotiation request.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Article 115

The compensatory remuneration for private copying shall be collected by a single collector collective management organisation for works reproduced from sound and audiovisual recordings and by another single collector collective management organisation for works reproduced from paper, under the conditions laid down in Article 168(6)–(8). The two collective management organisations with the capacity of single collector shall be designated by obtaining the vote of the majority of the beneficiary collective management organisations at the first convocation, or by obtaining the highest number of votes at a second convocation, regardless of the number present. The collective management organisations designated by vote shall file with the Romanian Copyright Office the minutes by which they were designated. Within 5 working days from the filing date, the Romanian Copyright Office shall appoint the single collector by decision of the Director General, which shall be published in Part I of the Official Gazette of Romania.

Article 116

1. The compensatory remuneration for private copying collected by the single collector collective management organisations shall be distributed to the beneficiaries as follows:

- a) in the case of media and devices for copies recorded in sound, by analogue process, 40% of the remuneration shall go, in negotiable shares, to the authors and publishers of the recorded works, 30% shall go to performing artists or performers, and the remaining 30% shall go to producers of sound recordings;

COMMENTS/DEVELOPMENTS

A lawsuit has been initiated on the previous legislation on private copying in Romania, which has not been definitively resolved in the Romanian Court.

Starting with April 2022, the law clearly establishes the right to remuneration for digital private copying for all categories of authors. In this regard, starting with April 2022, the legislation has been amended alongside existing recognized forms of digital private copying for written works area. Digital private copying also reproduced on paper was further regulated.

COMMENTS/DEVELOPMENTS

COPYRO sustained and supported the finding of a solution for provisional distribution between all the beneficiary collective management organizations, according to article 116 of Law No.8/1996, without discriminating against any category of beneficiaries.

In this regard, a document was signed with the collector – UPFR – along with the majority of beneficiary collective management organisations, which is no longer being respected by UPFR.

Despite support for UPFR on the distribution and payment of the rights, no remunerations have been paid to COPYRO for digital private copying by UPFR, taking into consideration the new amendments of the law, since April 2022.

Currently, the sole collector UPFR refuses to acknowledge digital private copying for all beneficiaries (creators of written works and visual art).

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

The remuneration collection system is established by the "Regulations on fundraising for paying remuneration for free reproduction of phonograms and audiovisual works for personal purposes payable by importers of equipment and material media used for such reproduction" approved by the Resolution of the Government of the Russian Federation "On remuneration for free reproduction of phonograms and audiovisual works for personal use", dated October 14, 2010 No. 829.

The provisions regulate the entire process of collecting remuneration. So, in accordance with the Regulation the importer has to provide RUR an import report within 10 days after import of the equipment and material media to the territory of the Russian Federation and issuing of custom formalities. The import report contains the following information:

- professional equipment/material media or for private use with/without the copy function
- name of product
- number of units
- customs value of equipment
- the corresponding codes of the Common Commodity Nomenclature for Foreign Economic Activities of the Customs Union
- instructions, manuals, technical documentation and other documents (as supporting documents)

RUR, within a period not exceeding 20 working days from the date of the receipt of the import report, compares the information contained in the report with the information provided by the customs authorities of the Russian Federation, and also verifies the correctness of the classification of equipment to a specific category (professional/for private use). If professional (PRO) or non-copying equipment (ND) is present in the import report, the RUR notifies the importer that there is no obligation to pay funds to pay the remuneration for this equipment (a sample notification is attached). On imported equipment for personal use, having a copy function, the RUR makes an invoice, which is sent to the importer. The importer should transfer remuneration according to the invoice in a period not exceeding 10 (ten) working days from the date of receipt of the invoice.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Monthly

10 days from the date of import (for importers), once every three months (for manufacturers)

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

According to the RF Government Regulation No. 829, the Federal Customs Service is obliged to send information about importers and the nomenclature of equipment and material media used for free reproduction of phonograms and audiovisual works for personal purposes to the collective management organization. In pursuance of this clause, the Federal Customs Service of Russia and the Russian Union of Rightsholders (RUR) has concluded an Agreement on information interaction.

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

The exporters have the right to claim a refund for paid levies if they confirm that the equipment has not been used on the territory of the Russian Federation.

WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER?

The importer is a person who is responsible for the imported goods to be declared to the Customs Union. The Customs Union is represented by Russia, Belarus and Kazakhstan. In 2016 we have new members Kyrgyzstan and Armenia.

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES? AND WHY?

According to the Regulation of the Government of the Russian Federation No. 829, funds for the payment of fee are not paid by importers of professional equipment that is not intended for use at home. Also, funds for the payment of remuneration are not paid by importers of equipment and material media intended for personal use, but without function of reproduction (copying) phonograms and audiovisual works.

There are some claims against paying fee by the importers made by organizations which refuse such payment in favor of rightsholders and from cooperation with the RUR. Such claims are unfounded, and the Ministry of Culture confirmed the unfoundedness of such claims on numerous occasions.

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

RUR distributes remuneration directly to the rightsholders.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

Administrative costs for collecting and distributing private copying remunerations: in accordance with the law. deductions can be up to 15%. The current rate is 15%.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM TIME LIMIT SET BY LAW TO DISTRIBUTE PC REMUNERATION AFTER THEIR COLLECTION?

Yes, at least once a year

FREQUENCY OF DISTRIBUTION

According to the RUR's statute, the remuneration is distributed no less than once a year (frequency of payment is fixed by the bodies of RUR).

RUSSIAN FEDERATION

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

- 1) Authors of musical and audiovisual works
- 2) Performers (singers and actors)
- 3) Producers of phonograms and audiovisual works

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

According to the Civil Code distribution is based on empirical study data, fixed by legislator and by CMO. Data is allocated from relevant collecting societies, sales of physical media, digital sales, etc.

DISTRIBUTION KEYS

In accordance with Article 1245 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation, remuneration for the free reproduction of phonograms and audiovisual works for personal purposes is distributed among copyright holders in the following proportions: forty percent to authors, thirty percent to performers, thirty percent to producers of phonograms or audiovisual works. The distribution within these groups takes place in accordance with the internal rules of the Organization's distribution.

Distribution scheme for audio:

- 1) 40% Authors of musical works
- 2) 30% Performers of musical works
- 3) 30% Manufacturers of musical works

Distribution scheme. video:

- 1) 40% Authors of audio-visual works
- 2) 30% Performers of audio-visual works
- 3) 30% Manufacturers of audio-visual works

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

IS THERE A SOCIAL AND/OR CULTURAL DEDUCTION?

Yes. RUR is obliged to deduct a sum for social and cultural purposes that should not be more than 20% of the total collections.

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF THE DEDUCTION AND WHO CAN BENEFIT?

Deductions for social and cultural purposes are established by law and must be approved by the rights holders (Art. 1243(4) Civil Code). The Council of RUR decides on such deductions, and the organization's management then implements the decision. All deducted amounts are transferred to dedicated Funds, which are responsible for their further use.

These social and cultural funds are used for purposes such as music festivals, film production, support for young rightsholders, and work related to Russian cultural heritage.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Law on Copyright and Related Rights

Article 46

(1) Without prejudice to the provisions of Article 208, Paragraph 1, Items 4 and 5 of this Law, any natural person shall have the right to reproduce for personal non-commercial purposes a disclosed work without the author's permission and without paying remuneration.

(2) The copies referred to in Paragraph 1 of this Article shall not be placed on the market or be used for any other form of public communication of that work.

(3) The provisions of Paragraph 1 of this Article shall not apply to the following:

1. Recording of the performance, presentation or showing the work;
2. Three-dimensional realization of drawings for works of fine arts;
3. Constructed works of architecture;
4. Construction of a new building after an existing building, which is a work of authorship;
5. Computer programs and electronic data bases,
6. Multiplication of the written works in the scope of an entire book, unless if copies of that book have been sold out for at least two years,
7. Multiplication of the sheet music, except by manual copying.

(4) The author shall have the right of remuneration in accordance with the provisions of Article 39 of this Law for the use of its work in a manner prescribed by paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article.

LEVY ONLY

Article 39 Law on Copyright and Related rights

1) When the copyright protected work is copied without the permission of the author, in compliance with provisions of article 46, paragraph 1 and 2 of this Law, the authors of the works for which, bearing in mind their nature, it can be expected that they will be multiplied by photocopying or recording onto the carriers of sound, picture or text for personal non-commercial needs of the natural persons (literary works, music, films, etc.) have a right for special remuneration from import or sale of technical devices and empty carriers of sound, picture and text for whom we can justifiably assume that they shall be used for such multiplication.

(2) The remuneration from paragraph 1 of this article are paid by the producers of devices for sound or visual recording, producers of photocopying devices or other devices with the similar technology for multiplication, the producers of empty carriers of sound, picture and text, and in solidarity with them, the importers of devices for sound or visual recording, photocopying devices or other devices with the similar technology for reproduction and empty carriers of sound, picture or text, with the exception of the import of small amounts intended for the private and non commercial use, as part of the personal luggage.

(3) If the devices and items from paragraph 1 of this article are not produced in the Republic of Serbia, the remuneration is paid by the importer.

(4) The obligation for the payment of remuneration from paragraph 1 of this article originates:

1. at the first sale in the Republic of Serbia or import in the Republic of Serbia of new devices for sound or visual recording;
2. at the first sale in the Republic of Serbia or import in the Republic of Serbia, of empty carriers of sound, picture and text;
3. at the first sale in the Republic of Serbia or import in the Republic of Serbia, of new devices for photocopying or other devices with the similar technology of copying.

LEGAL BASIS

(5) In the case of copying works protected by copyright by photocopying or similar technology, apart from the right to remuneration from paragraph 1 of this article, the author has the right to remuneration from the legal or natural person providing commercial services of photocopying.

(6) Persons from paragraph 2 of this article do not pay remuneration for the:

4. technical devices and empty carriers of sound, picture and text if they are intended for export,
5. technical devices which are usually not used for the copying of works for personal non commercial purposes (for example, studio equipment and devices, dictaphone, and similar),
6. empty carriers of sound, picture and text applicable exclusively with technical devices from item 2 of this paragraph.

(7) Persons from paragraphs 2 and 5 of this article have an obligation, at the request of the organizations for collective management of copyright and related rights, to forward information on the type and number of sold or imported devices or carriers of sound, picture and text, as well as information on the number of photocopies made, as the ground for the calculation of compensation. Information obtained in such a way can be used by the organization only for the calculation of the remuneration and must not be used for any other purposes.

(8) Remuneration from paragraphs 1 and 5 of this article must be the fair compensation and the determination of its amount must take into account the probable damage suffered by the author when his work is copied without his permission for personal non commercial use, the application of technical measures of protection and other circumstances that can influence the correct calculation of the amount of this special remuneration.

(9) The authors may realize their right to remuneration from paragraphs 1 and 5 of this article only through the organizations for collective management of copyright and related rights.

(10) Author can not renounce the right to special remuneration from paragraphs 1 and 5 of this article. Right to special remuneration can not be the subject matter of abandonment, disposition for life and judicial enforcement.

(11) [Further procedural provisions on setting the tariff are linked to the collective-management and tariff-setting framework quoted below under "Collection and distribution".]

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Article 178 Law on Copyright and Related rights

(1) The single equitable remuneration for the realization of right to a special remuneration from article 39 and 146 of this Law, which is paid from the first sale or import into the Republic of Serbia of devices to sound or visual recording and empty carriers of sound, picture and text, is determined by agreement in writing between the organizations which exercise the right of those holders of copyright and related rights that by the virtue of this law enjoy the right to a special remuneration on one side and on the other side the representative association of producers or importers of devices for sound and visual recording and importers of empty carriers of sound, picture and text.

(2) The organizations from Paragraph 1 of this Article jointly initiate the negotiations on the single equitable tariff, jointly negotiate in the procedure and in a way determined by article 173 and 174 of this Law and jointly publish the single equitable remuneration from paragraph 1 of this article in the "Official Gazette of the Republic of Serbia".

(3) The single equitable remuneration determined in a way prescribed by Paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article is enforced on the eight day from the publication date in the "Official Gazette of the Republic of Serbia".

(4) If in the term of two months from the date of the publication of the invitation from Article 174 of this Law, the agreement from Paragraph 1 of this Article has not been reached, the proposal of the single equitable tariff from Paragraph 1 of this Article is determined by the administrative boards of the organizations on the basis of a written agreement.

SERBIA

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

(5) The proposal of a single equitable remuneration is communicated to the Commission for an opinion.

(6) If in the term from 90 days from the publication of the invitation from the article 173 of this Law, the organizations from paragraph 1 of this article do not file to the Commission the request for the opinion on the proposal of a single equitable tariff, that tariff shall be determined by the Commission.

(7) The collection of the single equitable remuneration from Paragraph 1 of this Article is performed by the organization for the collective management of musical rights with the previously reached agreement in writing with the organizations that participated in the negotiations on the single equitable tariff and the amount of the expenses of collecting the special remuneration and the regime of distribution of the special remuneration among the organizations from this paragraph.

(8) The organization for the collective management of musical rights has the obligation to divide the totally collected special remuneration, after the deduction of expenses of collection of the special remuneration determined as agreed, to the authors and direct to the organizations of the interpreters and the producers of phonograms or videograms in the following way: 40% to the authors, 30% to the interpreters and 30% to the producers and phonograms and the producers of videograms.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

A new Law on Copyright and Related Rights has been drafted, aiming to further harmonize domestic legislation with the EU acquis, but it was taken out of the legislative procedure. No significant changes concerning private copying are expected.

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES?

Certain importers claim that devices imported are for professional use only. However, the law does not provide for exemptions on this basis.

Note:

The reprographic figures for 2024 do not include revenues collected by OORP, as they weren't available at the time of completing this survey. Namely, the reprographic levy in Serbia is collected by two organizations, OFA and OORP, who have separate tariffs for the same devices. OFA represents photography authors, whereas OORP represents literary rightsholders (but only insofar as concerning reprography rights, not authors' rights).

The "classic" PCL is collected by SOKOJ in accordance with the law, and distributed to three groups of rightsholders, whose general shares are determined by the law, as follows: authors 40%, producers 30%, performers 30%. Within those categories, there are several CMOs representing the following categories of rightsholders: authors - SOKOJ (music authors), UFUS AFA ZAŠTITA (audiovisual authors), OFA (photography authors); producers - OFPS (phonogram producers); performers - PI (music performers), GOS (actors).

The percentages between organizations within single categories are individually agreed and subject to negotiations. It should also be noted that not all organizations have been participating in distribution during the period encompassed here.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Act No. 185/2015 Coll. on Copyright and Related rights.

Section 42 of the Copyright Act No. 185/2015 Coll.

A natural person does not infringe copyright when, without the author's consent, they use a work by making a reproduction for their private need for a purpose that is not directly or indirectly commercial.

LEVY ONLY

General Scheme:

Section 36 par. 2 of the Copyright Act No. 185/2015 Coll.

(2) For use of a work under §§42 and 43, there is an obligation to pay compensation of remuneration (náhrada odmeny), calculated from the base and at the rates set out in Annex No. 2.

(3) The obligation to pay the compensation under paragraph 2 lies with:

- a) the manufacturer, the consignee from an EU/EEA state, the importer from a third country, or another person who, for the purpose of sale, first places on the market in the Slovak Republic (including online sales) a technical device enabling temporary or permanent reproduction, storage or retention of a reproduction of a work, or an unrecorded recording medium enabling storage or retention of a reproduction of a work;

Reprographic Devices:

Section 36 par. 2 of the Copyright Act No. 185/2015 Coll.

(2) For use of a work under §§42 and 43, there is an obligation to pay compensation of remuneration, calculated from the base and at the rates set out in Annex No. 2.

(3) The obligation to pay the compensation under paragraph 2 lies with:

- a) the manufacturer, the consignee from an EU/EEA state, the importer from a third country, or another person who, for the purpose of sale, first places on the market in the Slovak Republic (including online sales) a technical device enabling temporary or permanent reproduction, storage or retention of a reproduction of a work, or an unrecorded recording medium enabling storage or retention of a reproduction of a work;
- b) a person providing reprographic services for a fee.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

SOZA collects the remuneration and distributes them to 5 collective management societies authorized to collect private copying remuneration in Slovakia, including SOZA itself. LITA, Society of Authors is authorized to collect reprography remuneration and distribute it among authors and publishers.

RATE SETTING

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

Negotiations between CMO and the representative union of users

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

Criteria used in the negotiation process are storage capacity (media), price categories (devices) and format itself (CD, DVD, analogue media, recorders)

ARE THERE ANY CONSUMERS OR BUYERS EXEMPT FROM PAYING THE LEVIES?

Copyright Act provides three cases of exemption: (1) when products are imported for non-commercial use as part of importer's personal luggage, (2) when products are sold or imported for the first time for the purposes of reproduction for the benefit of disabled persons if directly related to their disability and (3) for manufacturers with respect to devices or media which are made for exportation.

ARE THERE ANY PRODUCTS EXEMPT FROM LEVIES?

First sales or imports of devices and media used for commercial reproduction for which the authorization of the right holders should be obtained.

EXEMPTION UPFRONT?

Products imported for non-commercial use as part of importer's personal luggage are exempted upfront.

REFUND AFTERWARDS?

Persons liable can declare a refund from the detailed list of exempted products supported by a document proving the fact of export or by certificate confirming the Person's exemption status (related to either commercial reproduction activity or disability), including a description of usage.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Collection process and the Tariffs are set by Joint Agreement between Kopriva and Chamber of Commerce. Individual Contract between Kopriva and person liable may furthermore specify some of the Joint Agreement's provisions.

Kopriva obtains and processes manufacturers' and importers' reports, collects remuneration and distributes remuneration (quarterly) to licensed CMOs (see distribution keys below).

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

According to the Law, the reports and payments to Kopriva are due semi-annually. Individual Contracts between Kopriva and persons liable may define monthly accounting. Kopriva's accounting to licensed CMOs is due on quarterly basis (four times a year).

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Copyright Act:

- The release of goods into free circulation in accordance with customs regulations of the European Community AND
- Each admission to the territory of the Republic of Slovenia from other EU Member States.

WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER?

Any person performing the activities stated above.

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

Kopriva is not responsible for the distribution of remuneration directly to rightsholders. It only distributes to licensed CMOs which distribute remuneration to individual rightsholders (see CMOs listed below).

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

Maximum is not set by Law. IPO's license declares general maximum of 20%.

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

IS THERE A SOCIAL AND/OR CULTURAL DEDUCTION?

There's no deduction made by Kopriva. Other CMOs may set up dedicated funds in accordance with their statutes. The CMOs may allocate a maximum of 10% of the collected rights' revenue to the dedicated funds.

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF THE DEDUCTION AND WHO CAN BENEFIT?

The funds shall represent separate assets earmarked to promote artistic creativity and to disseminate new copyright works in areas significant for the preservation of cultural diversity, i.e. funding shall be granted to promising authors permanently residing in the Republic of Slovenia or to authors permanently residing in Republic of Slovenia for social or educational purposes.

LEGAL BASIS

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Article 50 of Copyright and related rights Act of 30 march 1995 as last amended on December 15, 2006

(1) Subject to Article 37, the reproduction of a disclosed work shall be free, if made in no more than three copies and provided that the conditions of paragraphs 2 or 3 are fulfilled.

(2) A natural person shall be free to reproduce works: 1. on paper or any similar medium by the use of a photographic technique or by some other process having similar effects; and 2. on any other medium if this is done for private use, if the copies are not available to the public, and if this is not done for direct or indirect economic advantage.

(3) Publicly accessible archives and libraries, museums and educational or scientific establishments shall be free to reproduce, on any medium, works from their own copies for internal use, provided that this is not done for direct or indirect economic advantage.

(4) Reproduction according to the foregoing paragraphs shall not be permitted with respect to written works to the extent of the whole book, graphic editions of musical works, electronic databases and computer programs, and in the form of building of architectural structures, unless otherwise provided by this Act or by contract.

(5) Notwithstanding paragraph 4, it shall be permissible, under the conditions of paragraph 1: 1. to reproduce a written work to the extent of the whole book, if such work is out of print for a minimum of two years; 2. to reproduce a graphic edition of musical work by means of handwritten transcription.

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Law 2/2019, of March 1, which modifies the revised text of the Intellectual Property Law, approved by Legislative Royal Decree 1/1996, of April 12.

Royal Decree Law 12/2017, 3rd July

And amended up to Royal Decree-Law No. 6/2022 of March 29, 2022

Article 31

31(2). Without prejudice to the equitable compensation provided for in Article 25, the reproduction, on any medium, without third-party assistance, of works already disclosed does not require the author's authorization when the following circumstances occur simultaneously, which constitute the legal limit of private copying:

- (a) it is carried out by a natural person exclusively for private use, non-professional and non-business, and without direct or indirect commercial purposes;
- (b) the reproduction is made from a lawful source, and the conditions of access to the work or subject matter are not infringed;
- (c) the copy obtained is not used collectively or for profit, nor distributed for payment."

31(3). Excluded from the foregoing paragraph are:

- (a) reproductions of works made available to the public under Article 20.2(i), such that any person may access them from the place and at the time of their choosing, where reproduction of the work is authorized under the contractual terms and, where appropriate, upon payment;
- (b) electronic databases;
- (c) computer programs (as per Article 99(a).

LEVY ONLY

Article 25(1)

The reproduction of disclosed works in the form of books (or other publications assimilated to books by royal decree), as well as of phonograms, videograms or other sound, visual or audiovisual carriers, made by non-typographic technical devices or instruments, exclusively for private, non-professional and non-business use, and without direct or indirect commercial purposes, in accordance with Article 31(2) and (3), gives rise to an equitable, single compensation for each of the three reproduction modalities mentioned, aimed at adequately compensating the prejudice caused to the creditors as a result of reproductions made under the legal limit of private copying. That compensation shall be determined, for each modality, with regard to the equipment, devices and tangible media suitable for such reproduction, manufactured in Spanish territory or acquired outside it for commercial distribution or use within that territory.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Royal Decree 1398/2018, 23rd November

Article 25(9) Consolidated Text of the Law on Intellectual Property, Regularizing, Clarifying and Harmonizing the Applicable Statutory Provisions

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Article 25(10)

The CMOs shall participate in the incorporation, management and financing of a legal person which, on behalf of all of them, shall:

- (a) manage exemptions and refunds;
- (b) receive and forward to the CMOs the periodic returns prepared by debtors and, as applicable, jointly liable parties;
- (c) provide unified billing communication.

Article 25(11)

Debtors and jointly liable parties shall allow that legal person to verify acquisitions and sales subject to compensation and those affected by exemptions under paragraph 7. Likewise, holders of exemption certificates must, upon request, provide the data necessary to verify they continue to meet the requirements.

Article 25(12)

For the Ministry of Education, Culture and Sport to perform its inspection, supervision and control of CMOs, the legal person shall, by April 1 each year, submit information for the preceding year:

- (a) detailed list of periodic returns (equipment/devices/media) for which payment obligation arose;
- (b) detailed list of compensations paid;
- (c) list of exemption certificates and refunds processed;
- (d) any additional information required. This information shall be published on the Ministry's website. The Ministry shall also decide disputes concerning denials—by that legal person—of exemption certificates (25(7)(b),(c)) and refund applications (25(8)).

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

The CMOs are negotiating with the debtor's organizations to agree on new tariffs. If there's not an agreement reached, the Government will regulate it by Royal Decree.

COURT CASES

Court cases are progressing adequately but very slowly. To have a firm and final court decision takes five years. Spain's system was implemented by the end of 2017.

OVERVIEW

COLLECTING SOCIETY APPOINTED BY

Copyswede is responsible for the collection and distribution of the remuneration. According to Article 26 m of the Copyright Act, an organization representing a substantial number of Swedish authors and holders of neighboring rights in the field concerned is entitled to collect the remuneration. Copyswede is tasked by its member organizations and co-operative partners to collect the remuneration. (The member organizations represent Swedish authors and performers and Copyswede have partnership agreements with TV- and radio corporations and organizations of film and phonogram producers).

EXCEPTION

Yes

LEVY

Equipment: Yes
Media: Yes
Reprography: No (collected through ECL, not on devices)

TARIFFS

Tariffs are in place. However, the tariffs are currently negotiated with the electronics industry.

BENEFICIARIES

Copyswede is responsible for distribution to rightsholders. Both directly to individual rightsholders or through organizations of rightsholders.

LIABLE

Importers

EXEMPTION

Export/professional use/use by organizations for disabled people

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL DEDUCTIONS

RATE SETTING

HOW ARE LEVIES/REMUNERATION DETERMINED?

By law. In practice the level of the levies has been set through negotiations and in compensation claims directed to the importers.

WHICH CRITERIA ARE USED FOR DETERMINING THE LEVIES/REMUNERATION?

Actual number of copies made (empirical study)

The law contains certain criteria to reduce the levies (in practice this has been achieved through negotiations with the industry). The mentioned criteria are, for example, if the authors have received in some other form compensation for the making of private copies or if the products are used for other purposes than private copying.

SWEDEN

ARE THERE ANY CONSUMERS OR BUYERS EXEMPT FROM PAYING THE LEVIES?

The law provides an explicit exception regarding sales for professional uses and sales to organizations for functionally disabled persons.

EX-ANTE EXEMPTION?

The condition is that the products will be exported from the country, used only for professional purposes or used for the making of copies of works for persons with a disability.

REFUND?

A refund may be claimed if a product is withdrawn from the market or exported. The claim must be included in a monthly report to Copy-swede within one year of the report of the product's original sale. The corresponding amount will be deducted from the levy for that reporting period.

Importers registered with Copyswede are not required to submit special evidence, but Copyswede reserves the right to audit as regulated in the agreement with importers.

Refunds may be requested by any importer, manufacturer or distributor that is registered with Copyswede and has assumed responsibility for reporting and paying the levy.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Organizations must contact and report to Copyswede themselves. Collection is not legally organized by customs.

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Once a month

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Copyswede performs regular market control and has the right to audit importers and retailers. The right to audit is regulated in agreements with the importers.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

There is no collaboration with tax authorities/customs.

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

Yes

DEFINITION OF IMPORT

The definition in 26k § of the Copyright Act is to bring products into the country within professional activities.

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES? AND WHY?

Yes, there are liable parties who claim that they do not have to pay any levy for smartphones, computers or tablets. The reason for that is that they claim that these devices are not "especially suitable for the making of copies of works for private purposes" and are not included in the system.

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

Collected remunerations are distributed by Copyswede. STIM. SAMI/IFPI. film producers and broadcasting organizations on a yearly basis.

No

FREQUENCY OF DISTRIBUTION

Once every year

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

Authors, performers and producers

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

The revenue for each product is divided between audio and video copying. For this purpose, Copyswede commissions market research companies to carry out annual copying surveys. The division of the revenue is based on the results of the copying surveys. Following a proposition of distribution from Copyswede, negotiations take place between Copyswede and the organizations of rights holders. Both parties then set distribution schemes.

DISTRIBUTION KEYS

Audio:

5.33% Union of Broadcasting Organizations (UBOS)

Thereafter:

33.3 % STIM (Lyricists and composers)

33.3 % SAMI (Artists/musicians for recorded music)

33.3% IFPI (Music producers)

Video:

5.33% Union of Broadcasting Organizations (UBOS)

In 2008 an agreement with representatives from the US copyright holders was signed, allocating 20% of the total share of the collected private copying levy relating to video copying net of the share accrued to UBOS.

Thereafter:

33% Video and film producers

67% IFPI and Copyswede's Member Organizations

LEGAL BASIS

Copyright Act (1969:729) on Copyright in Literary and Artistic Works, amended up to Act (2024:791)

26 k §

When a trader manufactures in business, or imports into the country, devices on which sound or moving images can be recorded and which are specially suited for making copies of works for private use, authors of protected works ... have a right to remuneration from the trader.

12 § Exemplars for private use

Anyone may, for private use, make one or a few copies of published works... The copies may not be used for other purposes than private use. (With stated exclusions, e.g., computer programs.)

LEVY

26 l § of the Copyright Act:

The remuneration under Section 26 k is:

1. for a device for analog recording: two and a half öre for each possible minute of recording;
2. for devices on which digital recording can be made repeatedly: 0.4 öre per megabyte of storage capacity;
3. for other devices on which digital recording can be made: 0.25 öre per megabyte of storage capacity.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

26 m § of the Copyright Act:

Only an organization that represents a large number of remuneration-entitled authors and holders of related rights in the field has the right to collect and to conclude agreements on reductions of the remuneration under Sections 26 k and 26 l.

The organization shall collect the remuneration and distribute it among those entitled to remuneration, after deducting compensation to the organization for its expenses.

In the distribution, right holders not represented by the organization shall be treated equally with right holders represented by the organization.

Traders referred to in Section 26 k, first paragraph, shall register with such an organization as referred to in the first paragraph. Upon the organization's request, the trader shall report the number of devices covered by the right to remuneration, the devices' recording time or storage capacity, whether the devices can be used for repeated digital recording, and when the devices were manufactured or imported. The report shall indicate the number of devices referred to in Section 26 k, second paragraph.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

Over the years Copyswede has signed many agreements with various industry representatives and regulated the remuneration for different products in agreements. In recent years stakeholders within the industry have questioned the suitability of the remuneration for certain product types such as mobile phones, tablets and computers.

Copyswede has claimed remuneration for mobile phones, computers, tablets, internal hard drives and gaming consoles. Some importers have admitted the liability to pay but other have rejected and several legal proceedings have been initiated (see below under "Court Cases").

SWEDEN

COURT CASES

Copyswede have sued two importers of mobile phones and has gained support in the first (2014), second (2015) and third instance (2016 and 2017) for its claims that mobile phones are “especially suitable for the making of copies of works for private purposes”.

Copyswede has also sued one of the importers of mobile phones regarding the level of the private copying levy and gained support for its claims in 2018. The case is now appealed to the Patent- and market court of appeal.

In July 2014 Copyswede sued a company for their import of computers and tablets. Copyswede gained support for its claims in first (2015) and second instance (2016).

EXPLANATION ON DEVELOPMENTS

In the year 2016 two companies made a retroactive payment for the years of 2014-2016 for USB memories and external hard drives. In 2017 a major tv distributor in Sweden ceased to pay for hard disc video recorders because of change in broadcasting technology. There have been court proceedings regarding if smart phones, computers and tablets are included in the private copying levy system. The courts have found that they are, but the levels of the levies are still negotiated with the electronic industry, and many companies still do not pay levies for these types of products.

LEGAL BASIS

Swiss Copyright law

EXCEPTION AND LEVY

Art. 19f Swiss Copyright law

1 Published works may be used for private use. Private use means:

- a. Any personal use of the work within a circle of person closely connected to each other, such as relatives or friends;
- b. any use of a work by a teacher and his class for educational purposes;
- c. the copying of a work in enterprises, public administrations, institutions, commissions and similar bodies for internal information or documentation.

2 Persons entitled to make copies of a work for private use may also have them made by third parties subject to paragraph 3; libraries, other public institutions and businesses that make copying apparatus available to their users are also deemed third parties within the meaning of this paragraph.

3 The following are not permitted outside the private sphere defined in paragraph 1 letter a:

- a. the complete or substantial copying of a work obtainable commercially;
- b. the copying of works of art;
- c. the copying of musical scores;
- d. the fixation of recitations, performances or presentations of a work on blank media.

3bis Copies which are made by accessing works that are lawfully made available are neither subject to the restriction of private use under this Article nor are they included in the claims for remuneration under Article 20.

4 This Article does not apply to computer programs.

LEVY ONLY

Art. 60 Swiss Copyright law

1 When determining remuneration, account is taken of:

- a. the proceeds obtained from the use of the work, performance, phonogram or audio-visual fixation or broadcast, or alternatively the costs incurred in such use;
- b. the nature and quantity of the works, performances, phonograms or audio-visual fixations or broadcasts used;
- c. the ratio of protected to unprotected works, performances, phonograms or audio-visual fixations or broadcasts as well as to other services.

2 Remuneration normally amounts to a maximum of ten per cent of the proceeds or costs incurred from the use of the copyright and a maximum of three per cent for related rights; however, it is determined in such a way that entitled persons receive equitable remuneration conditioned upon sound financial management for the administration of rights.

SWITZERLAND

LEVY ONLY

3 The use of the work under Article 19 paragraph 1 letter b is subject to preferential tariffs.

4 The rental of copies of works in accordance with Article 13 by public or publicly accessible libraries is subject to preferential tariffs in order to safeguard the institution's mandate to disseminate knowledge.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Art. 45 Swiss Copyright law

1 The collective rights management organisations are required to conduct their business in accordance with proper business management principles.

2 They administer the rights in accordance with set rules and with the principle of equal treatment.

3 They may not aim to make a profit.

4 They shall conclude, wherever possible, reciprocal agreements with foreign collective rights management organisations.

Art. 48

1 The collective rights management organisations are required to draw up distribution regulations and to submit them to the IPI for approval.

2 With the approval of the supreme organ of the rights management organisation, a portion of the proceeds may be used for social welfare purposes and for the appropriate promotion of culture.

Art. 49

1 The collective rights management organisations must distribute the exploitation proceeds in proportion to the revenue derived from the individual works and performances. They must make all reasonable efforts to identify those who are entitled to a share of the proceeds.

2 If a distribution entails unreasonable expense, the collective rights management organisations may estimate the extent of revenue; the estimates are based on factors that are capable of verification and are appropriate.

3 The proceeds are divided between the original holders of rights and other entitled persons in such a way that an equitable share goes to the author and the performer. A different distribution is permissible where the expense would be unreasonable.

4 Contractual agreements made by the original holders of rights with third parties take precedence over the rules of distribution.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

Swiss Copyright law is currently under revision. The draft legislation under consideration does not provide any changes regarding private copying.

ARE THERE LIABLE PARTIES WHO DENY RESPONSIBILITY OR PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN MEDIA/DEVICES?

Currently not. However, during negotiations the users' associations claim increasingly often that phones and tablets are only used for streaming therefore the storage in the devices should not be levied anymore.

OVERVIEW

COLLECTING SOCIETY APPOINTED BY

UKRAINIAN MUSIC ALLIANCE (UMA) was appointed (accredited) by the Ministry of Economic Development, Trade and Agriculture of Ukraine on 18 February 2020. On 13 January 2022, the accreditation was withdrawn by the Ministry based on a court decision.

ALL-UKRAINIAN AUTHOR'S RIGHTS AGENCY was appointed (accredited) by the Ministry of Economic Development, Trade and Agriculture of Ukraine on 18 February 2020. On 11 January 2022 the accreditation was withdrawn by the Ministry based on a court decision.

All accreditation procedures have been statutorily frozen due to the ongoing war of aggression launched by the Russian Federation against Ukraine on 24 February 2022 for the duration of martial law (para. 3-4 Transitional provisions of the Law 2415-VIII dated 15 May 2018 "On Effective Management of Copyrights of Rightsholders in the Field of Copyright and (or) Related Rights"). Until martial law is cancelled, the Ministry has no powers to start the accreditation procedure to fill gaps left by annulled or expired accreditations. New procedures may only be initiated within the period prescribed by law after martial law has been terminated. In practical terms, this has frozen the accreditation landscape and limited the Ministry's ability to restore full coverage of mandatory collective management (reprography and private copying).

OVERVIEW

LIABLE	Importers and manufacturers are liable for payment.
EXEMPTION	Export, professional equipment, equipment and media imported for personal purposes
SOCIAL AND CULTURAL DEDUCTIONS	Yes: 25%

RATE SETTING

Levies to be determined by negotiations between the collecting society and users, users' associations and unions. If no consensus is reached during negotiation, the levies should be set by the court. Since the accreditations of both CMOs were withdrawn in accordance with the court decisions in early 2022, and immediately after that, the accreditation process was statutorily banned due to the martial law period, and no tariffs have been established to date.

REFURBISHED DEVICES

The following categories are exempt from the private copying levy payment:

- 1) Equipment imported by individuals for private purposes;
- 2) professional equipment;
- 3) Equipment exported outside Ukraine.

COLLECTION PROCESS

HOW IS COLLECTION ORGANIZED?

Manufacturers pay the levy within 30 days after the sale of the equipment or material carriers, while importers pay within 30 days from customs clearance.

Manufacturers and importers must also provide documented information on the quantities produced or imported.

HOW FREQUENTLY IS PAYMENT DUE?

Payment is due 30 days after selling or importing.

HOW DO YOU MONITOR THE MARKET?

Because of the lack of accredited CMOs, there are no instruments to monitor the market.

COLLABORATION WITH TAX AUTHORITIES/CUSTOMS

According to Ukrainian legislation, CMOs don't have legal grounds to receive information directly from tax authorities/customs.

ARE EXPORTS EXEMPTED?

Yes

DEFINITION OF IMPORT

Import means the bringing of goods into the customs territory of the importing country for consumption in that country.

UKRAINE

COLLECTION PROCESS

WHO IS CONSIDERED IMPORTER?

Importer means a business entity that declares the entry of goods into the customs territory of the importing country.

DISTRIBUTION PROCESS

WHO DISTRIBUTES THE COLLECTED REMUNERATIONS TOWARDS RIGHTSHOLDERS?

The amounts of collected remuneration shall be distributed by the accredited CMOs only.

IS THERE A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS FOR COLLECTING/DISTRIBUTION PRIVATE COPYING REMUNERATIONS IN THE WHOLE CHAIN DETERMINED BY LAW?

Yes, the law prescribes that the administrative costs shall not exceed

- 20% of the amount collected for the benefit of the rightholder in case the remunerations are being paid directly to the rightholder;
- one third of the total maximum administrative fees of all collective management organisations involved in the process of collecting and distributing rights revenue to the rightholder in case the remunerations are being paid to the partnering CMO.

FREQUENCY OF DISTRIBUTION

Annually; CMOs must distribute funds within six months of their receipt.

WHICH RIGHTSHOLDERS ARE INCLUDED?

Authors, performers, rightholders.

HOW ARE THE DISTRIBUTION SCHEMES DETERMINED?

Under the general scheme, a fixed share of the collected revenue (25%) is allocated to the development of Ukrainian culture under a procedure approved by the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine.

The remaining amount is distributed equally between:

- 1) Holders of exclusive rights in musical works;
- 2) Holders of exclusive rights in audiovisual works;
- 3) authors and performers of an audiovisual work or their heirs;
- 4) Holders of exclusive rights to phonograms (videograms);
- 5) Performers of works fixed in phonograms (videograms) or their successors.

SOCIAL AND CULTURAL FUNDS

Social and Cultural deductions total 25% of total revenue collections from the date of the adoption of the new law. The deductions are made to the Ukrainian Culture Fund, with beneficiaries including different creators.

Copyright Law No. 2811-IX dated 1 December 1, 2022

General Scheme:

Article 28 — Free reproduction of works for personal purposes

(2) Private copies of audio/video content with remuneration

Reproduction for personal purposes of works fixed in phonograms, videograms and audiovisual works is permitted without authorization, subject to payment of equitable remuneration to the rightholders. The procedure for payment is determined by the Law on Effective Management of Property Rights (2018).

Reprographic Devices:

Article 28 — Free reproduction of works for personal purposes

(3) Reprography with remuneration

Reprographic copying of works for personal use or within the family circle is likewise permitted with payment of equitable remuneration, with the payment procedure determined by the same Collective Management Law.

LEVY

Law 2415-VIII dated 15 May 2018

“On Effective Management of Copyright Holders in the Field of Copyright and(or) Related Rights”

General Scheme:

Article 23. Procedure for collection and distribution of remuneration for reprographic reproduction of works and private copying

2. The remuneration for private copying (reproduction at home and for personal purposes of works and performances recorded in phonograms, videograms, as well as audiovisual works) shall be collected from producers and (or) importers of digital, analogue, and other equipment and material carriers, with the use of which the reprographic reproduction of works may be exercised, under the conditions provided by the Law of Ukraine “On Copyright and Related Rights”. The remuneration for private copying shall be paid in the form of deductions (as a percentage) of the cost of equipment and material carriers, with the use of which the reprographic reproduction of works may be exercised, except for:

- 1) professional equipment and (or) material carriers not intended for use at home;
- 2) equipment and material carriers exported outside the customs territory of Ukraine;
- 3) equipment and material carriers, imported by an individual on the customs territory of Ukraine exclusively for personal purposes and without a commercial purpose.

Reprographic Devices:

Article 23. Procedure for collection and distribution of remuneration for reprographic reproduction of works and private copying

1. Remuneration for reprographic reproduction of works shall be collected from producers and (or) importers of equipment and material carriers, with the use of which the reprographic reproduction of works may be exercised.

The remuneration for the reproduction of works shall be paid in the form of deductions (as a percentage) of the cost of equipment and material carriers, with the use of which the reprographic reproduction of works may be exercised.

COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

Law 2415-VIII dated 15 May 2018

1. Principle: equal shares

Article 23. Procedure for collection and distribution of remuneration for reprographic reproduction of works and private copying

5. Twenty-five percent of the remuneration collected for the reprographic reproduction of works shall be directed to funding the development of Ukrainian culture. The procedure and conditions for the transfer by an accredited collective management organisation of the corresponding funds to a state institution that performs special functions in promoting the national-cultural development of Ukraine shall be approved by the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine.

The remaining amount of the remuneration collected by the accredited organisation for reprographic reproduction of works indicated in paragraph one of this part, shall be distributed for the following categories of rightsholders in the respective shares:

- authors of works of science, artistic literature - 50 percent;
- authors of fine art, photographic and other similar works - 10 percent;
- publishers - 40 percent.

6. Twenty-five percent of the remuneration collected for private copying shall be directed to funding the development of Ukrainian culture. The procedure and conditions for the transfer by an accredited collective management organisation of the corresponding funds to a state institution that performs special functions in promoting the national-cultural development of Ukraine shall be approved by the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine.

The remaining amount of rights revenue collected for private copying specified in paragraph one of this part shall be distributed in equal proportions for the following categories of rightsholders:

- 1) persons holding proprietary copyrights in musical works;
- 2) persons holding proprietary copyrights in audiovisual works;
- 3) authors and performers of an audiovisual work or their heirs;
- 4) persons holding proprietary related rights in phonograms (videograms);
- 5) performers of works recorded in phonograms (videograms) or their heirs.

2. Frequency and deadlines for distribution & payment

Article 21. Distribution of rights revenue, deduction of administration fee and other payments

The CMO's statute must provide for distribution at least once per year.

CMOs must distribute and pay out the collected revenue to rightsholders (including those represented via other CMOs) as quickly as possible and no later than nine months after the end of the financial year in which the revenue was collected, unless there are objective reasons preventing timely distribution (such as missing reports from users, inability to identify rightsholders, or mismatches in work/rightsholder data).

An accredited CMO distributes its share to the rightsholders it represents and forwards the other shares to CMOs representing other categories of rightsholders; those CMOs must then distribute/pay their part as soon as possible and within six months of receiving the money, again subject only to objective obstacles of the same type.

3. Undistributable amounts / separate accounting

If amounts due to rightsholders cannot be distributed within the prescribed time limits because rightsholders cannot be identified or located, and no exception applies, those amounts must be recorded on a separate (sub-)account in the CMO's books.

LEGAL DEVELOPMENTS

All accreditation procedures have been statutorily frozen due to the ongoing war of aggression launched by the Russian Federation against Ukraine on 24 February 2022 for the duration of martial law (para. 3-4 Transitional provisions of the Law 2415-VIII dated 15 May 2018 "On Effective Management of Copyrights of Right Holders in the Field of Copyright and (or) Related Rights"). Until martial law is cancelled, the Ministry has no powers to start the accreditation procedure to fill gaps left by annulled or expired accreditations. New procedures may only be initiated within the period prescribed by law after martial law has been terminated. In practical terms, this has frozen the accreditation landscape and limited the Ministry's ability to restore full coverage of mandatory collective management (reprography and private copying).

TARIFFS IN LOCAL CURRENCY

Detailed information not provided

The amount of deductions paid by manufacturers and importers of equipment and levies applied locally to works and performances recorded in phonograms and (or) videograms. Rates as of July 3, 2014.

Note: Amount of deductions applied to equipment and media (excluding VAT):

For importers – percentage of the value specified in the foreign trade agreement (contract);

For manufacturers – percentage of the sales price.

INTRODUCTION OCEANIA

Oceania is a vast region composed of thousands of islands scattered throughout the Pacific Ocean. It is the smallest continent in terms of land area and the least populated. In the smaller Pacific nations, many of the copyright laws are outdated and not well enforced.

From a private copying remuneration viewpoint, none of the sixteen studied countries and territories has a private copying remuneration exception. Five countries and one territory have not included a private copying exception in their copyright law (French Polynesia, Kiribati, Micronesia, Nauru, Solomon Islands and Tuvalu).

Palau, Papua New Guinea, Samoa, Tonga, and Vanuatu have implemented an exception for private copying, but limited to one copy of a work. In Fiji, the Copyright Act provides a “time-shifting” exception, which allows individuals to record a television or radio broadcast and watch or listen to it later. The Marshall Islands law also provides an exception for people transferring or causing the transfer of works without any intent to make a commercial benefit. No compensation for rightsholders accompanies these exceptions.

The French territory of New Caledonia has passed a new law in 2023 including a right to remuneration for private copying, but due to a moratorium, is not currently being enforced.

The last two countries in this region, Australia and New Zealand, have significant potential revenue sources for creators. Both have an exception for private copying included in their laws, as well as ‘time-shifting’ and ‘format-shifting’ exceptions in Australia, but still without any compensation for rightsholders.

In the few countries that provide for some form of exception for private copying, four specifically exclude Reprography from its scope (Palau, Papua New Guinea, Tonga and Vanuatu).

- (a) the sound recording is not a communication work or part of a communication work; and
- (b) the copy is made from a sound recording that is not an infringing copy; and
- (c) the sound recording is not borrowed or hired; and
- (d) the copy is made by the owner of the sound recording; and
- (e) that owner acquired the sound recording legitimately; and
- (f) the copy is used only for that owner's personal use or the personal use of a member of the household in which the owner lives or both; and
- (g) no more than 1 copy is made for each device for playing sound recordings that is owned by the owner of the sound recording; and
- (h) the owner of the sound recording retains the ownership of both the sound recording and of any copy that is made under this section.

(2) For the avoidance of doubt, subsection (1) does not apply if the owner of the sound recording is bound by a contract that specifies the circumstances in which the sound recording may be copied.

RELEVANT CASE LAW FROM THE EUROPEAN COURT (ECJ)

2/15

I. PRIVATE COPYING CASES

C-467/08, October 21, 2010 – Padawan/SGAE

Non-discriminatory application of the private copying levy.

1. The concept of “fair compensation”, within the meaning of Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonization of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society, is an autonomous concept of European Union law which must be interpreted uniformly in all the Member States that have introduced a private copying exception, irrespective of the power conferred on the Member States to determine, within the limits imposed by European Union law in particular by that directive, the form, detailed arrangements for financing and collection, and the level of that fair compensation.
2. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as meaning that the “fair balance” between the persons concerned means that fair compensation must be calculated on the basis of the criterion of the harm caused to authors of protected works by the introduction of the private copying exception. It is consistent with the requirements of that “fair balance” to provide that persons who have digital reproduction equipment, devices and media and who on that basis, in law or in fact, make that equipment available to private users or provide them with copying services are the persons liable to finance the fair compensation, inasmuch as they are able to pass on to private users the actual burden of financing it.
3. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as meaning that a link is necessary between the application of the levy intended to finance fair compensation with respect to digital reproduction equipment, devices and media and the deemed use of them for the purposes of private copying. Consequently, the indiscriminate application of the private copying levy, in particular with respect to digital reproduction equipment, devices and media not made available to private users and clearly reserved for uses other than private copying, is incompatible with Directive 2001/29.

C-462/09, June 16, 2011 – Stichting de ThuisKopie/Opus GmbH

Cross-border transactions and applicability of the exception.

1. Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonization of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society, in particular Article 5(2)(b) and (5) thereof, must be interpreted as meaning that the final user who carries out, on a private basis, the reproduction of a protected work must, in principle, be regarded as the person responsible for paying the fair compensation provided for in Article 5(2)(b). However, it is open to the Member States to establish a private copying levy chargeable to the persons who make reproduction equipment, devices and media available to that final user, since they are able to pass on the amount of that levy in the price paid by the final user for that service.
2. Directive 2001/29, in particular Article 5(2)(b) and (5) thereof, must be interpreted as meaning that it is for the Member State which has introduced a system of private copying levies chargeable to the manufacturer or importer of media for reproduction of protected works, and on the territory of which the harm caused to authors by the use for private purposes of their work by purchasers who reside there occurs, to ensure that those authors actually receive the fair compensation intended to compensate them for that harm. In that regard, the mere fact that the commercial seller of reproduction equipment, devices and media is established in a Member State other than that in which the purchasers reside has no bearing on that obligation to achieve a certain result. It is for the national court, where it is impossible to ensure recovery of the fair compensation from the purchasers, to interpret national law in order to allow recovery of that compensation from the person responsible for payment who is acting on a commercial basis.

RELEVANT CASE LAW FROM THE EUROPEAN COURT (ECJ)

3/15

C-277/10, February 9, 2012 – Luksan/Van der Let

Author is entitled directly and originally to the right of fair compensation.

1. Articles 1 and 2 of Council Directive 93/83/EEC of 27 September 1993 on the coordination of certain rules concerning copyright and rights related to copyright applicable to satellite broadcasting and cable retransmission, and Articles 2 and 3 of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonization of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society in conjunction with Articles 2 and 3 of Directive 2006/115/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 12 December 2006 on rental right and lending right and on certain rights related to copyright in the field of intellectual property and with Article 2 of Directive 2006/116/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 12 December 2006 on the term of protection of copyright and certain related rights, must be interpreted as meaning that rights to exploit a cinematographic work such as those at issue in the main proceedings (reproduction right, satellite broadcasting right and any other right of communication to the public through the making available to the public) vest by operation of law, directly and originally, in the principal director. Consequently, those provisions must be interpreted as precluding national legislation which allocates those exploitation rights by operation of law exclusively to the producer of the work in question.
2. European Union law must be interpreted as allowing the Member States the option of laying down a presumption of transfer, in favor of the producer of a cinematographic work, of rights to exploit the cinematographic work such as those at issue in the main proceedings (satellite broadcasting right, reproduction right and any other right of communication to the public through the making available to the public), provided that such a presumption is not an irrefutable one precluding the principal director of that work from agreeing otherwise.
3. European Union law must be interpreted as meaning that, in his capacity as author of a cinematographic work, the principal director thereof must be entitled, by operation of law, directly and originally, to the right to the fair compensation provided for in Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 under the 'private copying' exception.
4. European Union law must be interpreted as not allowing the Member States the option of laying down a presumption of transfer, in favor of the producer of a cinematographic work, of the right to fair compensation vesting in the principal director of that work, whether that presumption is couched in irrefutable terms or may be departed from.

C-457/11-C-460/11, June 27, 2013 – VG Wort/Kyocera

Technological measures; consequences of an authorization to reproduce works.

1. In the context of an exception or limitation provided for by Article 5(2) or (3) of Directive 2001/29, an act by which a rightholder may have authorized the reproduction of his protected work or other subject-matter has no bearing on the fair compensation owed, whether it is provided for on a compulsory or an optional basis under the relevant provision of that directive.
2. The possibility of applying technological measures under Article 6 of Directive 2001/29 cannot render inapplicable the condition relating to fair compensation provided for by Article 5(2)(b) of that directive.
3. The concept of 'reproductions effected by the use of any kind of photographic technique or by some other process having similar effects' within the meaning of Article 5(2)(a) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as including reproductions effected using a printer and a personal computer, where the two are linked together. In this case, it is open to the Member States to put in place a system in which the fair compensation is paid by the persons in possession of a device contributing, in a non-autonomous manner, to the single process of reproduction of the protected work or other subject-matter on the given medium, in so far as those persons have the possibility of passing on the cost of the levy to their customers, provided that the overall amount of the fair compensation owed as recompense for the harm suffered by the author at the end of that single process must not be substantially different from the amount fixed for a reproduction obtained by means of a single device.

C-521/11, July 11, 2013 – Amazon/Austro-Mechana

Non-discriminatory application of the levy combined with a right to reimbursement for levies paid; payment of the revenue in part to social or cultural institutions; double payment in cross-border transactions.

1. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonization of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society must be interpreted as meaning that it does not preclude legislation of a Member State which indiscriminately applies a private copying levy on the first placing on the market in its territory, for commercial purposes and for consideration, of recording media suitable for reproduction, while at the same time providing for a right to reimbursement of the levies paid in the event that the final use of those media does not meet the criteria set out in that provision, where, having regard to the particular circumstances of each national system and the limits imposed by that directive, which it is for the national court to verify, practical difficulties justify such a system of financing fair compensation and the right to reimbursement is effective and does not make repayment of the levies paid excessively difficult.
2. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as meaning that, in the context of a system of financing of fair compensation under that provision by means of a private copying levy to be borne by persons who first place recording media suitable for reproduction on the market in the territory of the Member State concerned for commercial purposes and for consideration, that provision does not preclude the establishment by that Member State of a rebuttable presumption of private use of such media where they are marketed to natural persons, where the practical difficulties of determining whether the purpose of the use of the media in question is private justify the establishment of such a presumption and provided that the presumption established does not result in the imposition of the private copying levy in cases where the final use of those media clearly does not fall within the case referred to in that provision.
3. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as meaning that the right to fair compensation under that provision or the private copying levy intended to finance that compensation cannot be excluded by reason of the fact that half of the funds received by way of such compensation or levy is paid, not directly to those entitled to such compensation, but to social and cultural institutions set up for the benefit of those entitled, provided that those social and cultural establishments actually benefit those entitled and the detailed arrangements for the operation of such establishments are not discriminatory, which it is for the national court to verify.
4. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as meaning that the obligation undertaken by a Member State to pay, on the placing on the market, for commercial purposes and for consideration, of recording media suitable for reproduction, a private copying levy intended to finance the fair compensation under that provision may not be excluded by reason of the fact that a comparable levy has already been paid in another Member State.

C-435/12, April 10, 2014 – ACI Adam/Stichting de ThuisKopie

Lawful nature of the origin of the copy.

1. EU law, in particular Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonization of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society, read in conjunction with paragraph 5 of that article, must be interpreted as precluding national legislation, such as that at issue in the main proceedings, which does not distinguish the situation in which the source from which a reproduction for private use is made is lawful from that in which that source is unlawful.
2. Directive 2004/48/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 29 April 2004 on the enforcement of intellectual property rights must be interpreted as not applying to proceedings, such as those in the main proceedings, in which those liable for payment of the fair compensation bring an action before the referring court for a ruling against the body responsible for collecting that remuneration and distributing it to copyright holders, which defends that action.

C-463/12, March 5, 2015 – Copydan Båndkopi/Nokia Danmark

Equal treatment; reimbursement scheme; consequences of an authorization to reproduce works.

1. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonization of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society does not preclude national legislation which provides that fair compensation is to be paid, in accordance with the exception to the reproduction right for copies made for private use, in respect of multifunctional media such as mobile telephone memory cards, irrespective of whether the main function of such media is to make such copies, provided that one of the functions of the media, be it merely an ancillary function, enables the operator to use them for that purpose. However, the question whether the function is a main or an ancillary one and the relative importance of the medium's capacity to make copies are liable to affect the amount of fair compensation payable. In so far as the prejudice to the rightholder may be regarded as minimal, the making available of such a function need not give rise to an obligation to pay fair compensation.
2. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 does not preclude national legislation which makes the supply of media that may be used for copying for private use, such as mobile telephone memory cards, subject to the levy intended to finance fair compensation payable in accordance with the exception to the reproduction right for copies for private use, but does not make the supply of components whose main purpose is to store copies for private use, such as the internal memories of MP3 players, subject to that levy, provided that those different categories of media and components are not comparable or the different treatment they receive is justified, which is a matter for the national court to determine.
3. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as not precluding national legislation which requires payment of the levy intended to finance fair compensation, in accordance with the exception to the reproduction right for copies for private use, by producers and importers who sell mobile telephone memory cards to business customers and are aware that those cards will be sold on by those customers but do not know whether the final purchasers of the cards will be individuals or business customers, on condition that: the introduction of such a system is justified by practical difficulties; the persons responsible for payment are exempt from the levy if they can establish that they have supplied the mobile telephone memory cards to persons other than natural persons for purposes clearly unrelated to copying for private use, it being understood that the exemption cannot be restricted to the supply of business customers registered with the organization responsible for administering the levy; the system provides for a right to reimbursement of that levy which is effective and does not make it excessively difficult to repay the levy and only the final purchaser of such a memory card may obtain reimbursement by submitting an appropriate application to that organization.
4. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29, read in the light of recital 35 in the preamble to that directive, must be interpreted as permitting the Member States to provide, in certain cases covered by the exception to the reproduction right for copies for private use, for an exemption from the requirement under that exception to pay fair compensation, provided that the prejudice caused to rightholders in such cases is minimal. It is within the discretion of the Member States to set the threshold for such prejudice, it being understood that that threshold must, inter alia, be applied in a manner consistent with the principle of equal treatment.
5. Directive 2001/29 is to be interpreted as meaning that, where a Member State has decided, pursuant to Article 5(2) of that directive, to exclude, from the material scope of that provision, any right for rightholders to authorize reproduction of their works for private use, any authorization given by a rightholder for the use of files containing his works can have no bearing on the fair compensation payable in accordance with the exception to the reproduction right for reproductions made in accordance with Article 5(2)(b) of that directive with the aid of such files and cannot, of itself, give rise to an obligation on the part of the user of the files concerned to pay remuneration of any kind to the rightholder.
6. The implementation of technological measures under Article 6 of Directive 2001/29 for devices used to reproduce protected works, such as DVDs, CDs, MP3 players and computers, can have no effect on the requirement to pay fair compensation in accordance with the exception to the reproduction right in respect of reproductions made for private use by means of such devices. However, the implementation of such measures may have an effect on the actual level of such compensation.

7. Directive 2001/29 precludes national legislation which provides for fair compensation, in accordance with the exception to the reproduction right, in respect of reproductions made using unlawful sources, namely from protected works which are made available to the public without the rightsholder's consent.
8. Directive 2001/29 does not preclude national legislation which provides for fair compensation, in accordance with the exception to the reproduction right, in respect of reproductions of protected works made by a natural person by or with the aid of a device which belongs to a third party.

C-572/13, November 12, 2015 – HP/Reprobel

Allocation of fair compensation to publishers, copying of sheet music.

1. Article 5(2)(a) and Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonization of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society must be interpreted as meaning that, with regard to the phrase "fair compensation" contained in those provisions, it is necessary to draw a distinction according to whether the reproduction on paper or a similar medium effected by the use of any kind of photographic technique or by some other process having similar effects is carried out by any user or by a natural person for private use and for ends that are neither directly nor indirectly commercial.
2. Article 5(2)(a) and Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 preclude national legislation, such as that at issue in the main proceedings, which authorizes the Member State in question to allocate a part of the fair compensation payable to rightsholders to the publishers of works created by authors, those publishers being under no obligation to ensure that the authors benefit, even indirectly, from some of the compensation of which they have been deprived.
3. Article 5(2)(a) and Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 preclude, in principle, national legislation, such as that at issue in the main proceedings, which introduces an undifferentiated system for recovering fair compensation which also covers the copying of sheet music, and preclude such legislation which introduces an undifferentiated system for recovering fair compensation which also covers counterfeit reproductions made from unlawful sources.
4. Article 5(2)(a) and Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 preclude national legislation, such as that at issue in the main proceedings, which introduces a system that combines, in order to finance the fair compensation payable to rightsholders, two forms of remuneration, namely, first, lump-sum remuneration paid prior to the reproduction operation by the manufacturer, importer or intra-Community acquirer of devices enabling protected works to be copied, at the time when such devices are put into circulation on national territory, and, second, proportional remuneration paid after that reproduction operation and determined solely by means of a unit price multiplied by the number of copies produced, which is payable by the natural or legal persons who make those copies, in so far as:

the lump-sum remuneration paid in advance is calculated solely by reference to the speed at which the device concerned is capable of producing copies; the proportional remuneration recovered after the fact varies according to whether or not the person liable for payment has cooperated in the recovery of that remuneration;

the combined system, taken as a whole, does not include mechanisms, in particular for reimbursement, which allows the complementary application of the criterion of actual harm suffered and the criterion of harm established as a lump sum in respect of different categories of users.

C-572/14, April 21, 2016 – Austro-Mechana/Amazon

International jurisdiction for national courts in cases regarding the payment of private copying remunerations.

1. It must be recalled that the “fair compensation” referred to in Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29, according to the case-law of the Court mentioned in paragraph 19 of the present judgment, intends to compensate authors for the private copy made without their authorization of their protected works, so that it must be regarded as compensation for the harm suffered by the authors resulting from such unauthorized copy by the latter. Therefore, the failure by Austro-Mechana to collect the remuneration provided for in Paragraph 42b of the UrhG constitutes a harmful event within the meaning of Article 5(3) of Regulation No 44/2001. The fact that, under the Austrian system relating to the financing of that “fair compensation”, the latter must be paid not to the holders of an exclusive reproduction right that it aims to compensate, but to a copyright-collecting society is irrelevant in that respect.
2. Article 5(3) of Council Regulation (EC) No 44/2001 of 22 December 2000 on jurisdiction and the recognition and enforcement of judgments in civil and commercial matters must be interpreted as meaning that a claim seeking to obtain payment of remuneration due by virtue of a national law, such as that at issue in the main proceedings, implementing the “fair compensation” system provided for in Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonisation of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society, falls within “matters relating to tort, delict or quasi-delict”, within the meaning of Article 5(3) of that regulation.

C-470/14, June 9, 2016 – EGEDA

Fair compensation financed by General State Budget is not aligned with EU law.

1. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonization of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society must be interpreted as precluding a scheme for fair compensation for private copying which, like the one at issue in the main proceedings, is financed from the General State Budget in such a way that it is not possible to ensure that the cost of that compensation is borne by the users of private copies.

C-110/15, September 22, 2016 – Nokia Italia/SIAE

Ex-ante exemption, reimbursement scheme.

1. As is apparent from the case-law of the Court, in order to comply with Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29, fair compensation and, therefore, the system on which it is based, must be linked to the harm resulting for the rightholder from the making of copies for private use.
2. It is apparent from the Court’s case-law that, in any event, that levy must not be applied to the supply of reproduction equipment, devices and media to persons other than natural persons for purposes clearly unrelated to private copying.
3. Moreover, such a system must provide for a right to reimbursement of the private copying levy which is effective and does not make it excessively difficult to obtain repayment of the levy paid. In that regard, the scope, the effectiveness, the availability, the public awareness and simplicity of use of the right to reimbursement allow for the correction of any imbalances created by the private copying levy system, in order to respond to the practical difficulties observed.
4. EU law, in particular, Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonization of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society, must be interpreted as precluding national legislation, such as that at issue in the main proceedings, that, on the one hand, subjects exemption from payment of the private copying levy for producers and importers of devices and media intended for use clearly unrelated to private copying to the conclusion of agreements between an entity which has a legal monopoly on the representation of the interests of authors of works, and those liable to pay compensation, or their trade associations, and, on the other hand, provides that the reimbursement of such a levy, where it has been unduly paid, may be requested only by the final user of those devices and media.

C-37/16, January 18, 2017 – Minister Finansów/SAWP

Application of VAT by CMOs in collecting private copying remunerations.

1. Do authors, performers and other rightsholders supply services, within the meaning of Articles 24(1) and 25(a) of Council Directive 2006/112/EC of November 28, 2006 on the common system of value-added tax, to producers and importers of audio recorders and similar devices and blank media, on whom collective management organizations levy on behalf of those authors, performers and other rightsholders, but in their own name, fees on those devices and media by virtue of their sale?
2. It is apparent from the order for reference that fees such as those at issue in the main proceedings are intended to finance fair compensation for holders of reproduction rights. However, the fair compensation does not constitute the direct consideration for any supply of services, because it is linked to the harm resulting for those rightsholders from the reproduction of their protected works without their authorization.
3. Consequently, a transaction such as that at issue in the main proceedings cannot be regarded as being carried out for consideration, for the purposes of Article 2(1)(c) of the VAT Directive. Accordingly, and in the light of the consideration set out in paragraph 24 of the present judgment, even supposing that holders of reproduction rights may effect an assignment of intangible property, within the meaning of Article 25(a) of the VAT Directive, to producers and importers of blank media and of recording and reproduction devices, an issue which it is not necessary to examine, that transaction is in any event not covered by the directive.
4. It follows from all the foregoing that the answer to the first question is that the VAT Directive must be interpreted as meaning that holders of reproduction rights do not make a supply of services, within the meaning of that directive, to producers and importers of blank media and of recording and reproduction devices on whom organizations collectively managing copyright and related rights levy on behalf of those rightsholders, but in their own name, fees in respect of the sale of those devices and media.

C-265/16, November 29, 2017 – VCAST Limited/R.T.I. SpA

Concerning communication to the public or private copying, in the provision of a cloud computing service for remote video recording of copies of works protected by copyright, without the consent of the author concerned, there is active involvement of the service provider in the recording.

1. The Court has held that, while Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 must be understood as meaning that the private copying exception prohibits the rightsholder from relying on his exclusive right to authorize or prohibit reproductions with regard to persons who make private copies of his works, that provision must not be understood as requiring, beyond that express limitation, the copyright holder to tolerate infringements of his rights which may accompany the making of private copies.
2. It follows from the case-law that, in order to rely on Article 5(2)(b), it is not necessary that the natural persons concerned possess reproduction equipment, devices or media. They may also have copying services provided by a third party, which is the factual precondition for those natural persons to obtain private copies.
3. Although the private copy exception means that the rightholder must abstain from exercising his exclusive right to authorize or prohibit private copies made by natural persons under the conditions provided for in Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29, the requirement for a strict interpretation of that exception implies that that rightholder is not deprived of his right to prohibit or authorize access to the works or the subject matter of which those same natural persons wish to make private copies. Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of May 22, 2001 on the harmonization of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society, in particular Article 50(2)(b) thereof, must be interpreted as precluding national legislation which permits a commercial undertaking to provide private individuals with a cloud service for the remote recording of private copies of works protected by copyright, by means of a computer system, by actively involving itself in the recording, without the rightsholder's consent.

C-433/20, March 24, 2022 – Austro-Mechana/Strato

Cloud copies fall under the private copy exception and fair remuneration must be paid. The remuneration for these copies can also be achieved through a levy on devices.

1. As regards, in the first place, the question whether the saving of copies in a cloud storage space constitutes a 'reproduction', for the purposes of Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29, it should be noted that the concept of 'reproduction' must be construed broadly, in the light both of the requirement expressed in recital 21 of that directive that the acts covered by the reproduction right are to benefit from a broad definition in order to ensure legal certainty within the internal market, and of the wording of Article 2 of that directive, which uses expressions such as 'direct or indirect', 'temporary or permanent', 'by any means' and 'in any form'. In addition, the scope of such protection of the acts covered by the reproduction right also follows from the main objective of that directive, which is to introduce a high level of protection, in particular for authors. In the present case, it must be stated that the upload of a work from a user's connected terminal to a cloud storage space made available to that user in the context of a cloud computing service involves making a reproduction of that work, since that service consists of, inter alia, storing a copy of that work in the cloud. Moreover, other reproductions of that work may also be made, in particular where the user accesses the cloud by means of a connected terminal in order to download onto that terminal a work that was previously uploaded to the cloud. It follows that the saving of a copy of a work in storage space made available to a user in connection with a cloud computing service constitutes a reproduction of that work, for the purposes of Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29.
2. First, it should be observed that, in their broad sense, the words 'any medium' refer to all media on which a protected work may be reproduced, including servers such as those used in cloud computing. Since the wording of Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 does not in any way specify the characteristics of the devices by or with the aid of which copies for private use are made, it must be held that the EU legislature did not consider these to be relevant, in the light of the objective which it pursued by its measure of partial harmonisation. Accordingly, the fact that the storage space is made available to a user on a server belonging to a third party is not decisive in that regard. It follows that Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 may also apply to reproductions made by a natural person with the aid of a device which belongs to a third party. Second, that broad interpretation of the concept of 'any medium' is supported by the context of that provision and, in particular, by comparing the wording of the exception referred to in Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29, which does not in any way specify the characteristics of devices by or with the aid of which copies for private use are made, with that of the exception to the reproduction right laid down in Article 5(2)(a) of that directive. Whereas the latter applies to 'reproductions on paper or any similar medium', the private copying exception is applicable to 'reproductions on any medium'
3. The achievement of the objective, recalled in paragraph 25 of the present judgment, of preventing copyright protection in the European Union from becoming outdated or obsolete as a result of technological developments and the emergence of new forms of exploitation of copyright-protected content, which follows from recital 5 of Directive 2001/29, would be undermined if the exceptions and limitations to the protection of copyright which, according to recital 31 of that directive, were adopted in the light of the new electronic environment, were interpreted in such a way as to have the effect of excluding similar account being taken of those technological developments and of the emergence in particular of digital media and cloud computing service. In those circumstances, it is not necessary, in terms of functionality, to make a distinction, for the purpose of applying Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29, according to whether the reproduction of a protected work is carried out on a server on which storage space has been made available to a user by the provider of a cloud computing service or whether such a reproduction is made on a physical recording medium belonging to that user. Consequently, it must be held that the concept of 'any medium', referred to in Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29, includes a server on which storage space has been made available to a user by the provider of a cloud computing service.

4. As the Advocate General stated in point 71 of his Opinion, in so far as the uploading and downloading of copyright-protected content during the use of storage services in the context of cloud computing may be classified as a single process for the purposes of private copying, it is open to the Member States, in the light of the broad discretion which they enjoy, as recalled in paragraphs 41 and 46 of the present judgment, to put in place a system in which fair compensation is paid solely in respect of the devices or media which form a necessary part of that process, provided that such compensation may reasonably be regarded as reflecting the possible harm to the copyright holder. In that context, while it is open to the Member States to take account, when setting the private copying levy, of the fact that certain devices and media may be used for the purpose of private copying in connection with cloud computing, they must ensure that the levy thus paid, in so far as it affects several devices and media in that single process, does not exceed the possible harm to the rightholders resulting from the act in question, as stated in recital 35 of Directive 2001/29.
5. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as meaning that the creation of a backup copy of a work in a storage space made available to a user in the context of cloud computing services constitutes a reproduction of that work within the meaning of that article.
6. The term “any medium” used in Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 also covers a server on which the provider of cloud computing services makes storage space available to a user.
7. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as not precluding national legislation which transposes the limitation referred to in that provision into national law, in a case where that legislation does not require providers of cloud computing storage services to pay fair compensation for the unauthorized making of backup copies of copyright-protected works by natural persons who use those backup copies for private purposes and without any direct or indirect commercial purpose, in so far as that legislation provides for the payment of fair remuneration to the rightholders.

C-263/21, September 8, 2022 – Ametic

On issuance of an exemption certificate by a private law entity controlled solely by copyright management societies, the powers of review of such entity to verify if conditions for benefiting from an exemption certificate have been satisfied are lawful and necessary to properly administer private copying.

1. The management of remuneration for private copying within the meaning of Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 is, by definition, one of the tasks that may be entrusted to collective copyright management organizations, such as those referred to in the Intellectual Property Act for the management of intellectual property rights, as opposed to the representatives of those liable to pay that compensation.
2. Any national legislation introducing remuneration for private copying must provide for procedures ensuring that only those liable to pay referred to in Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 actually bear the burden of compensation for private copying.
3. In order to avoid any risk of bias on the part of such a legal entity in the issuance of exemption certificates and the granting of refunds, and thus to prevent any distortion of the fair balance between rightholders and users of protected material sought by Directive 2001/29, it must also be possible to appeal against decisions by that legal entity to refuse to issue an exemption certificate or to grant a refund to an independent institution, whether or not that appeal is contentious.
4. Restrictions such as those referred to in Article 5 of Directive 2001/29 must be applied in accordance with the principle of equal treatment enshrined in Article 20 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, according to which comparable situations must not be treated differently and different situations must not be treated equally. That principle cannot be interpreted as precluding the management of exemptions from payment and refunds of remuneration for private copying from being entrusted to a person representing the collective interests of those entitled to receive that remuneration. The persons entitled to receive the compensation for private copying and those liable to pay it are in completely different legal situations with regard to that burden, so that that principle is not infringed on the ground that, under the system of remuneration for private copying, they are subject to different rights and obligations.

5. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 and the principle of equal treatment do not preclude national legislation under which a legal person established by and controlled by intellectual property management organizations is responsible for managing exemptions from payment and refunds of compensation for private copying. However, this applies only where that national legislation provides that the issue of exemption certificates and the granting of refunds must be carried out in a timely manner on the basis of objective criteria which do not allow that legal person to reject an application of such a certificate or of reimbursement on the basis of considerations involving the exercise of a margin of discretion, and that decisions by that legal person to refuse such an application may be challenged before an independent body.
6. Consequently, the person entrusted with the management of the system of compensation for private copying must, on the one hand, be able to verify that the conditions for benefiting from an exemption certificate are satisfied. If, at the end of that check, it becomes apparent that those conditions are not satisfied, the obligation to ensure effective collection of the compensation for private copying makes it necessary to ensure that that legal person can, on the other hand, calculate and collect the amounts due by way of that compensation as soon as the conditions for granting an exemption certificate have not been or are no longer satisfied. The performance of those duties by that legal person would be hindered if the person under review could, by invoking the confidentiality of his, her, or its business accounts, refuse access to the accounting information necessary for such performance.
7. Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 and the principle of equal treatment must be interpreted as not precluding national legislation which empowers a legal person, which is established and controlled by intellectual property rights management organisations and which is entrusted with the management of (i) exemptions from payment in respect of compensation for private copying and (ii) reimbursements in respect of such compensation, to request access to the information necessary for the exercise of the powers of review conferred on it in that regard, without it being possible, in particular, for the person under review to rely on the confidentiality of business accounts provided for by national law, that legal person being obliged to safeguard the confidential nature of the information obtained.

C-426/21, July 13, 2023 – Ocilion IPTV

Private copies of television broadcasts made by and for a single user may not be made available to other users.

1. Article 2 and Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonisation of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society must be interpreted as meaning that the exception to the exclusive right of authors and broadcasting organisations to authorise or prohibit the reproduction of protected works does not cover a service offered by an operator of retransmission of online television broadcasts to commercial customers allowing, on the basis of a cloud-hosting solution or based on the necessary hardware and software made available on premises, a continuous or one-off recording of those broadcasts, on the initiative of the end users of that service, where the copy made by the first of those users to have selected a broadcast is made available, by the operator, to an indeterminate number of users who wish to view the same content.
2. Among other criteria, the Court has emphasised the indispensable role played by the service provider and the deliberate nature of its intervention. That service provider makes an act of communication when it intervenes, in full knowledge of the consequences of its action, to give its customers access to a protected work, particularly where, in the absence of that intervention, those customers would not, in principle, be able to enjoy the broadcast work.
3. Since it is the network operators who give end users access to protected works, in accordance with the detailed rules laid down between them in advance, the service provider that supplies the necessary hardware and software to the network operators in order to give access to those works does not play an ‘indispensable role’ within the meaning of the case-law arising from the judgment cited in paragraph 59 of this judgment, with the result that it cannot be regarded as having carried out an act of communication within the meaning of Directive 2001/29. Although the use of that hardware and software, as part of the on-premises solution, appears necessary in order for end users to be able to replay television broadcasts, it is not apparent from the information in the file submitted to the Court that the provider supplying that hardware and that software takes action to give end users access to those protected works.

RELEVANT CASE LAW FROM THE EUROPEAN COURT (ECJ)

- Article 3(1) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as meaning that the supply by an operator of retransmission of online television broadcasts to its commercial customer of the necessary hardware and software, including technical assistance, which enables that customer to allow its own customers to replay online television broadcasts, does not constitute a ‘communication to the public’ within the meaning of that provision, even if that operator is aware that its service may be used to access protected broadcasting content without the consent of the authors.

C-260/22, November 23, 2023 – Seven.One Entertainment Group GmbH/Corint media GmbH

Fair remuneration for private copying must be granted to broadcasting organizations, when those organizations suffer more than “minimal” damage.

- Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC must be interpreted as precluding national legislation which excludes broadcasting organizations whose broadcasts are reproduced by natural persons for private use and without commercial purpose from the right to fair compensation in so far as those organizations may suffer potential harm that cannot be classified as “minimal.”

C-179/23, July 4, 2024 – Credidam

Fees for services of collective management organizations collecting and distributing private copy remunerations are subject to VAT.

- In the present case, in view of the economic and commercial reality of the activity concerned, there are, for the purposes of the application of the VAT Directive, only the services supplied directly to the rightholders by the management organisation concerned, which consist in the collection, distribution and payment of the remuneration at issue in the main proceedings and for which the management fee constitutes actual consideration.
- The fact that those supplies involve the collection, from users and on behalf of those rightholders, of remuneration arising from a legal relationship between those parties, which does not give rise, as such, to taxable transactions and, in particular, to supplies of services, within the meaning of the VAT Directive – such as that conferring on those rightholders, as regards those users, the right to remuneration for private copying – and that they are thus ‘ancillary’ to the performance of transactions not subject to VAT, cannot alter the fact that those services, carried out by the collective management organisation, are taxable for VAT purposes.
- Article 2(1)(c), Article 24(1) and Article 25(c) of the VAT Directive must be interpreted as meaning that a collective management organisation for copyright and related rights supplies services, within the meaning of those provisions, where, first, it collects, distributes and pays, by law, to rightholders the remuneration owed to them by certain users defined by law and, secondly, it deducts from that remuneration a management fee which is due to it by those rightholders and which is intended to cover the costs incurred by that activity, in the event that the remuneration thus collected on behalf of those rightholders does not constitute consideration for services supplied, within the meaning of that directive, by those rightholders for the benefit of those users.

C-230/23, November 14, 2024 – Reprobel/Copaco

Article 5(2)(a) and (b) of Directive 2001/29/EC have direct effect, meaning that a private individual can invoke them in the event of incorrect transposition of this provision. In this way, the private individual can prevent the application of national rules that oblige him to pay fair compensation that has been imposed contrary to this provision.

- Article 5(2)(a) and (b) of Directive 2001/29/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 22 May 2001 on the harmonisation of certain aspects of copyright and related rights in the information society must be interpreted as meaning that an individual may rely, before a national court, against an entity entrusted by a Member State with collecting and distributing the fair compensation established under that provision, on the fact that the national legislation laying down that compensation contravenes provisions of EU law which have direct effect, provided that such an entity has, in order to perform that task in the public interest, special powers beyond those which result from the normal rules applicable in relations between individuals.
- Article 5(2)(a) and (b) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as having direct effect, and that therefore, in the absence of a correct transposition of that provision, an individual may rely on it for the purposes of disapplying national rules under which that individual is obliged to pay remuneration by way of fair compensation imposed in contravention of that provision.

C-822/24, January 15, 2026 – Bluechip

Copyright levies on items from the business market (commercial/professional use).

1. The answer to the question referred is that Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as not precluding a national rule according to which manufacturers, importers and traders of storage media that may be used for making reproductions are obliged to pay the fair compensation laid down in that provision where those media are sold to commercial end users, except where those manufacturers, importers or traders establish that those media are not used by natural persons in order to make reproductions for private use and for ends that are neither directly nor indirectly commercial, or are used in such a way solely on a scale regarded as not causing more than minimal harm to rightholders.

II. CASES PENDING BEFORE ECJ

C-496/24, July 17, 2024 – Offline streaming copies

Offline streaming copies and the reproduction for private use.

The Supreme Court of the Netherlands filed the following preliminary questions on July 17, 2024:

1. Can a reproduction with the characteristics described above in paragraph 2.3, (i)-(iii) (offline streaming copy), having regard also to the three-step test (Article 5(5) of the Copyright Directive), be regarded as a ‘reproduction ... made by a natural person for private use, and for ends that are neither directly or indirectly commercial’ as referred to in Article 5(2)(b) of the Copyright Directive?
2. Do the objectives of the Copyright Directive, including a high level of copyright protection, a fair balance between the interests of the rightholder and the interests of the user, and a coherent and technologically neutral application by the Member States of the exceptions and limitations, preclude a national regulation under which the private copying exception does not also include offline streaming copies?
3. Is it relevant to the answer to one or more of the preceding questions whether the rightholders receive compensation per offline streaming copy made, or whether they receive compensation based on the number of times an offline streaming copy is played by the user of the streaming service?

The opinion of Advocate General M. Szpunar in this case was published on 2 October 2025. The Advocate General concluded that offline streaming copies do not fall under the private copying exception. He argues that the user of an on-demand internet streaming service whereby protected works are communicated, is not reproducing works for his or her own use in a situation where he or she utilizes the additional service whereby the works are communicated for offline use and the service provider, using technological measures, retains full control over the reproduction of the works. According to the Advocate General, article 3 of Directive 2001/29 must be interpreted as meaning that communication of the works in this way is equivalent to the service provider making them available to the public in such a way that members of the public may access them from a place and at a time individually chosen by them. Application of the private copying exception in these circumstances would also interfere with the normal commercial exploitation of works, according to the Advocate General. Furthermore, the Advocate General argues that the private copying remuneration is not meant to replace licensing mechanisms and the remuneration of rightholders on that basis. Pursuant to Article 18 et seq. of Directive (EU) 2019/790, if that compensation is inadequate, it is up to the Member States to take the appropriate steps to resolve the problem.

C-579/24, September 3, 2024 – Austro-Mechana and AKM

The management authorization of Austro-Mechana and AKM over reproductions of copyright-protected works made by providers of large online platforms and their users.

1. Is EU law, in particular Article 2 of Directive 2001/29/EC, Article 17(1) of Directive (EU) 2019/790 and Article 9 of the Berne Convention for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works (Revised Berne Convention (RBC)), to be interpreted as meaning that an online content-sharing service provider pursuant to Article 2, point 6, of Directive (EU) 2019/790 which stores works and other subject matter uploaded by users, in addition to performing an act of communication to the public (or an act of making available to the public) within the meaning of Article 3 of Directive 2001/29/EC, also performs, or is to be regarded as also performing, an act of reproduction within the meaning of Article 2 of Directive 2001/29/EC, and must obtain separate authorisation to do so from the rightholders referred to in Article 2 of Directive 2001/29/EC?
2. If the first question is answered in the affirmative:
Is EU law, in particular Article 17(1) and (2) and Article 1(2) and Article 2, point 6, of Directive (EU) 2019/790, to be interpreted as meaning that an authorisation to reproduce obtained by online content-sharing service providers within the meaning of Article 2, point 6, of Directive (EU) 2019/790 also covers acts of reproduction performed by, or to be regarded as being performed by, the users of such platforms, provided that those users are not acting on a commercial basis or their activity does not generate significant revenues? If the first question is answered in the negative:
Is EU law, in particular Article 2 of Directive 2001/29/EC and Article 17(2) of Directive (EU) 2019/790, to be interpreted as meaning that users of services offered by online content-sharing service providers within the meaning of Article 6, point 2, of Directive (EU) 2019/790, in uploading copyright-protected works and subject matter for the purposes of storing and sharing them, perform acts of reproduction within the meaning of Article 2 of Directive 2001/29/EC and require authorisation to do so from the rightholders referred to in Article 2 of Directive 2001/29/EC?
3. If the first question is answered in the negative:
Is EU law, in particular Article 2 of Directive 2001/29/EC and Article 17(2) of Directive (EU) 2019/790, to be interpreted as meaning that users of services offered by online content-sharing service providers within the meaning of Article 6, point 2, of Directive (EU) 2019/790, in uploading copyright-protected works and subject matter for the purposes of storing and sharing them, perform acts of reproduction within the meaning of Article 2 of Directive 2001/29/EC and require authorisation to do so from the rightholders referred to in Article 2 of Directive 2001/29/EC?
4. If the first question is answered in the affirmative:
Is EU law, in particular Article 4, Article 5 and Article 16(1) and (2) of Directive 2014/26/EU, 1 to be interpreted as meaning that rightholders may grant the reproduction right under Article 2 of Directive 2001/29/EC, on the one hand, and the right of communication to the public under Article 3 of the same directive, on the other hand, for the purposes of licensing under Article 17(1) and (2) of Directive (EU) 2019/790, individually and separately, too, to a collective management organisation (or an independent management entity), either in order to have those rights managed by different collective management organisations (or independent management entities) or in order to manage those rights individually in part?

RELEVANT CASE LAW FROM THE EUROPEAN COURT (ECJ)

C-840/24, March 14, 2025 – VG Wort

Rightsholder categorization and clarification of beneficiaries of social, cultural or economic services.

The Bundesgerichtshof (Germany) filed the following preliminary questions on December 10, 2024:

1. Is the fact that a provision of national law provides that a collecting society is to promote works of cultural importance and that, as consequence thereof, recipients who are not (or, in any event, not yet) part of the group of rightholders also benefit from that promotion compatible with Article 5(2)(b) of Directive 2001/29/EC, with the first sentence of Article 6(1) of Directive 2006/115/EC, and with Article 11(4) and Article 12(4) of Directive 2014/26/EU?
2. In the event that the provision of social, cultural or educational services under Article 12(4) of Directive 2014/26/EU is permitted only to rightholders: Does the permissibility of providing such services depend on the recipient of those services having a present right to remuneration, or is it sufficient to hold a present copyright or related right that is not currently remunerated? Is the permissibility of such services conditional upon the existence of a management agreement with the collecting society?

ABOUT BIEM/CISAC/IFRRO/STICHTING DE THUISKOPIE

BIEM is an international organization gathering authors’ societies administering recording and mechanical rights of protected musical works, with a view to the efficient administration of those rights. BIEM represents 59 mechanical rights societies operating in 55 countries. Aside from the negotiation of a standard agreement with the International Federation of the Phonographic Industry (IFPI), BIEM's role is not only to assist in technical collaboration between its member societies, to help in solving problems that arise between individual members, but also to contribute to the defense and development of copyright protection in the domain of mechanical rights.

CISAC is the leading worldwide organization of authors’ societies. With 227 authors’ collective management societies in 111 countries, CISAC represents more than 4 million creators from all geographic areas and all artistic repertoires (including music, audiovisual, drama, literature and visual arts). CISAC works to protect the rights and promote the interests of creators worldwide. CISAC enables collective management organizations (CMOs) to seamlessly represent creators across the globe and ensure that royalties flow to authors for the use of their works anywhere in the world.

IFRRO is the leading international organization for collective management of text and image-based works. An independent non-profit association, IFRRO brings together more than 160 member organizations from around 90 countries, including Reproduction Rights Organisations (RROs) as well as authors’ and publishers’ associations. Collectively, they represent millions of authors, visual artists, and publishers of books, journals, newspapers, magazines, and sheet music. IFRRO works to develop and promote effective collective rights management, ensuring that the copyrights of authors and publishers are valued through the lawful and remunerated use of text and image-based works.

Stichting de ThuisKopie (Home Copying Foundation) is the private copying collecting society of the Netherlands. ThuisKopie is the sole organization in the Netherlands appointed by the Minister of Justice, to collect the remunerations from importers/manufacturers of media and devices used by consumers for private copying. It distributes the collected private copying remunerations to the organizations representing the interests of the entitled rightsholders like composers, lyricists, audiovisual and audio producers, authors of literary-dramatic works, journalists, screenwriters, visual authors, photographers, illustrators, visual artists, performing artists, broadcasters and directors. The rightsholders are represented in the board of the Foundation.
